British in Final Stage of Powers' Mutual Aid Pact

Note Is Sent to Moscow Containing New Angles of Attempt to Bring on Treaty

Polish Charges

Warsaw Declares Nazis Are Now Busy in Danzig—Searches Ships

(By The Associated Press)

The British government was reported reliably today to have opened the final phase of negotiations for a British-French-Russian mutual aid pact by sending Moscow a note containing new proposals. Prime Minister Chamberlain indicated yesterday he hoped to announce "full agreement" within two weeks.

The renewed progress of the long-stalemated negotiations for bringing Russia into the British-French line-up evoked Nazi accusations that Britain openly had confessed "faith in the encirclement policy" and the charge that she had precluded "further cooperation of the big powers for peaceful solution of existing problems."

The German press also reported "new provocations" by Poles against the free city of Danzig. "Serious Polish encroachments are increasing," said the Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin.

Polish Charges

In Warsaw, on the other hand, two newspapers declared a "mysterious transport" had entered Danzig from East Prussia. They said German trucks crossed the frontier Sunday during a Nazi demonstration at the Kalthof customs house, and charged that Nazis had provoked the incident so that there would be no border patrol.

Poland and the Nazi-dominated Danzig Senate have exchanged notes, each demanding satisfaction for a clash during the demonstration in which a Nazi butcher was killed, the first fatality in the issue between Poland and Germany over the free city.

Points said still to be left for ironing out in the British-Russian negotiations were a definition of aggression, arrangements for a unified command in event of a European war and decision on what smaller countries to take under protection of the pact.

In Moscow, Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, disclosed that Russia had asked Finland what guarantees she was prepared to make that the Aaland Islands in the Baltic sea, if fortified, would not be used against the Soviet Union. Russia, interested in open navigation into the Baltic, opposed fortification of the islands when the question was raised at the League of Nations Council this week.

Likely to Be Halted

At Shanghai a Japanese navy spokesman warned today that foreign ships entering waters in the vicinity of the China coast were likely to be halted and searched by Japanese warships.

Such action as the stopping and boarding of two foreign liners in two days, the British Ranpura and the French Aramis, was "necessitated," he asserted, because in the past ships flying foreign flags had been used by Chinese for military operations against the Japanese.

(The British government today announced it had protested strongly to Japanese naval authorities against the halting of the Ranpura yesterday just outside Hongkong waters. A boarding party left the liner as two British destroyers summoned by wireless appeared.

(Today the French liner Aramis was reported halted 17 miles northeast of Hongkong and detained an hour while a boarding party examined the ship's papers despite protests of her officers.)

The American liner President Coolidge now en route from Shanghai to Hongkong will enter the "search zone" tomorrow but the spokesman declined to say whether it was planned to board her.

Jury Is Chosen

New York, May 25 (AP)—Selection of a jury was completed today for the trial of Kings County Judge George W. Martin, dean of Brooklyn's criminal courts bench, after three and one-half days of questioning veniremen. The jurist is charged with "selling justice" by accepting a $1,000 bribe to dismiss an abortion case.

Three Defendants Plead Guilty to Murder Charges

Seven Others Deny Guilt Today in Philadelphia When Arraigned in Poison Ring Case

Philadelphia, May 25 (AP)—Three defendants in the wholesale insurance murder cases pleaded guilty today and seven others pleaded innocent when arraigned together on charges of murder and manslaughter in the deaths of five men.

Those pleading guilty will appear before a court of three judges, who will hear evidence and fix punishment.

The seven who denied any guilt will be tried, perhaps in groups. The trials were expected to start next week.

Morris Bolber, who detectives charge was an "executive" of the wide-spread syndicate, was the first brought before Judge Albert S. C. Millar.

Gazing straight forward as a clerk read the bills of indictment, he pleaded "guilty generally" to the murder of Roman Mandiuk, a baker. Mandiuk's exhumed body showed traces of four poisons.

Bolber pleaded innocent, however, to an indictment charging him with a part in the drowning of Rafaele Caruso, a crippie.

David Brandt, bespectacled little typewriter salesman, indicted also in Mandiuk's death, almost shouted "not guilty" in denying the accusations.

Mandiuk's widow, Agnes, also denied she had a part in her husband's death. Wearing a jaunty hat and a blue dress with white polka-dots, the tall widow replied quietly to the clerk's query.

Tearful and shaking, Mrs. Christina Cerrone was led before the court to answer murder and manslaughter charges in the Caruso drowning. Caruso, a boarder in her home, drowned in the Schuylkill river several years ago.

His landlady shook her head vigorously and pleaded innocent through a court interpreter. She spoke Italian.

The next plead of guilty came from Samuel Sortino. He also spoke Italian as he acknowledged charges that he participated in Caruso's drowning.

Taxation Upheld

Albany, N. Y., May 25 (AP)—The Appellate Division, Third Department, upheld today the state's right to tax the salaries of Supreme Court justices. The 3 to 2 decision was handed down in an action brought against the State Tax Commission by former Supreme Court Justice William Harman Black of New York city, who contended a 1937 law under which his salary was taxed violated at that time a constitutional provision which he said prohibited diminution of justices' salaries.

Davis Is Summoned

New York, May 25 (AP)—Howland S. Davis, vice president of the New York Stock Exchange, today was summoned on short notice to appear before Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., for questioning. It was reported Davis was to be asked the reason for an alleged delay by the stock exchange in notifying the attorney general of an exchange investigation into the affairs of Henry C. Elfast, expelled from membership yesterday.

Kenyon Is Accused Of Being Hostile At Manton Trial

Government Witness Allowed to Give Testimony However That He Once Drafted Opinion

Kenyon Denies Hostility or Casting Reflections on Manton

New York, May 25 (AP)—The government accused one of its own witnesess of hostility today at the conspiracy trial of former U. S. Circuit Judge Martin T. Manton.

U. S. District Judge W. Calvin Chesnut, however, permitted the jury to hear testimony of the witness, Theodore S. Kenyon, that he once drafted an opinion for Manton, but that he later learned Manton's ultimate decision contained "no similarity except for result."

Kenyon said the request for an opinion in a patent suit was made by John L. Lotsch, one-time lawyer who has pleaded guilty to conspiracy to obstruct justice—the same indictment on which Manton is being tried.

"We Have Won"

Kenyon testified that Lotsch, who was associated with him in the case involving the Electric Autolite Company against the P. and D. Manufacturing Company, told him:

"We have won the case. The court judges have had their conference. Manton has requested that we draft an opinion."

Kenyon said he wrote an opinion, but admitted under cross-examination by Defense Attorney James E. Noonan that it was dissimilar to Manton's ruling except that the decision was favorable to Kenyon's client, the P. and D. concern.

U. S. Attorney John T. Cahill protested at this point, "the witness is showing hostility."

Kenyon replied that he was not hostile to the government and denied having told federal investigators anything reflecting upon Manton's integrity.

The P. and D. case was one of those which the government alleges was "fixed" through Lotsch's offices in obtaining a loan for Manton from the Fort Green Bank, of which Lotsch was board chairman.

John L. Lotsch, disbarred attorney, former banker and Brooklyn politician, smiled frequently yesterday as he told of handing Manton, once the nation's tenth-ranking federal jurist, two $5,000 payments in his own judicial chambers.

As Monton Glares

Manton glared at him steadily throughout his testimony without once catching the eye of the bald, middle-aged little witness, who has pleaded guilty to conspiring with Manton to sell the latter's judicial favors.

Lotsch, at the time under indictment on a charge of taking a bribe while acting as a special master, said Manton demanded the money after informing him he had assigned Federal Judge Edwin Thomas of Connecticut to sit in the case.

"He told me," Lotsch said, "that he had talked with Judge Thomas and that Judge Thomas would take care of my case, but wanted $10,000 from me before the case started."

No evidence was introduced, however, to show that Thomas, who resigned recently and now is in a sanitarium, actually received any of the money.

Snite at Lourdes

Lourdes, France, May 25 (AP)—Fred B. Snite, Jr., "the man in the iron lung," arrived at the "Grotto of Miracles" here today at the end of his 5,000-mile pilgrimage from the United States. He was taken in his mechanical respirator to a room in the grotto infirmary. Members of his party said the time of Snite's visit to the shrine had not been set.

Rescuers Toil Under Feeling Some Might Still Be Alive Aboard Submarine; 33 Men Saved; U.S. Inquiry to Be Held

Senate Probe

Senate Naval Committee Might Conduct Its Own Investigation

Electrician's Mate Is Hero of Disaster

Portsmouth, N. H., May 25 (AP) — Lloyd B. Maness, of Greensboro, N. C., an electrician's mate, was generally credited today with the heroic, "super-human" act which probably saved the lives of 33 men in the submarine Squalus.

Maness was said to have been the man who jammed shut the door which cut off the flooded sections of the craft from the compartments in which the survivors lived for more than 30 hours.

One of the survivors reported that the closing of the door against the force of the water "took super strength."

Washington, May 25 (AP)—A special naval board will defer an inquiry into the sinking of the submarine Squalus, officials said today, until the craft is raised from the ocean floor off New Hampshire.

The board will try to determine whether the submarine was partially flooded because of mechanical defects or some failure of one or more members of its crew.

Senator Lucas (D., Ill.) indicated that the Senate naval committee, of which he is a member, may investigate the disaster if navy reports are unsatisfactory.

"The loss of life is so great," Lucas said, "that nothing should be left undone to ascertain the true cause."

Technicians Explain

Naval technicians explained that two or more of the big air intake valves on the submarine must have been left open during a test dive Tuesday morning. Water poured into some compartments, and the vessel sank.

The main valve is about 31 inches in diameter, but the channel from it is divided into two smaller channels. In these are two smaller valves.

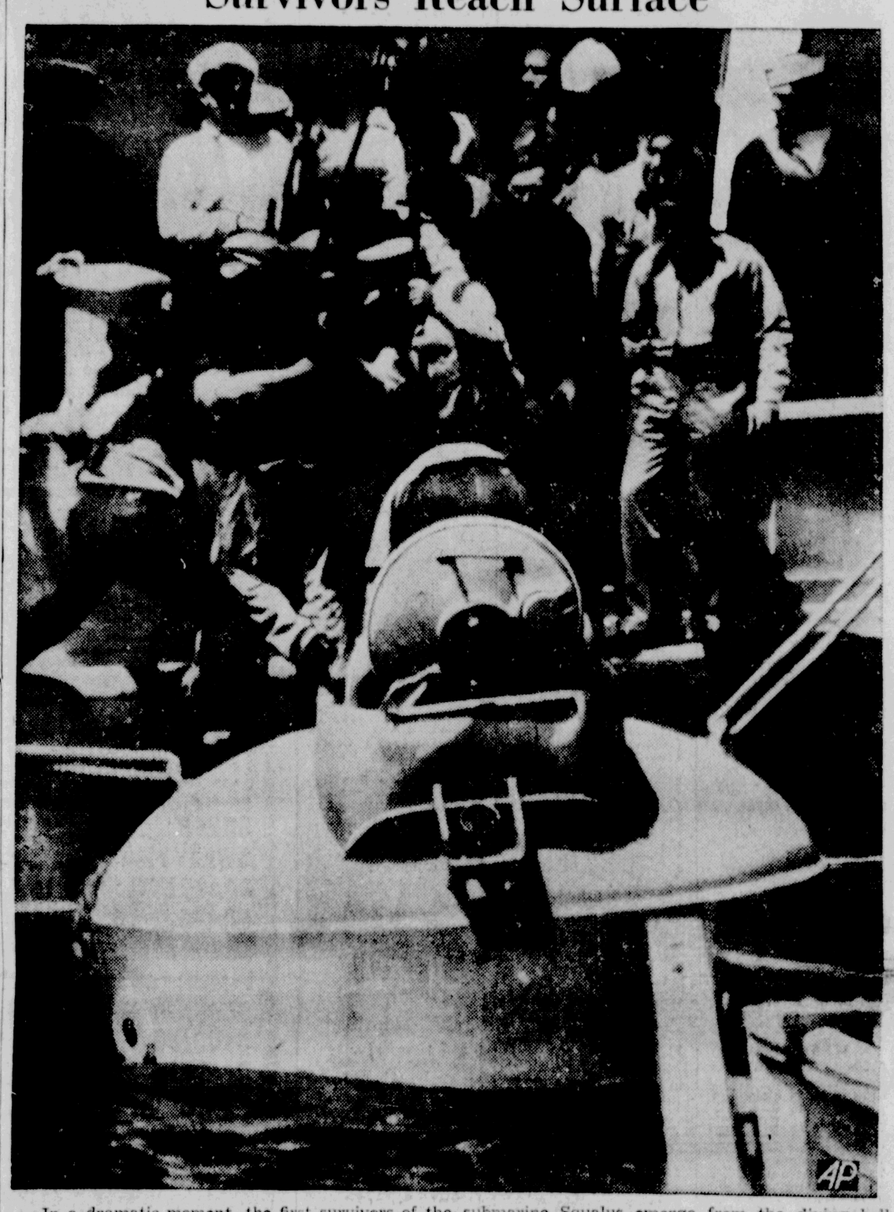

Every known safety device is provided, officials explained, to close the valves before the submarine descends. The valves supply air to the Diesel engines when the craft is operating on the surface. When it submerges, those engines are shut off and power is supplied by electric batteries.

Dead at Posts

Officials here expressed the belief that the 26 men lost in the accident had died at their posts in the submarine's rear compartments when water rushed down the intake valves.

Rep. Lesinski (D., Mich.) prepared a pension bill providing benefits at war-time rates for disability or death incurred in government submarine or aircraft disasters.

Survivors Reach Surface

In a dramatic moment, the first survivors of the submarine Squalus emerge from the diving bell which saved lives. Seamen on the rescue ship Falcon are assisting one man while another comes up through the top of the bell. First man to step aboard the Falcon was Lt. John G. Nichols of Chicago.

Rear Admiral Cole Says Only Barest Hope Exists That Sailors Are Alive on Squalus

Bell Repaired

Rescue Work on After Part of Submarine Is in Progress

Lieut. J. C. Nichols' interview on the disaster will be found on page 11 of this issue.

Portsmouth, N. H., May 25 (AP)—Although admitting only the rarest possibility existed there still was life on the sunken submarine Squalus, Rear Admiral C. W. Cole announced today the resumption of rescue work after asserting: "We never say die until all hope is lost."

In pointing out there was little hope for the 26 men still trapped on the ill-fated submersible, Cole said the submarine temperature had 27 degrees since the craft went down Tuesday and that it tilted sharply when water flooded the after part.

From the rescue ship Falcon, to which 33 survivors were hoisted yesterday and last night, the admiral said:

"Repair of the rescue chamber has been completed. Will resume rescue operations on the after part of the Squalus."

Grim Task Among Dead

Portsmouth, N. H., May 25 (AP)—The grim task of reclaiming the bodies of 26 men from their tomb in the submarine Squalus at the bottom of the sea faced the United States Navy today.

As families of 33 rescued men rejoiced from coast to coast, divers were ordered to descend 240 feet to the muddy floor of the ocean to enter the water-filled sections of the $4,000,000 submersible and make preparations for bringing the bodies to the surface.

Naval officials said first efforts to evacuate the dead would necessitate divers entering the stricken craft, probably through the escape bell. Inside they will attempt to bring out as many of the bodies as possible and send them to the surface in the bell.

After the bodies are removed, an air hose will be attached, the water blown out of the sub and efforts made to float it. If efforts to remove the bodies are unsuccessful the rescue flotilla will seek to raise the Squalus with the bodies inside and then tow it to the navy yard here.

One naval spokesman, asked how long the last salvage operations might take, replied:

"It might take a day or it might take three weeks."

He said numerous difficulties might hamper the work but asserted that if all went well the submarine with the bodies of the dead should be on the surface by tonight.

But for that sad job, the navy had completed, with the first use of the new nine-tone escape bell, one of the most dramatic underwater rescues in the annals of the sea.

Four times the huge, grotesque apparatus was lowered over the side of the submarine rescue ship Falcon. Three times it came up smoothly and promptly, carrying men from the gloom in which they had spent more than 30 hours.

Cable Fouls on Bell

Then, on the fourth trip, something went wrong. A cable fouled and held the last eight survivors suspended midway between the muddy bottom and the surface.

Divers labored frantically. Four hours later the giant apparatus was freed and the last men, including Lieutenant O. F. Naquin, commander of the Squalus, stepped to the deck of the Falcon.

As that trip was completed, shortly after midnight (E. D. T.), rescue operations were suspended until daylight. Admiral C. W. Cole, commandant of the Portsmouth navy yard, issued the following communique:

"This completes rescue of all known survivors. Investigation of flooded compartments will proceed as expeditiously as possible. Suspending operations for the night due to damage to rescue chamber, which must be repaired before further use."

As the rescued men—seven the first trip, nine the second and third trips and eight the last time—left the big bell, they stepped into a decompression chamber.

Then, as they recovered from cold and pressure changes they were brought ashore.

Disabled shortly after 8:40 a. m. Tuesday morning, when an air induction valve failed to close and poured tons of water into the after compartments, the Squalus lay on an even keel at the bottom and the men in the forward compartments "took it easy" throughout

Royal Visitors Survey Great Wheatlands of Saskatchewan

Regina, May 25 (Canadian Press)—Farm folk by the thousands—many of them from the 1938 drouth lands of the province—crowded into Saskatchewan's capital today to see the King and Queen.

They were a cheerful horde of visitors, happy over Wednesday's heavy rainfall that meant much to their seeded wheat, and they were ready to join provincial and civil officers in a great demonstration of welcome to their majesties.

The royal train, due for a seven and one-half hour visit at 2:30 p. m., EST., this morning was rolling across the prairies where the king and queen had a view of the great wheatlands—their day given over to rest except for an occasional platform appearance.

They stopped at Brandon, Manitoba, last night for what their spokesman said was the "most impressive welcome their majesties have met."

Nearly 50,000 persons crowded the Brandon platform, although the town population is only 17,000, while the king and queen mounted a reviewing stand. The cheers were so loud and so affected the Queen that one person thought he detected tears as she boarded the train.

A volunteer guard of honor formed a wall along the platform. It had been rainy and cool in Winnipeg yesterday but Brandon was clear and warm. The King apparently had expected chilly weather for her wore a dark grey topcoat. The Queen wore the victorian blue ensemble in which she departed Winnipeg.

The Regina program included a drive to city hall for a formal welcome, signing of the city register by the King and Queen, a tea at Royal Canadian Mounted Police headquarters and a state dinner at government house.

Cohen Has Interesting Portion of Hotel Register

Raphael Cohen has a most interesting portion of a hotel register of the Freileweh's City Hotel of the years 1883-1888, located on Green street opposite where No. 7 school is located.

The hotel register contains not only the names of the guests and their residence and data as to their length of stay but also comments on the weather.

Under date of April 18, 1887, there is a notation "the largest snow storm of the season, 12 inches snow" indicating that spring came late the year before the famous blizzard of 1888. Apparently the hotel rate at the time was $1.50 per day.

Strange Happenings These Because of Dixie Breeze

New Orleans, May 25 (AP)—Strange happenings in these parts:

A near-tornadic wind at Winterville, Miss., blew an old leaning barn—not down—but up yesterday.

Another twister near Itta Bena, Miss., lifted a surprised cow 100 yards over some trees, and the cow resumed eating, unharmed.

Shrimp swarmed into New Orleans homes, to the dismay of housewives. The reddish brown creatures, of the Mississippi river variety, came up through the ground in an uptown section, hopping about like fleas.

Morgenthau Says Tax Program Agreed Upon

Tax Conference Clears Up Final Details of Levy Revision Affecting Corporations

Washington, May 25 (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau reported today congressional leaders had agreed on a tax program with the President that would "definitely" contribute to business recovery.

The treasury head said the tax conference held at the White House yesterday cleared up final details of a corporation tax revision program and that no further conferences were expected.

He replied with an emphatic "yes" when asked if the tax program was ready to go before Congress.

He added, however, that he did not yet know on what date the House ways and means committee would summon him to present the plan.

The President conferred yesterday with Chairman Harrison (D.-Miss.) of the Senate finance committee, Senator Byrnes (D.-S. C.), and Rep. Cooper (D.-Tenn.).

Morgenthau said he could report "that more progress has been made in the last couple of days than was made in the last couple of months towards a solution of the tax problem."

He added that "goodwill all around" was responsible for the agreement after months of conflicting statements by the President, treasury officials, legislators and others as to what ought or could be done about taxes to help business.

Morgenthau explained that when the House committee calls him to testify he will make a general statement about tax revision and then Undersecretary John H. Hanes will take charge of the treasury's participation in the tax hearings.

Hanes is a former Wall Street broker and former member of the securities commission who has been active for more than a year in promoting friendship between the administration and businessmen.

Sheriff Holds Two On Theft Charges

Jesse Eckert, of This City, and Melvin Eckert, of Esopus Are in Jail

A tip secured first part of the week by Sheriff A. F. The men are alleged to have burglarized a summer cottage near Esopus belonging to Franz Jaszobsky of 1782 75th street, Brooklyn, about the middle of April. They were arraigned be-

Explorers to Probe Mystery Of City Submerged in 1680

Tampa, Fla., May 25 (AP)—An expedition of marine explorers revealed plans here today for walking under 300 feet of water, encased in recently-developed helium gas diving suits, along the ancient streets of a once-flourishing island city in the Lesser Antilles.

Captain Robert Hall of Detroit, director, said the expedition hoped to accumulate data concerning St. James, former capital of St. Kitts' Island. The town has been submerged for more than two and a half centuries—since an earthquake dropped it into the sea in 1680.

Sometimes called Jamestown, the little city was the principal seat of the island, then called Nevis, before the sea swallowed it. Hall has made surface surveys of the possibilities of probing the engulfed city's mysteries.

Hall told of the plans for his expedition after he had offered use of the helium diving suits to the navy at Portsmouth, N. H., for work at the sunken submarine Squalus.

Max Gene Nohl, diver, has been down 420 feet in the new type of deep sea contraption, Captain Hall said. No air tube is attached—only a cable, the center of which is a small telephone wire for communication. The equipment contains a supply of helium and oxygen and needs no life line to air pumps on deck.

Captain Hall and his crew of seamen, navigators, deep sea photographers, artists, writers, divers and explorers, will leave here probably Saturday in the twin screw diesel powered motorship Albee.

"We expect to examine several submerged wrecks along the way," Hall said.

Lourdes, France, May 25 (AP)—Fred B. Snite, Jr., "the man in the iron lung," arrived at the "Grotto of Miracles" here today at the end of his 5,000-mile pilgrimage from the United States. He was taken in his mechanical respirator to a room in the grotto infirmary. Members of his party said the time of Snite's visit to the shrine had not been set.

Rescuers Toil Under Feeling Some Might Still Be Alive Aboard Submarine; 33 Men Saved; U.S. Inquiry to Be Held

Senate Probe

Electrician's Mate Is Hero of Disaster

Portsmouth, N. H., May 25 (AP) — Lloyd B. Maness, of Greensboro, N. C., an electrician's mate, was generally credited today with the heroic, "super-human" act which probably saved the lives of 33 men in the submarine Squalus.

Maness was said to have been the man who jammed shut the door which cut off the flooded sections of the craft from the compartments in which the survivors lived for more than 30 hours.

One of the survivors reported that the closing of the door against the force of the water "took super strength."

Washington, May 25 (AP)—A special naval board will defer an inquiry into the sinking of the submarine Squalus, officials said today, until the craft is raised from the ocean floor off New Hampshire.

The board will try to determine whether the submarine was partially flooded because of mechanical defects or some failure of one or more members of its crew.

Senator Lucas (D., Ill.) indicated that the Senate naval committee, of which he is a member, may investigate the disaster if navy reports are unsatisfactory.

"The loss of life is so great," Lucas said, "that nothing should be left undone to ascertain the true cause."

Technicians Explain

Naval technicians explained that two or more of the big air intake valves on the submarine must have been left open during a test dive Tuesday morning. Water poured into some compartments, and the vessel sank.

The main valve is about 31 inches in diameter, but the channel from it is divided into two smaller channels. In these are two smaller valves.

Every known safety device is provided, officials explained, to close the valves before the submarine descends. The valves supply air to the Diesel engines when the craft is operating on the surface. When it submerges, those engines are shut off and power is supplied by electric batteries.

Dead at Posts

Officials here expressed the belief that the 26 men lost in the accident had died at their posts in the submarine's rear compartments when water rushed down the intake valves.

Rep. Lesinski (D., Mich.) prepared a pension bill providing benefits at war-time rates for disability or death incurred in government submarine or aircraft disasters.

Cohen Has Interesting Portion of Hotel Register

Raphael Cohen has a most interesting portion of a hotel register of the Freileweh's City Hotel of the years 1883-1888, located on Green street opposite where No. 7 school is located.

The hotel register contains not only the names of the guests and their residence and data as to their length of stay but also comments on the weather.

Under date of April 18, 1887, there is a notation "the largest snow storm of the season, 12 inches snow" indicating that spring came late the year before the famous blizzard of 1888. Apparently the hotel rate at the time was $1.50 per day.

Strange Happenings These Because of Dixie Breeze

New Orleans, May 25 (AP)—Strange happenings in these parts:

A near-tornadic wind at Winterville, Miss., blew an old leaning barn—not down—but up yesterday.

Another twister near Itta Bena, Miss., lifted a surprised cow 100 yards over some trees, and the cow resumed eating, unharmed.

Shrimp swarmed into New Orleans homes, to the dismay of housewives. The reddish brown creatures, of the Mississippi river variety, came up through the ground in an uptown section, hopping about like fleas.

Survivors Reach Surface

In a dramatic moment, the first survivors of the submarine Squalus emerge from the diving bell which saved lives. Seamen on the rescue ship Falcon are assisting one man while another comes up through the top of the bell. First man to step aboard the Falcon was Lt. John G. Nichols of Chicago.

Rear Admiral Cole Says Only Barest Hope Exists That Sailors Are Alive on Squalus

Bell Repaired

Rescue Work on After Part of Submarine Is in Progress

Lieut. J. C. Nichols' interview on the disaster will be found on page 11 of this issue.

Portsmouth, N. H., May 25 (AP)—Although admitting only the rarest possibility existed there still was life on the sunken submarine Squalus, Rear Admiral C. W. Cole announced today the resumption of rescue work after asserting: "We never say die until all hope is lost."

In pointing out there was little hope for the 26 men still trapped on the ill-fated submersible, Cole said the submarine temperature had 27 degrees since the craft went down Tuesday and that it tilted sharply when water flooded the after part.

From the rescue ship Falcon, to which 33 survivors were hoisted yesterday and last night, the admiral said.

"Repair of the rescue chamber has been completed. Will resume rescue operations on the after part of the Squalus."

Grim Task Among Dead

Portsmouth, N. H., May 25 (AP)—The grim task of reclaiming the bodies of 26 men from their tomb in the submarine Squalus at the bottom of the sea faced the United States Navy today.

As families of 33 rescued men rejoiced from coast to coast, divers were ordered to descend 240 feet to the muddy floor of the ocean to enter the water-filled sections of the $4,000,000 submersible and make preparations for bringing the bodies to the surface.

Naval officials said first efforts to evacuate the dead would necessitate divers entering the stricken craft, probably through the escape bell. Inside they will attempt to bring out as many of the bodies as possible and send them to the surface in the bell.

After the bodies are removed, an air hose will be attached, the water blown out of the sub and efforts made to float it. If efforts to remove the bodies are unsuccessful the rescue flotilla will seek to raise the Squalus with the bodies inside and then tow it to the navy yard here.

One naval spokesman, asked how long the last salvage operations might take, replied:

"It might take a day or it might take three weeks."

He said numerous difficulties might hamper the work but asserted that if all went well the submarine with the bodies of the dead should be on the surface by tonight.

But for that sad job, the navy had completed, with the first use of the new nine-tone escape bell, one of the most dramatic underwater rescues in the annals of the sea.

Four times the huge, grotesque apparatus was lowered over the side of the submarine rescue ship Falcon. Three times it came up smoothly and promptly, carrying men from the gloom in which they had spent more than 30 hours.

Cable Fouls on Bell

Then, on the fourth trip, something went wrong. A cable fouled and held the last eight survivors suspended midway between the muddy bottom and the surface.

Divers labored frantically. Four hours later the giant apparatus was freed and the last men, including Lieutenant O. F. Naquin, commander of the Squalus, stepped to the deck of the Falcon.

As that trip was completed, shortly after midnight (E. D. T.), rescue operations were suspended until daylight. Admiral C. W. Cole, commandant of the Portsmouth navy yard, issued the following communique:

"This completes rescue of all known survivors. Investigation of flooded compartments will proceed as expeditiously as possible. Suspending operations for the night due to damage to rescue chamber, which must be repaired before further use."

As the rescued men—seven the first trip, nine the second and third trips and eight the last time—left the big bell, they stepped into a decompression chamber.

Then, as they recovered from cold and pressure changes they were brought ashore.

Disabled shortly after 8:40 a. m. Tuesday morning, when an air induction valve failed to close and poured tons of water into the after compartments, the Squalus lay on an even keel at the bottom and the men in the forward compartments "took it easy" throughout

Morgenthau Says Tax Program Agreed Upon

Tax Conference Clears Up Final Details of Levy Revision Affecting Corporations

Washington, May 25 (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau reported today congressional leaders had agreed on a tax program with the President that would "definitely" contribute to business recovery.

The treasury head said the tax conference held at the White House yesterday cleared up final details of a corporation tax revision program and that no further conferences were expected.

He replied with an emphatic "yes" when asked if the tax program was ready to go before Congress.

He added, however, that he did not yet know on what date the House ways and means committee would summon him to present the plan.

The President conferred yesterday with Chairman Harrison (D.-Miss.) of the Senate finance committee, Senator Byrnes (D.-S. C.), and Rep. Cooper (D.-Tenn.).

Morgenthau said he could report "that more progress has been made in the last couple of days than was made in the last couple of months towards a solution of the tax problem."

He added that "goodwill all around" was responsible for the agreement after months of conflicting statements by the President, treasury officials, legislators and others as to what ought or could be done about taxes to help business.

Morgenthau explained that when the House committee calls him to testify he will make a general statement about tax revision and then Undersecretary John H. Hanes will take charge of the treasury's participation in the tax hearings.

Hanes is a former Wall Street broker and former member of the securities commission who has been active for more than a year in promoting friendship between the administration and businessmen.

The men are alleged to have burglarized a summer cottage near Esopus belonging to Franz Jaszobsky of 1782 75th street, Brooklyn, about the middle of April. They were arraigned be-

Explorers to Probe Mystery Of City Submerged in 1680

Tampa, Fla., May 25 (AP)—An expedition of marine explorers revealed plans here today for walking under 300 feet of water, encased in recently-developed helium gas diving suits, along the ancient streets of a once-flourishing island city in the Lesser Antilles.

Captain Robert Hall of Detroit, director, said the expedition hoped to accumulate data concerning St. James, former capital of St. Kitts' Island: The town has been submerged for more than two and a half centuries—since an earthquake dropped it into the sea in 1680.

Sometimes called Jamestown, the little city was the principal seat of the island, then called Nevis, before the sea swallowed it. Hall has made surface surveys of the possibilities of probing the engulfed city's mysteries.

Hall told of the plans for his expedition after he had offered use of the helium diving suits to the navy at Portsmouth, N. H., for work at the sunken submarine Squalus.

Max Gene Nohl, diver, has been down 420 feet in the new type of deep sea contraption, Captain Hall said. No air tube is attached—only a cable, the center of which is a small telephone wire for communication. The equipment contains a supply of helium and oxygen and needs no life line to air pumps on deck.

Captain Hall and his crew of seamen, navigators, deep sea photographers, artists, writers, divers and explorers, will leave here probably Saturday in the twin screw diesel powered motorship Albee.

"We expect to examine several submerged wrecks along the way," Hall said.

Royal Visitors Survey Great Wheatlands of Saskatchewan

Regina, May 25 (Canadian Press)—Farm folk by the thousands—many of them from the 1938 drouth lands of the province—crowded into Saskatchewan's capital today to see the King and Queen.

They were a cheerful horde of visitors, happy over Wednesday's heavy rainfall that meant much to their seeded wheat, and they were ready to join provincial and civil officers in a great demonstration of welcome to their majesties.

The royal train, due for a seven and one-half hour visit at 2:30 p. m., EST., this morning was rolling across the prairies where the king and queen had a view of the great wheatlands—their day given over to rest except for an occasional platform appearance.

They stopped at Brandon, Manitoba, last night for what their spokesman said was the "most impressive welcome their majesties have met."

Nearly 50,000 persons crowded the Brandon platform, although the town population is only 17,000, while the king and queen mounted a reviewing stand. The cheers were so loud and so affected the Queen that one person thought he detected tears as she boarded the train.

A volunteer guard of honor formed a wall along the platform. It had been rainy and cool in Winnipeg yesterday but Brandon was clear and warm. The King apparently had expected chilly weather for her wore a dark grey topcoat. The Queen wore the victorian blue ensemble in which she departed Winnipeg.

The Regina program included a drive to city hall for a formal welcome, signing of the city register by the King and Queen, a tea at Royal Canadian Mounted Police headquarters and a state dinner at government house.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

Retriever

Greenville, S. C.—State Rep. A. M. Hawkins and several friends while cleaning out their favorite fishing hole, threw a stick of dynamite into the water.

A dog jumped in, retrieved the stick and started returning it to the fisherman. They ran. The dog followed—until it was blown to bits.

Dog Seek Dog

Crouch, Idaho—State prison guards lost a bloodhound. They were at a loss how to find him.

Then a guard had an idea: "Get another bloodhound."

It worked.

Mayor's Comeback

Centerville, Ia.—Mayor T. J. McIntire, who gets $30 a month, asked the city council for a raise.

The council replied that his is a "part time job."

Today a new sign adorned his office entrance—"Office hours 9 a. m. to 10 a. m."

"That," the mayor added, "is exactly what I am going to do."

Seniors' Angels

Decatur, Neb.—Tops with 31 Decatur high school seniors are Mr. and Mrs. Ben Evans who maintain an intense interest in school work.

Graduation exercises were almost over when Superintendent H. S. Packwood gave each senior a sealed envelope. In each envelope was a $5 bill, gift of the Evans.

20 Different Elements Used in Making Steel

About 20 different elements, ranging alphabetically from aluminum to zirconium, are used today in various combinations and proportions in the manufacture of both plain carbon and alloy steels.

Some are used because of the specific properties which they impart to steel when they alloy with it, that is, dissolve in the iron, or when they combine with carbon, wholly or in part, to form compounds called carbides, says Steel Facts. Others are used because of their beneficial effects in ridding the steel impurities or in rendering impurities harmless. A third group is used to counteract harmful oxides or gases in the steel. The elements of this latter group are merely fluxes or scavengers and do not remain in the steel to any great extent after the steel solidifies. Some elements fall into more than one of the aforementioned groups.

Most of the elements are introduced into steel in the form of ferro-alloys, alloys of iron and some other element or elements (carbon excepted) made especially for use as raw material in the manufacture of steel. Ferro-alloys are used because many of the pure metals are costly to obtain, there is no necessity for iron-free metals when they are to be added to steel, and some elements, such as manganese and titanium, are difficult to extract from their ores without the presence of some helpful agent such as iron. The part played by iron in the ferro-alloy, therefore, is primarily that of a vehicle for carrying the desired elements.

One Inch of Rainfall Is a Lot of Water

Rainfall is measured in inches, as we know. But exactly what does an inch of rain represent? Doesn't sound like much, does it?

Here are some comparative figures: One gallon of water weighs 10 pounds and would cover about two square feet of surface with a layer one inch thick. To cover a square mile of the earth's surface with a layer of rain one inch thick needs 120,000,000 pounds of water, or 12,000,000 gallons—which is a lot of water.

A good thunderstorm which pelts water down on the earth all night long will result in perhaps a half-inch of rain. If the storm covers a hundred thousand square miles before it wears itself out it will therefore deliver to the earth 600,000,000,000 gallons of water.

Lest this seem a considerable amount let us think of the Khasia hills in India, which is reputed to receive the heaviest rainfall in the world. The average is over 600 inches of rain per year, or 7,000,000 gallons of water per square mile.

Sea of Galilee

The Sea of Galilee, a body of fresh water 13 miles long by seven miles wide, or approximately the size of Staten Island in New York bay, is 700 feet below the level of the sea. The Jordan carries its overflow to the Dead sea, a body of salt water, 1,300 feet below sea level, from which there is no overflow. The distance between the two seas is about 200 miles.

Make it a habit to look at the "net weight" marked on the package of salt you buy. It will pay you always to insist on the 2 pound (32 ounce) Worcester Ivory Salt package.

Wisconsin's Fish Crop

The Wisconsin conservation department estimates, from tabulation of the catch on a typical lake, that the annual yield of fish from its waters is 18 pounds per acre, the National Wildlife federation reports. This does not take trout streams into consideration. Applying the estimate to the total acreage of inland lakes in Wisconsin, the season's fish crop would be 18,000,000 pounds. Eastern Ontario estimates that a muskellunge is worth $250 in tourist trade. Wisconsin is a great muskellunge state. "As for the cash value of our fish, anybody is entitled to figure it out to suit himself," says Conservation Director H. W. McKenzie. "But the total figure certainly is enormous."

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

Retriever

Greenville, S. C.—State Rep. A. M. Hawkins and several friends while cleaning out their favorite fishing hole, threw a stick of dynamite into the water.

A dog jumped in, retrieved the stick and started returning it to the fisherman. They ran. The dog followed—until it was blown to bits.

Dog Seek Dog

Crouch, Idaho—State prison guards lost a bloodhound. They were at a loss how to find him.

Then a guard had an idea: "Get another bloodhound."

It worked.

Mayor's Comeback

Centerville, Ia.—Mayor T. J. McIntire, who gets $30 a month, asked the city council for a raise.

The council replied that his is a "part time job."

Today a new sign adorned his office entrance—"Office hours 9 a. m. to 10 a. m."

"That," the mayor added, "is exactly what I am going to do."

Seniors' Angels

Decatur, Neb.—Tops with 31 Decatur high school seniors are Mr. and Mrs. Ben Evans who maintain an intense interest in school work.

Graduation exercises were almost over when Superintendent H. S. Packwood gave each senior a sealed envelope. In each envelope was a $5 bill, gift of the Evans.

20 Different Elements Used in Making Steel

About 20 different elements, ranging alphabetically from aluminum to zirconium, are used today in various combinations and proportions in the manufacture of both plain carbon and alloy steels.

Some are used because of the specific properties which they impart to steel when they alloy with it, that is, dissolve in the iron, or when they combine with carbon, wholly or in part, to form compounds called carbides, says Steel Facts. Others are used because of their beneficial effects in ridding the steel impurities or in rendering impurities harmless. A third group is used to counteract harmful oxides or gases in the steel. The elements of this latter group are merely fluxes or scavengers and do not remain in the steel to any great extent after the steel solidifies. Some elements fall into more than one of the aforementioned groups.

Most of the elements are introduced into steel in the form of ferro-alloys, alloys of iron and some other element or elements (carbon excepted) made especially for use as raw material in the manufacture of steel. Ferro-alloys are used because many of the pure metals are costly to obtain, there is no necessity for iron-free metals when they are to be added to steel, and some elements, such as manganese and titanium, are difficult to extract from their ores without the presence of some helpful agent such as iron. The part played by iron in the ferro-alloy, therefore, is primarily that of a vehicle for carrying the desired elements.

One Inch of Rainfall Is a Lot of Water

Rainfall is measured in inches, as we know. But exactly what does an inch of rain represent? Doesn't sound like much, does it?

Here are some comparative figures: One gallon of water weighs 10 pounds and would cover about two square feet of surface with a layer one inch thick. To cover a square mile of the earth's surface with a layer of rain one inch thick needs 120,000,000 pounds of water, or 12,000,000 gallons—which is a lot of water.

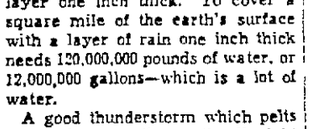

A good thunderstorm which pelts water down on the earth all night long will result in perhaps a half-inch of rain. If the storm covers a hundred thousand square miles before it wears itself out it will therefore deliver to the earth 600,000,000,000 gallons of water.

Lest this seem a considerable amount let us think of the Khasia hills in India, which is reputed to receive the heaviest rainfall in the world. The average is over 600 inches of rain per year, or 7,000,000 gallons of water per square mile.

Hair-Raising

Johannesburg (AP)—Descendants of Huguenots (French Protestants)) who settled in South Africa 250 years ago will wear "Huguenot beards" during the anniversary celebrations of the settlers' arrival.

Sea of Galilee

The Sea of Galilee, a body of fresh water 13 miles long by seven miles wide, or approximately the size of Staten Island in New York bay, is 700 feet below the level of the sea. The Jordan carries its overflow to the Dead sea, a body of salt water, 1,300 feet below sea level, from which there is no overflow. The distance between the two seas is about 200 miles.

PRIMER OF DEMOCRACY

In an address on "The Constitution of the United States," Judge Florence E. Allen a few weeks ago urged that every child in the public schools of this country learn the Declaration of Independence, the Preamble to the Constitution, the Bill of Rights, the Gettysburg Address and the Multi-lateral Pact for the Renunciation of War. She believes that thorough understanding of those great documents would mean understanding of our country, our government, our democracy and the means by which it could be preserved and a lasting peace built.

The Lorain, Ohio, Journal has acted upon her suggestion in a useful way. It has published a leaflet, easily read, which contains not only the five items named by Judge Allen, but also the Monroe Doctrine and the paragraph from President Lincoln's inaugural address beginning, "With malice toward none." There are, in addition, the words of "The Star-Spangled Banner," Van Dyke's "America for Me," the oath of allegiance taken by naturalized citizens and the pledge to the flag used in many schools and young people's groups. The code of the flag and other interesting bits of information, such as holidays and names of Presidents, are included.

The Journal has distributed this leaflet, dedicated to "freedom, tolerance and democracy," to school children, its readers and to others who request it.

Here is a newspaper "promotion" plan which promotes intelligent patriotism along with good-will. It is a work which could be widely imitated with benefit to the whole country.

CIVIC GREATNESS

Members of the Chicago Association of Commerce have been doing some soul-searching. They plan to build a "greater Chicago" and they wisely recognize that they need first to know what is wrong now before they prepare a program. One chief trouble, according to a member, is the lack of young leaders, good citizens who accept responsibility for good city government.

Chicago, says this critic, along with a number of other American cities, became great in an era when the public regarded participation in public affairs as an honorable activity. Today the "good citizen" leaves public affairs in the hands of the professional politician and the paid lobbyist, without choosing the politician carefully and without checking on the methods and purposes of the lobbyist.

There is much truth in that view, although other factors entered into the rapid rise of Chicago and sister cities. The growth of the country, the opening of the west, the coming of the railroads, the expansion of industry all helped to build great cities. There were, even then, politicians and lobbyists whose purpose was something less than pure.

Yet the builders of the future Chicago are right in maintaining that civic responsibility on the part of all citizens is essential. Promoting general welfare requires civic spirit, cooperation and intelligent grasp of civic problems.

THE HOME OF ISRAEL

The British plan announced for Palestine in the government's recent "white paper" has fallen heavily upon the Jews of all the world. It naturally arouses the most active protest in the Holy Land itself, where half a million patriotic Jews have been working, with notable courage and success until now, to redeem their historic home and provide at least a spiritual home for world Jewry.

As anyone knows who has followed that remarkable enterprise, the Jews migrating to Palestine since the World War have shown great pioneer energy and talent, even in agriculture, under very difficult conditions. They have made deserts blossom again as the rose. Their work there is said to rival that of our American pioneers on western arid lands. They have shown capacity for self-government and all the normal activities of energetic, progressive settlers.

More than that, the restoration of so large a part of Palestine by typical Jews of many lands has provided a sort of spiritual home for this race scattered throughout the world, at a time when persecution, exile and uncertainty make such a mental refuge very important. If harassed Jews cannot even have the cold comfort of a dream-home, they are lost indeed.

NO BANNED MUSIC

If most of the 500,000 members of the National Federation of Music Clubs agree with their president, Mrs. Vincent Hilles Ober, there will be no ban by them on foreign music. Hostile action, says Mrs. Ober, has been urged again and again by persons who believe that in these times we should stick to American music and American composers.

"That policy would be the most disastrous form of chauvinism," she reminds us. "Even under conditions likely to lead to extremes abroad, neither France nor England is banning music of other lands."

It is left for such regimes as Hitler's in Germany and Mussolini's in Italy to exclude foreign art. The Nazis go farther, excluding even great native music, literature and other art if it has been created by a genius whose race they disapprove or whose general thinking is too liberal for their ideology.

This is the greatest sort of folly. Even though individual Americans here and there would practise it, the idea should be rejected by the mass of intelligent Americans in all walks of life.

BUTTERED DUELISTS

Something Cervantes didn't think of when he wrote "Don Quixote" is described in the news from Buenos Aires. Two indignant gentlemen of that city had a duel. It took place indoors, but with the usual trappings of such affairs—referee, seconds, ten paces between duelists, and so on.

There were also a few trappings not customary in duels. The principals wore raincoats to protect their clothing. The weapons were pats of butter which the fighters hurled at each other. Each was allowed a certain number of the missiles which, however firm they may have been at the start, soon melted in the warm room and trickled down the walls as the two men, honor satisfied, shook hands and were reconciled.

This is no way to treat either good butter or good walls, but it suggests the possibilities of working off a "mad" without suffering or inflicting more serious injuries.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

BACKACHE CAUSES MUCH DISABILITY

Backache is not a disease but a symptom—often an outstanding solitary symptom. The patient seeks advice not alone for the pain but on account of his inability to work. It accounts therefore not only for much irritability but also for much disability, frequently in the most muscular and robust laborers as well as in many office workers. I believe there is no one condition which produces more disability and economic loss.

I am quoting Dr. Edgar Lorrington Gilcreest, San Francisco, in Annals of Surgery. Most of us are of the opinion that the common cold causes most disability—absence from work—but as a cause of irritability and disability together, I am inclined to agree with Dr. Gilcreest as I spent nearly a year off my feet with a low back and hip pain—due to strain. I could not get on my feet without pain and I was so irritable that I didn't even like the way my small youngster played on the floor; I wanted to get out of bed and show her the proper way to play.

While many physicians, including myself, believe that most cases of pain and disability in lower back, hip, and down the leg are due to infection—teeth or tonsils mostly—Dr. Gilcreest believes that acute and chronic sprain are responsible for the greatest number of low back aches, with infection next, and sometimes a combination of injury and infection present in the same individual.

When the pain is due to injury, the patient can usually lie down, adopt a certain position, and be practically free of pain. When the pain is due to infection, the patient becomes worse on lying down and often gets some relief from the pain by walking or other exercise.

When you have a low back pain extending into hip, try to remember if pain came on suddenly when you were lifting an object, or turning your body suddenly or had made a misstep. If so, you may require manipulation to bring bones of joint or joints back into place with application of a supporting belt. Often the belt is all that is necessary.

If pain came on slowly, gets worse at night but is better when you are on your feet, you should see your physician and dentist.

Remember, you may have both a strain and infection at the same time.

Williamson Gives Reasons for Vote On Albany Probe

PLINY W. WILLIAMSON
Counsellor at Law
115 Broadway, New York
23 May, 1939

Dear Mr. Netter:

I am in receipt of your letter of the 22nd, in which you ask me to state my reasons for voting against the resolution for the investigation of Albany County. Of course, I am answerable to my district for my vote. But I have no objection to giving an answer to your inquiry.

Bear in mind that the resolution under review was introduced March 6. No vote was taken thereon in the Assembly until May 10. The resolution was not brought up for vote in the Senate until the last hours of the session. The delay of two months in its consideration did not increase its importance.

You know how rushed the legislature always is in the last week of its session. It is not easy to recall matters pertaining to various measures that are considered the last few days. To the best of my recollection however, the three principal grounds on which an investigation was urged in the Senate were:

1. Inequitable tax assessments;
2. Exclusive beer privileges to one political group;
3. Voting frauds.

Now we have had inequitable tax assessments in Westchester county. But we settled the questions with the judicial machinery that had been set up for that purpose. There was no charge than any Albany judge, serving in tax matters, was corrupt and if there were such a charge, an impeachment proceeding was indicated, not a legislative investigation. As for the exclusive beer privilege, I can see no reason why that should be the subject of legislative inquiry. The charge of voting frauds was very serious and state-wide in its effect. That there was a just basis for such charge is shown by the results of the trials held before Mr. Justice John MacCrate, a Supreme Court Justice of the Second Department, sent to Albany to try those cases. Numerous convictions had resulted. This morning's papers carry the news of further convictions. But no one has intimated that these trials are not properly conducted; in fact, Judge MacCrate has been highly praised for his work. Should there be a failure in these vote fraud prosecutions, then obviously an investigation is essential.

Even if such an investigation be ordered in the future, it is necessary to consider the financial cost. That cost is borne by the people of the state and not by Albany county. The investigation resolution carried no appropriation. The sum of $250,000 had been suggested, just to institute the investigation. Starting with such a sum, it was freely predicted that the full cost might run two or three times that amount.

Since I have served in the Senate, I have insisted on the reduction of the cost of state government. Each year I opposed the constantly mounting increase in such cost. Heretofore I have refused to vote for the Governor's budget. In taking that stand, I have usually been alone, without any active support even from the citizens of my own county. This year the public is thoroughly aroused against the misuse of tax funds. And as long as I am in the Senate, I shall continue to insist that tax moneys shall be treated with the same care and consideration as trust funds, no expenditures to be made unless essential to the public service.

Very truly yours,
PLINY W. WILLIAMSON

Editor's Note: Thomas E. Dewey, Republican candidate for governor in last fall's campaign exposed conditions in Albany, which were widely publicized and broadcast. The charges he made against the Albany political machine have not been forgotten by the electorate.

It is true that the trials before Justice John MacCrate have resulted in sending small fry to jail. But what about the higher-ups?

If the appropriations bill calling for $250,000 to finance a complete and thorough investigation of all phases of the Albany situation was too large, Senator Williamson could have called for an amendment lowering that figure.

Federal Communications Order May Mean Fascist Censorship of Press as Well as the Radio

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(By DAVID LAWRENCE)

Washington, May 25—The Federal Communications Commission has just made a blunder which, if uncorrected, can mean the beginning of a Fascist censorship of the press as well as the radio in America. The action taken, namely the ordering of radio stations to broadcast only international programs of "good will," is a form of regulation by the government of what shall or shall not be said over the radio.

This restriction is contrary to what President Roosevelt himself promised on May 9 in a public statement in which he limited the function of government as to radio merely "to such controls of operation as are necessary to prevent complete confusion on the air." He then added significantly:

"In all other respects the radio is as free as the press."

Mr. Roosevelt, in his brief comment, repeated what the Supreme Court of the United States has said. When the scope of federal regulation of radio came before it, Chief Justice Hughes made it clear in a unanimous decision that the government's power over radio related to allocation of facilities. Congress, moreover, does not recognize the right of the Federal Communications Commission to deal with the content of radio programs, unless, of course, they run counter to the customary laws of libel or the dissemination of obscene or fraudulent matter.

If now, however, a governmental commission may say what is or is not international good will, censorship in fact exists. For there are differences of opinion as to what constitutes good will. During the recent civil war in Spain, had the same rule been operative, one faction in America might have insisted that radio broadcasts from New York designed to reach the Spanish people were not "good will" and another might have insisted that the broadcasts were a splendid moral support.

The power of the federal government to limit the freedom of speech or of the press has a background of established precedents, but it is quite possible that, if radio opens up now a new avenue of governmental regulation, the President's public comment of May 9 may come to mean that in all respects the press is just as free as radio.

For it is a short step for the federal government to contend that, because newspapers carry second class mail, they can be regulated as to their content. The supreme court has always rejected such an interpretation, but suppose the post office department, acting on a request from some other government department, should say that all editorials or printed articles which do not tend to promote "good will" should be prohibited from publication in newspapers or magazines exported to foreign countries. Would that not be on all fours, so far as governmental power is concerned, with the latest action of the Federal Communications Commission?

The commission has made it clear in its public announcement that radio stations which do not obey the order will possibly lose their licenses. So also an arbitrary government could say that all newspapers which do not conform to the government's ideas of what constitutes good will in published articles shall lose second class mail privileges.

Whatever concerns the regulation of the contents of radio programs concerns equally the contents of newspapers. It can hardly be said that radio is a different art. For, today, broadcasting stations are used to transmit by radio the copies of what are known as facsimile newspapers. Likewise, television comes through radio broadcasting stations, and, if the Federal Communications Commission obtains the right to censor what is said in international programs by threatening to discontinue a license, it can do so with respect to television, too. This means that speakers can be kept from public appearances in any form of radio facilities if their ideas of "good will" do not correspond to those of the government censors in Washington.

It would have been a simple matter for the communications commission to have transmitted as a matter of patriotism any request from the department of state to radio stations broadcasting international programs. In the period of the World War, the entire American press operated on that very kind of informal voluntary basis. The same end would have been obtained by asking and not ordering radio stations or threatening them with loss of licenses.

As it is, the case is one which doubtless will attract the attention of the American Civil Liberties Committee, which has done yeoman work in preventing reactionary influences from cutting down the opportunities of liberal expression identified with freedom of speech in America. An injunction suit against the commission, asking the courts to restrain the commission from applying any such order to a radio station, might be one way of getting the issue decided, for it is one of the most important things that have happened since radio began to be regulated. It is hardly an accidental move, because, for the last three years, various members of the commission here have in public speeches indicated their belief that the commission has a legal right to censor programs, or that Congress can order censorship just because wave lengths are licensed by the federal government. So, also, are second class mail facilities a government privilege, but it has never been abused with the consent of the courts.

Will Conquer Great Desert

Waters of Rio Grande Soon Will Flow Into Three Southwestern States.

DENVER.—Conquest of America's great southwestern desert—started 400 years ago by Spanish explorers—is under way again, this time for a prize more valuable than the fabulous gold sought by the helmeted Conquistadores.

Ratification by Texas, Colorado and New Mexico of a compact apportioning the flow of the great Rio Grande opened the way for expansion of thousands of acres in farm lands that line the 1,800-mile-long river valley.

Guns and lances have no part in the modern conquest of the Southwest—rather the weapons will be dams, reservoirs and irrigation canals. The result will produce a fortune in tillable land far surpassing the wildest dreams of the conquering Spaniards when they marched northward from Mexico centuries ago.

Ratification Up to Congress.

Only the further ratification by congress is necessary to make effective the tri-state compact permitting actual work on a $50,000,000 program for construction of dams, power plants, diversion canals and reservoirs at various points on the river's course.

Hydro-electric, irrigation and flood control benefits will improve an area comparable in size to Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut combined.

Starting as a trout stream in the two-mile-high snowfields of the San Juan range in southern Colorado, the river flows through sand dunes and the volcanic badlands of New Mexico, runs placidly to El Paso and continues its lazy way after plunging out of Santa Helena canyon just southeast of the Texas city. Near its mouth, the river streams through the rich citrus farms of southern Texas.

Fulfillment of the Rio Grande compact was the result of more than 50 years of work by water experts, engineers, and the governments of the three states. The treaty provides yearly quantities of water that must be delivered at the Colorado-New Mexico boundary and the amount that New Mexico must deliver to Texas. It limits the amount of water that may be stored during various stages of the river.

Studied by Engineers.

Army engineers already were studying the proposed Wagon Wheel Gap reservoir which would water the San Luis valley of southern Colorado. This $14,000,000 dam and its companion projects would supplement the present development of approximately 350,000 acres of the fertile valley. Flood control and power benefits also would accrue from the completed project.

Power for Albuquerque, Santa Fe and other northern and central New Mexico communities would be the product of a proposed dam near the Colorado-New Mexico state line. This structure also would be used to harness flood waters that annually flood the lower New Mexico valley regions causing thousands of dollars damage.

A projected series of slit reservoirs, dikes, canals and channel-deepening projects in the south central section of New Mexico would cost approximately $10,000,000. Value of bordering farmlands would be doubled by this work.

Farther south, the Elephant Butte hydro-electric power plant and dam would be expanded and work completed for extended irrigation facilities.

Seven in Japan Attain a Yearly Income of Million

TOKYO.—Seven persons in Japan have incomes of more than a million dollars a year.

The exact income of the seven was not given in the finance department statistics, which showed that the largest tax-paying group was in the bracket earning about $400 a year.

The seven persons in the $1,000,000,000 bracket are from three families, not listed by name, but presumably the Mitsuis, Mitsubishis and Sumitomos.

Eight families are included in the 15 individuals earning between $550,000 and $1,000,000 annually.

Thirty-five families cover the 48 individuals in the bracket between $275,000 and $550,000.

The group earning between $325 and $400 a year is composed of 340,872 persons from 79,593 families.

Income taxes reach into the low incomes in Japan and a person earning $275 annually is subject to a levy of 10 per cent. There are 40,929 in this group.

FALCON READY TO RESCUE TRAPPED SQUALUS CREW

The crew of the navy's submarine rescue ship, Falcon, is shown in this closeup airview as they prepared to lower the big diving bell for divers to attach to the submarine Squalus, sunk on the bottom of the Atlantic near Portsmouth, N. H., with 59 men aboard. Seven men were rescued shortly after the bell was lowered, the first actual rescue in history from such a depth as 240 feet being accomplished in almost record speed—less than five hours after a diver first touched the sunken craft.

HOW SEVEN WERE RESCUED FROM TRAPPED SQUALUS

First Gas Mask Made By Londoner in 1854

It has just been discovered by the Bulletin of the Imperial Institute that the first practical gas mask was invented by a Dr. Stenhouse in 1854, and its manufacture placed in the hands of the instrument makers of St. Bartholomew's hospital, London. It was intended for physicians and nurses as a protection against air communicable diseases. On a back shelf of the hospital museum, what is believed to be the only specimen in existence was found.

In a thin copper sheet, padded with velvet and shaped to cover the nose and mouth, were inset two fine wire gauzes, one-eighth inch to one-quarter inch apart, with charcoal between. The respirator was held in position by a stout elastic band passing round the back of the head, and was designed "to absorb and destroy any miasmata or infectious particles present in the air in the case of fever and cholera hospitals, and of districts infected with ague, yellow fever and similar diseases."

Dr. Stenhouse also suggested that "persons living in pestiliferous areas might make their houses as airtight as possible," and admit air only through charcoal filters.

"It is a pity," the Bulletin comments, "that so much valuable work should have been overlooked in the period of emergency which arose some 60-odd years later, during the early part of the World war."

Old Letters Sometimes Carry Valuable Stamps

One frequently hears stories of rare stamp finds in old accumulations of mail. Usually the stories are not very well authenticated. There must be some interesting items still hidden away, but most old desks and trunks of letters have been pretty well ransacked by juvenile collectors.

Still, if you are so fortunate as to have an attic in the family, it would be interesting to have a look at the old letters. It might possibly pay. Should you find a five-cent brown stamp of the year 1861 with the head of Jefferson on it, which someone forgot to use, you will never again scold Aunt Emma for saving old papers. The stamp is catalogued at $2,250.

A one-cent indigo of the same vintage (head of Franklin) is worth $3,500, while an unused 12-cent black (head of Washington) calls for $7,000. But they must be the first issue of this series, which was on very thin paper. Later ones are on thick paper and are low in value.

Maybe there is a New Haven, Conn., stamped envelope of 1845, a five-cent blue stamp on a buff envelope—one of those tiresome letters of advice Great-Great-Aunt Hetty used to write to her nephews. Her advice was valuable: that stamped envelope is worth $10,000! —Commentator.

Gretna Green Marriage? Here's Origin of Phrase

Gretna Green is a village in Dumfries, Scotland, near the English border. In 1754 Lord Hardwicke's act abolishing clandestine marriages went into force. Previous to that time eloping couples were usually married in the old Fleet prison in London. Gretna Green, as the nearest village on the Scotch side, became notorious as the place where such couples in England went to take advantage of the greater ease with which ceremonies could be performed under the laws of Scotland. The law required merely that the parties declare in the presence of witnesses their desire to marry. Most of the ceremonies at Gretna Green were performed by the blacksmith, although the tollman, the ferryman, and in fact almost anybody, might officiate. More than 200 couples were married in one year at the tollhouse alone. Thus Gretna Green became, as one writer puts it, the resort of all "amorous couples whose union the prudence of parents or guardians prohibited." Gretna Green ceased to function as a marriage mill in 1856, when a law was passed making a marriage invalid unless one of the parties had resided in Scotland at least three weeks. But the term "Gretna Green marriage," meaning a runaway marriage, still survives.

The number of maple trees tapped this year in the ten most important maple producing states is estimated at 9,670,000, as compared with 11,672,000 tapped last year. In New York the number was 3,018,000 trees, or two per cent more than last year.

Engineers Gives Lighting History Before Rotarians

The wonderful strides made in lighting from the earliest times to the present day were demonstrated to the members of Rotary at their noon luncheon meeting Wednesday at the Governor Clinton. The demonstration and lecture was given by R. G. Sauer, division engineer with the Westinghouse Co., who came under the sponsorship of the Canfield Supply Co.

Speaking on "Spanning the Horizon of Light," Mr. Sauer told of the first advance made by early man when he developed the torch, then came successively the candle, crude affairs at first, the oil lamps of various kinds, including kerosene, gas lighting and finally electric lighting.

It was in the early part of the 19th century that Sir Humphry Davy produced the arc light, using a battery of 2,000 cells, but it was not until around 1844 that it came into practical use. Then in 1878 Paul Jablochkoff, a Russian, produced the electric candle and from that time progress and change have made wonderful strides.

Mr. Sauer showed two electric lamps, one the largest commercial lamp made by his company, a 10,000 watt affair used in moving picture studios, the other the smallest lamp, rated at about one watt and which could hardly be seen when he held it up to view. The latter was used by surgeons for exploratory work inside the human body.

Various lamps were shown, all apparently the same, but when lighted giving widely differing effects. One, it was stated, would burn for a long term of years, but gave little light, another was the brightest made, but had a very brief span of life. The practical one was an intermediate lamp, which gave a good degree of light and was fairly durable, burning for something like 1,000 hours.

The ultra violet lamp was shown and interesting experiments made, one of them showing how a piece of cloth, exposed to its ray, would retain its fluorescence for some time afterward. In another a set of playing cards exposed to one type of lamp showed up entirely different when placed before another type.

There were experiments with and demonstrations of neon tubes, sodium and mercury lamps and polarized light.

Mayor Wendell Phillips of Port Jervis, a guest at Rotary Wednesday, commenting on the sodium lamp demonstrated, remarked that the sodium street lamps on Park avenue, Port Jervis, were the first of such lamps ever used in connection with an alternating current. There are 25 of these lamps, which were erected in 1933, the installation being in the nature of an experiment. One advantage of the sodium light is that it give visibility at a greater distance and numbers on a license plate of other object can be more easily distinguished.

At the business meeting Wednesday Benjamin Adams, of 189 Pine street, was elected a member of the club. President Eugene Pembleton spoke interestingly of his stay at the Westchester Biltmore Club, where representatives of the various Rotary Clubs in this district met May 18 and 19 to select a district governor. Another item of business was the naming of a dozen or so members of the golfing fraternity to visit Poughkeepsie for a match with the Poughkeepsie Club. Gus Modjeska has charge of the team.

Port Ewen, May 25—The Dorcas Society held its regular meeting last evening in the Reformed Church house. The chairman of the committee for the heirloom exhibit reported it a great success, thus removing the necessity for the usual August fair. After the refreshments were served Mrs. Frank White introduced Miss Finetta Norton, who comes to the county from Girl Scout National Headquarters to reorganize the work throughout Ulster county. Miss Norton spoke briefly of the aims of scouting and the hope to revive it here in Port Ewen. It is hoped that interest may be kindled to organize a troop committee and obtain leaders so that scouting may get under way in the fall.

Saugerties Sunday School Association Holds Meeting

The Rev. John J. De Boer, Ph. D., principal of Voorhees College, Vellore, India, addressed 150 delegates representing a dozen Sunday schools of the Town of Saugerties Sunday School Association, assembled at their spring convention at the Blue Mountain Reformed Church May 19.

Dr. De Boer related stories of his experience in his extensive journeys in the Far East and in Palestine, showing how western influences and western articles, even to soaps and tooth brushes, along with western Christianity, had penetrated to remote villages in the Orient.

The speaker has been intimate with Gandhi for many years and frequently visited him in his little mud hut, from which Gandhi directs the policies of the Indian congress.

PRIMER OF DEMOCRACY

In an address on "The Constitution of the United States," Judge Florence E. Allen a few weeks ago urged that every child in the public schools of this country learn the Declaration of Independence, the Preamble to the Constitution, the Bill of Rights, the Gettysburg Address and the Multi-lateral Pact for the Renunciation of War. She believes that thorough understanding of those great documents would mean understanding of our country, our government, our democracy and the means by which it could be preserved and a lasting peace built.

The Lorain, Ohio, Journal has acted upon her suggestion in a useful way. It has published a leaflet, easily read, which contains not only the five items named by Judge Allen, but also the Monroe Doctrine and the paragraph from President Lincoln's inaugural address beginning, "With malice toward none." There are, in addition, the words of "The Star-Spangled Banner," Van Dyke's "America for Me," the oath of allegiance taken by naturalized citizens and the pledge to the flag used in many schools and young people's groups. The code of the flag and other interesting bits of information, such as holidays and names of Presidents, are included.

The Journal has distributed this leaflet, dedicated to "freedom, tolerance and democracy," to school children, its readers and to others who request it.

Here is a newspaper "promotion" plan which promotes intelligent patriotism along with good-will. It is a work which could be widely imitated with benefit to the whole country.

CIVIC GREATNESS

Members of the Chicago Association of Commerce have been doing some soul-searching. They plan to build a "greater Chicago" and they wisely recognize that they need first to know what is wrong now before they prepare a program. One chief trouble, according to a member, is the lack of young leaders, good citizens who accept responsibility for good city government.

Chicago, says this critic, along with a number of other American cities, became great in an era when the public regarded participation in public affairs as an honorable activity. Today the "good citizen" leaves public affairs in the hands of the professional politician and the paid lobbyist, without choosing the politician carefully and without checking on the methods and purposes of the lobbyist.

There is much truth in that view, although other factors entered into the rapid rise of Chicago and sister cities. The growth of the country, the opening of the west, the coming of the railroads, the expansion of industry all helped to build great cities. There were, even then, politicians and lobbyists whose purpose was something less than pure.

Yet the builders of the future Chicago are right in maintaining that civic responsibility on the part of all citizens is essential. Promoting general welfare requires civic spirit, cooperation and intelligent grasp of civic problems.

THE HOME OF ISRAEL

The British plan announced for Palestine in the government's recent "white paper" has fallen heavily upon the Jews of all the world. It naturally arouses the most active protest in the Holy Land itself, where half a million patriotic Jews have been working, with notable courage and success until now, to redeem their historic home and provide at least a spiritual home for world Jewry.

As anyone knows who has followed that remarkable enterprise, the Jews migrating to Palestine since the World War have shown great pioneer energy and talent, even in agriculture, under very difficult conditions. They have made deserts blossom again as the rose. Their work there is said to rival that of our American pioneers on western arid lands. They have shown capacity for self-government and all the normal activities of energetic, progressive settlers.

More than that, the restoration of so large a part of Palestine by typical Jews of many lands has provided a sort of spiritual home for this race scattered throughout the world, at a time when persecution, exile and uncertainty make such a mental refuge very important. If harassed Jews cannot even have the cold comfort of a dream-home, they are lost indeed.

NO BANNED MUSIC

If most of the 500,000 members of the National Federation of Music Clubs agree with their president, Mrs. Vincent Hilles Ober, there will be no ban by them on foreign music. Hostile action, says Mrs. Ober, has been urged again and again by persons who believe that in these times we should stick to American music and American composers.

"That policy would be the most disastrous form of chauvinism," she reminds us. "Even under conditions likely to lead to extremes abroad, neither France nor England is banning music of other lands."

It is left for such regimes as Hitler's in Germany and Mussolini's in Italy to exclude foreign art. The Nazis go farther, excluding even great native music, literature and other art if it has been created by a genius whose race they disapprove or whose general thinking is too liberal for their ideology.

This is the greatest sort of folly. Even though individual Americans here and there would practise it, the idea should be rejected by the mass of intelligent Americans in all walks of life.

BUTTERED DUELISTS

Something Cervantes didn't think of when he wrote "Don Quixote" is described in the news from Buenos Aires. Two indignant gentlemen of that city had a duel. It took place indoors, but with the usual trappings of such affairs—referee, seconds, ten paces between duelists, and so on.

There were also a few trappings not customary in duels. The principals wore raincoats to protect their clothing. The weapons were pats of butter which the fighters hurled at each other. Each was allowed a certain number of the missiles which, however firm they may have been at the start, soon melted in the warm room and trickled down the walls as the two men, honor satisfied, shook hands and were reconciled.

This is no way to treat either good butter or good walls, but it suggests the possibilities of working off a "mad" without suffering or inflicting more serious injuries.

BACKACHE CAUSES MUCH DISABILITY

Backache is not a disease but a symptom—often an outstanding solitary symptom. The patient seeks advice not alone for the pain but on account of his inability to work. It accounts therefore not only for much irritability but also for much disability, frequently in the most muscular and robust laborers as well as in many office workers. I believe there is no one condition which produces more disability and economic loss.

I am quoting Dr. Edgar Lorrington Gilcreest, San Francisco, in Annals of Surgery. Most of us are of the opinion that the common cold causes most disability—absence from work—but as a cause of irritability and disability together, I am inclined to agree with Dr. Gilcreest as I spent nearly a year off my feet with a low back and hip pain—due to strain. I could not get on my feet without pain and I was so irritable that I didn't even like the way my small youngster played on the floor; I wanted to get out of bed and show her the proper way to play.

While many physicians, including myself, believe that most cases of pain and disability in lower back, hip, and down the leg are due to infection—teeth or tonsils mostly—Dr. Gilcreest believes that acute and chronic sprain are responsible for the greatest number of low back aches, with infection next, and sometimes a combination of injury and infection present in the same individual.

When the pain is due to injury, the patient can usually lie down, adopt a certain position, and be practically free of pain. When the pain is due to infection, the patient becomes worse on lying down and often gets some relief from the pain by walking or other exercise.

When you have a low back pain extending into hip, try to remember if pain came on suddenly when you were lifting an object, or turning your body suddenly or had made a misstep. If so, you may require manipulation to bring bones of joint or joints back into place with application of a supporting belt. Often the belt is all that is necessary.

If pain came on slowly, gets worse at night but is better when you are on your feet, you should see your physician and dentist.

Remember, you may have both a strain and infection at the same time.

PLINY W. WILLIAMSON
115 Broadway, New York
23 May, 1939

Dear Mr. Netter:

I am in receipt of your letter of the 22nd, in which you ask me to state my reasons for voting against the resolution for the investigation of Albany County. Of course, I am answerable to my district for my vote. But I have no objection to giving an answer to your inquiry.

Bear in mind that the resolution under review was introduced March 6. No vote was taken thereon in the Assembly until May 10. The resolution was not brought up for vote in the Senate until the last hours of the session. The delay of two months in its consideration did not increase its importance.

You know how rushed the legislature always is in the last week of its session. It is not easy to recall matters pertaining to various measures that are considered the last few days. To the best of my recollection however, the three principal grounds on which an investigation was urged in the Senate were:

1. Inequitable tax assessments;
2. Exclusive beer privileges to one political group;
3. Voting frauds.

Now we have had inequitable tax assessments in Westchester county. But we settled the questions with the judicial machinery that had been set up for that purpose. There was no charge than any Albany judge, serving in tax matters, was corrupt and if there were such a charge, an impeachment proceeding was indicated, not a legislative investigation. As for the exclusive beer privilege, I can see no reason why that should be the subject of legislative inquiry. The charge of voting frauds was very serious and state-wide in its effect. That there was a just basis for such charge is shown by the results of the trials held before Mr. Justice John MacCrate, a Supreme Court Justice of the Second Department, sent to Albany to try those cases. Numerous convictions had resulted. This morning's papers carry the news of further convictions. But no one has intimated that these trials are not properly conducted; in fact, Judge MacCrate has been highly praised for his work. Should there be a failure in these vote fraud prosecutions, then obviously an investigation is essential.

Even if such an investigation be ordered in the future, it is necessary to consider the financial cost. That cost is borne by the people of the state and not by Albany county. The investigation resolution carried no appropriation. The sum of $250,000 had been suggested, just to institute the investigation. Starting with such a sum, it was freely predicted that the full cost might run two or three times that amount.

Since I have served in the Senate, I have insisted on the reduction of the cost of state government. Each year I opposed the constantly mounting increase in such cost. Heretofore I have refused to vote for the Governor's budget. In taking that stand, I have usually been alone, without any active support even from the citizens of my own county. This year the public is thoroughly aroused against the misuse of tax funds. And as long as I am in the Senate, I shall continue to insist that tax moneys shall be treated with the same care and consideration as trust funds, no expenditures to be made unless essential to the public service.

Very truly yours,
PLINY W. WILLIAMSON

Louis R. Netter, Esq.,
The Kingston Daily Freeman,

Editor's Note: Thomas E. Dewey, Republican candidate for governor in last fall's campaign exposed conditions in Albany, which were widely publicized and broadcast. The charges he made against the Albany political machine have not been forgotten by the electorate.

It is true that the trials before Justice John MacCrate have resulted in sending small fry to jail. But what about the higher-ups?

If the appropriations bill calling for $250,000 to finance a complete and thorough investigation of all phases of the Albany situation was too large, Senator Williamson could have called for an amendment lowering that figure.

Federal Communications Order May Mean Fascist Censorship of Press as Well as the Radio

(By DAVID LAWRENCE)

Washington, May 25—The Federal Communications Commission has just made a blunder which, if uncorrected, can mean the beginning of a Fascist censorship of the press as well as the radio in America. The action taken, namely the ordering of radio stations to broadcast only international programs of "good will," is a form of regulation by the government of what shall or shall not be said over the radio.

This restriction is contrary to what President Roosevelt himself promised on May 9 in a public statement in which he limited the function of government as to radio merely "to such controls of operation as are necessary to prevent complete confusion on the air." He then added significantly:

"In all other respects the radio is as free as the press."

Mr. Roosevelt, in his brief comment, repeated what the Supreme Court of the United States has said. When the scope of federal regulation of radio came before it, Chief Justice Hughes made it clear in a unanimous decision that the government's power over radio related to allocation of facilities. Congress, moreover, does not recognize the right of the Federal Communications Commission to deal with the content of radio programs, unless, of course, they run counter to the customary laws of libel or the dissemination of obscene or fraudulent matter.

If now, however, a governmental commission may say what is or is not international good will, censorship in fact exists. For there are differences of opinion as to what constitutes good will. During the recent civil war in Spain, had the same rule been operative, one faction in America might have insisted that radio broadcasts from New York designed to reach the Spanish people were not "good will" and another might have insisted that the broadcasts were a splendid moral support.

The power of the federal government to limit the freedom of speech or of the press has a background of established precedents, but it is quite possible that, if radio opens up now a new avenue of governmental regulation, the President's public comment of May 9 may come to mean that in all respects the press is just as free as radio.

For it is a short step for the federal government to contend that, because newspapers carry second class mail, they can be regulated as to their content. The supreme court has always rejected such an interpretation, but suppose the post office department, acting on a request from some other government department, should say that all editorials or printed articles which do not tend to promote "good will" should be prohibited from publication in newspapers or magazines exported to foreign countries. Would that not be on all fours, so far as governmental power is concerned, with the latest action of the Federal Communications Commission?

The commission has made it clear in its public announcement that radio stations which do not obey the order will possibly lose their licenses. So also an arbitrary government could say that all newspapers which do not conform to the government's ideas of what constitutes good will in published articles shall lose second class mail privileges.

Whatever concerns the regulation of the contents of radio programs concerns equally the contents of newspapers. It can hardly be said that radio is a different art. For, today, broadcasting stations are used to transmit by radio the copies of what are known as facsimile newspapers. Likewise, television comes through radio broadcasting stations, and, if the Federal Communications Commission obtains the right to censor what is said in international programs by threatening to discontinue a license, it can do so with respect to television, too. This means that speakers can be kept from public appearances in any form of radio facilities if their ideas of "good will" do not correspond to those of the government censors in Washington.

It would have been a simple matter for the communications commission to have transmitted as a matter of patriotism any request from the department of state to radio stations broadcasting international programs. In the period of the World War, the entire American press operated on that very kind of informal voluntary basis. The same end would have been obtained by asking and not ordering radio stations or threatening them with loss of licenses.

As it is, the case is one which doubtless will attract the attention of the American Civil Liberties Committee, which has done yeoman work in preventing reactionary influences from cutting down the opportunities of liberal expression identified with freedom of speech in America. An injunction suit against the commission, asking the courts to restrain the commission from applying any such order to a radio station, might be one way of getting the issue decided, for it is one of the most important things that have happened since radio began to be regulated. It is hardly an accidental move, because, for the last three years, various members of the commission here have in public speeches indicated their belief that the commission has a legal right to censor programs, or that Congress can order censorship just because wave lengths are licensed by the federal government. So, also, are second class mail facilities a government privilege, but it has never been abused with the consent of the courts.

Balloon Soundings Aid Weather Study

Use Radio in Experiments At Harvard University.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.—Radio balloon soundings of the atmosphere were the chief activity of the Harvard weather station during the last year, according to Director Charles F. Brooks of the Blue Hill observatory, at Harvard university.

Harvard's pioneer experimentation with automatic radio meteorograph balloons, for upper air soundings, after three years has resulted in widespread use of such instruments for regular weather observations.

"Our aim to find an easier, more certain and less expensive way to sound the atmosphere has been accomplished, and much sooner than we expected, when in 1935 we designed and used the first American radio-meteorograph," Brooks said.

The United States weather bureau has converted 6 of its 12 airplane stations to radio-meteorographs, or radiosondes as they now are called, and it hopes to change the other six next summer and add 13 more if congress supplies the necessary money, he said.

The army and navy have converted four stations. China has bought many Harvard radio-meteorographs; and Japan, England, India and Germany are experimenting with the Harvard instrument.

"Backed by orders now for thousands of radio-meteorographs, the manufacturers are engaging in further improvements in design on so much larger a scale than we can that we now are turning our attention mainly to studying the results obtained from the daily soundings at so many stations," Brooks said.

Duveen Is Dead At London; Noted As Art Authority

London, May 25 (AP)—Joseph Duveen, first Baron of Millbank, one of the world's best known art authorities, died at his hotel this morning after an illness of several weeks. He was 69 years old.

Starting in his father's business in 1887, Duveen amassed a large fortune buying and selling great pictures. In 1899 he married Elsie Salamon of New York.

Duveen figured in many of Andrew Mellon's acquisitions, including purchase of Raphael's Madonna for which a record price of about one million dollars was paid in 1929. In the year before Duveen paid $360,000 for Gainsborough's "The Harvest Wagon."

He also acted as dealer in the sale of Gainsborough's "Blue Boy"—now in the Huntington galleries at Pasadena, Calif.—which he bought for about $750,000.

At various times Duveen was involved in controversies over the authenticity of art objects. In two such cases he was sued for damages—charged with having said the painting "La Belle Ferroniere" was not a da Vinci and that a supposed 13th century statue of the Virgin and Child was a fake.

Will Conquer Great Desert

Waters of Rio Grande Soon Will Flow Into Three Southwestern States.

DENVER.—Conquest of America's great southwestern desert—started 400 years ago by Spanish explorers—is under way again, this time for a prize more valuable than the fabulous gold sought by the helmeted Conquistadores.

Ratification by Texas, Colorado and New Mexico of a compact apportioning the flow of the great Rio Grande opened the way for expansion of thousands of acres in farm lands that line the 1,800-mile-long river valley.

Guns and lances have no part in the modern conquest of the Southwest—rather the weapons will be dams, reservoirs and irrigation canals. The result will produce a fortune in tillable land far surpassing the wildest dreams of the conquering Spaniards when they marched northward from Mexico centuries ago.

Ratification Up to Congress.

Only the further ratification by congress is necessary to make effective the tri-state compact permitting actual work on a $50,000,000 program for construction of dams, power plants, diversion canals and reservoirs at various points on the river's course.

Hydro-electric, irrigation and flood control benefits will improve an area comparable in size to Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut combined.

Starting as a trout stream in the two-mile-high snowfields of the San Juan range in southern Colorado, the river flows through sand dunes and the volcanic badlands of New Mexico, runs placidly to El Paso and continues its lazy way after plunging out of Santa Helena canyon just southeast of the Texas city. Near its mouth, the river streams through the rich citrus farms of southern Texas.

Fulfillment of the Rio Grande compact was the result of more than 50 years of work by water experts, engineers, and the governments of the three states. The treaty provides yearly quantities of water that must be delivered at the Colorado-New Mexico boundary and the amount that New Mexico must deliver to Texas. It limits the amount of water that may be stored during various stages of the river.

Studied by Engineers.

Army engineers already were studying the proposed Wagon Wheel Gap reservoir which would water the San Luis valley of southern Colorado. This $14,000,000 dam and its companion projects would supplement the present development of approximately 350,000 acres of the fertile valley. Flood control and power benefits also would accrue from the completed project.

Power for Albuquerque, Santa Fe and other northern and central New Mexico communities would be the product of a proposed dam near the Colorado-New Mexico state line. This structure also would be used to harness flood waters that annually flood the lower New Mexico valley regions causing thousands of dollars damage.

A projected series of slit reservoirs, dikes, canals and channel-deepening projects in the south central section of New Mexico would cost approximately $10,000,000. Value of bordering farmlands would be doubled by this work.

Farther south, the Elephant Butte hydro-electric power plant and dam would be expanded and work completed for extended irrigation facilities.

Seven in Japan Attain a Yearly Income of Million

TOKYO.—Seven persons in Japan have incomes of more than a million dollars a year.

The exact income of the seven was not given in the finance department statistics, which showed that the largest tax-paying group was in the bracket earning about $400 a year.

The seven persons in the $1,000,000,000 bracket are from three families, not listed by name, but presumably the Mitsuis, Mitsubishis and Sumitomos.

Eight families are included in the 15 individuals earning between $550,000 and $1,000,000 annually.

Thirty-five families cover the 48 individuals in the bracket between $275,000 and $350,000.

The group earning between $325 and $400 a year is composed of 340,872 persons from 79,393 families.

Income taxes reach into the low incomes in Japan and a person earning $275 annually is subject to a levy of 10 per cent. There are 40,929 in this group.

Mississippi Girl Eats Her First Ice Cream Cone

MEMPHIS, TENN.—Alma Mardis, 16 years old, ate her first ice cream cone and listened to a radio for the first time. The girl, who came here from rural Mississippi, had never seen an electric light, a Christmas tree, or a movie; had never been higher up than two stories; had never even heard of an elevator, and didn't know Franklin D. Roosevelt is President. She was given shelter at the juvenile home in Memphis after arriving here penniless.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. has pledged the active participation of its 498 retail stores, 10 mail order plants and over 50,000 employes in the "buy cotton" campaign being held during National Cotton Week, which ends May 27, it was announced today by Mr. Wulp, manager of Sears' Kingston store.

Troy Record on The Albany Probe

The Troy Record in its issue of Monday, May 22, prints the following editorial anent the defeat of the resolution for an investigation of Albany county.

Depressing Exhibition

It would be easy to become very indignant over the action of the Republican majority in the legislature in shelving the proposal for an investigation of corrupt political alliances in Albany county. No doubt the nine Republican senators who cooperated in defeating the measure feel, according to their own lights, that they had excellent reason for voting as they did. Perhaps too, they felt that they were acting in the best public interest and in the interest of their constituents.

From where we sit, however, and in the absence of an ability to read their minds or examine their consciences, we do not think so. It is our firm belief that they have missed one of the greatest opportunities of their careers to render forthright public service in driving corruption out of politics.

To any right-thinking person, in the least aware of what has transpired in the capital county in recent years, their action is incomprehensible. It is also depressing, for it bodes ill for all who hoped that the days of the rule of corrupt political machines, were numbered, and that honestly could be returned to government.

By failing to authorize the probe the legislators also directed a sanguinary blow at New York's District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey. In a resounding speech in Music Hall in this city during the last gubernatoral campaign in which he was the candidate of the Republican party for governor, Mr. Dewey exposed conditions in the capital city as they had never been exposed before. The charges he made against political bossism in Albany county were not general and they were not hearsay. They were based on facts and he specified names, dates and amounts. It was a scathing denunciation and presumably he possessed the evidence.

There is no desire on the part of these newspapers to persecute or prosecute anyone, nor accuse any person falsely. We do believe, however, that enough evidence exists to warrant an investigation into conditions in Albany and to punish all who may be found guilty.

The investigation into illegal voting in Albany has uncovered enough evidence to prove widespread misuse of political power and corruption of the ballot box. One would have to be extremely gullible, however, to believe that vote-buying was the only misfeasance of the higher-ups behind the political machine in misuse of their power. And as yet none of the higher-ups have been uncovered. Certainly any investigation that confines itself to sending only the small fry to jail is not worth its cost. The Republican-controlled legislature had its opportunity to act in the interest of honesty in government, and missed. The general public can take refuge only in disillusionment— and in remembering the names of Republican senators willing to be accessories to continued corruption in Albany.

For under the law one does not distinguish between an accessory and a principal.

Your Dreams A Clue To Your Secret Self

Don't Try to "Forget" Dreams

Such a scary dream! Helen hopes to banish the frightening memory by turning on the light.

Wise, Helen, to give that dream another thought. You seemed to be standing at the top of a precipice, enjoying the view, when suddenly you fell—down, down!

A psychologist would say your dream was trying to give you a message. You've set your heart on marrying Bob against the advice of friends. But secretly you foresee trouble—a tumble from your bright hopes. Know yourself through your dreams, achieve a sound happiness.

Indeed, for all of us an understanding of dreams is important. For the unconscious mind symbolizes in dreams the secret conflicts, desires of our real selves.

Do you dream of climbing a ladder? You are ambitious at heart, but perhaps you fritter away your time. Embarrassed by a dream of appearing in public without clothes? You're really modest, possibly too shy. Or do you dream of a snake? Of prison?

Find the meanings of many such dreams in our 32-page booklet. A famous psychologist tells you how to read the messages in dream images and symbols, get light on your vital problems.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of THE MEANING OF DREAMS to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Eight Inches a Mile

The curvature of the earth is estimated to be eight inches per mile, that is, from a given point it curves eight inches for the first mile, 32 for the second, 72 inches for the third, and so on. The law is: Curvature is always equal to eight inches multiplied by the square of the number of miles from the point of contact with the earth's surface of a tangent line.

Nichols Tells What Happened on Squalus

Lieutenant Says Morale Among Personnel High During Long Hours at Sea Bottom

Chicago, May 25 (AP).—The Chicago Tribune published today a copyrighted interview with Lieut. John C. Nichols, a Chicagoan who was rescued from the United States submarine Squalus off Portsmouth, N. H.

Lieut. Nichols' account of the disaster, obtained by telephone from the Naval Base Hospital at Portsmouth, N. H., follows:

"We left the naval base at 6:30 a. m. Tuesday. We had orders to practice fast dives. At 7:45 a. m. we received our O. L. to go down. One minute later the order to submerge was given by Lieut. O. F. Naquin, the commander.

"Everything seemed to be in order. The ship dropped down perfectly. She leveled offi at 50 feet. A few minutes later we in the forward compartments had the first word that anything was wrong. The control room was informed the after-engine room was flooded.

"The Squalus began to handle heavily. An order was given to blow the tanks and ascend to the surface. The motors were stepped up to full speed.

Ship's Response Fails

"The crew worked fast, but the ship failed to respond. Communication with the rear compartments was cut off. We couldn't communicate with the engine room nor with the men in the rear torpedo room.

"Then the motors went out. With them went the lights. The Squalus began to sink. Whatever was wrong was aft. Apparently the ship was taking water by the air valves. The forward compartments were shut off, by watertight doors, from the flooded after parts.

"With no power the Squalus continued to sink. The descent seemed to be slow. We settled on the bottom. There was no great jar.

"She settled at an angle of about 10 degrees by the bow. My guess was that she was at about 210 feet from the surface.

"There was no panic among the men. All stayed at their stations. Orders were obeyed instantly. Lieut. Naquin told everybody to keep their heads. If they did, he said, everything would be all right.

"He was correct, so far as the personnel forward was concerned. The flooding had been localized and only a little water seeped in on us.

Marker Buoy Released

"Pretty soon the forward marker buoy was sent up. We knew this would give our location and bring help. Then we sat down to wait—and listen for the rescue ships. We wondered how long it would be until someone came along and found the buoy and the telephone wire atached to it.

"At 12:40 we heard the beat of the engines of the Sculpin, a sister ship. It was a great relief to all of us when she communicated with us on the phone. After that it was a question of holding out. We had great faith in the diving bell.

"The main thing was to conserve air—to use as little as possible and keep the supply pure. We purified it, when it got bad, with soda lime. When we had to, we released some of our oxygen.

"The men didn't talk much, nor move around a lot. Talking and moving both burn up oxygen. As it was, our supply stayed in excellent shape until just before the rescuers arrived.

"But we listened. After the telephone line went out we waited for the clank of divers' feet above us, and we tapped out messages in code on the iron above us.

"It was cold there on the bottom. In the forward torpedo room, where I was stationed, the temperature ranged between 34 and 36 degrees. Aside from the cold we were not very uncomfortable. Although the ship's power was gone, we still had lights—hanging lamps that worked on storage batteries.

Emergency Rations

"For food we had our emergency rations, but we didn't eat much. We just sat most of the time conserving strength, saving oxygen, and wondering. Most of the men stood up well physically. Two in each forward compartment—four in all—became a little sick, or perhaps just weak.

"None of us made any complaints. They didn't make any dramatic speeches. We all figured how long it would take the Falcon to arrive. We knew when she came that everything was going to be all right.

"When the bell finally was attached to the escape hatch, the men in the torpedo room were commanded to ascend first. The order included me specifically. With me went the men who seemed most nearly exhausted.

"Hope never left any of us. We knew that the rescue equipment was fine. I had seen the bell tested. Besides, we all had our Momsen lungs (individual breathing devices) and we could have attempted to get out in them if the other rescue efforts had failed.

"There is some question whether, at our depth, men could have withstood the water pressure and the cold, but the lung was still a hope."

Strawberry Festival

On June 14 the Lake Katrine Home Department will hold a strawberry festival in the Whispering Pine Grove of Mrs. John Boice on the Saugerties road, where everyone is invited to come and spend an enjoyable evening.

SUB SURVIVORS REACH PORTSMOUTH

Blanketed and bareheaded, and showing the strain of their ordeal, seven of the survivors of the ill-fated submarine Squalus arrive at Portsmouth, N. H., navy yard aboard the coast guard cutter Harriet Lane. Once ashore, the men stepped into waiting ambulances and were whisked away to Portsmouth Naval Hospital.

FALCON READY TO RESCUE TRAPPED SQUALUS CREW

The crew of the navy's submarine rescue ship, Falcon, is shown in this closeup airview as they prepared to lower the big diving bell for divers to attach to the submarine Squalus, sunk on the bottom of the Atlantic near Portsmouth, N. H., with 59 men aboard. Seven men were rescued shortly after the bell was lowered, the first actual rescue in history from such a depth as 240 feet being accomplished at almost record speed—less than five hours after a diver first touched the sunken craft.

HOW SEVEN WERE RESCUED FROM TRAPPED SQUALUS

First Gas Mask Made By Londoner in 1854

It has just been discovered by the Bulletin of the Imperial Institute that the first practical gas mask was invented by a Dr. Stenhouse in 1854, and its manufacture placed in the hands of the instrument makers of St. Bartholomew's hospital, London. It was intended for physicians and nurses as a protection against air communicable diseases. On a back shelf of the hospital museum, what is believed to be the only specimen in existence was found.

In a thin copper sheet, padded with velvet and shaped to cover the nose and mouth, were inset two fine wire gauzes, one eighth inch to one-quarter inch apart, with charcoal between. The respirator was held in position by a stout elastic band passing round the back of the head and was designed "to absorb and destroy any miasmata or infectious particles present in the air in the case of fever and cholera hospitals, and of districts infected with ague yellow fever and similar diseases."

Dr. Stenhouse also suggested that "persons living in pestiliferous areas might make their houses as airtight as possible," and admit air only through charcoal filters.

"It is a pity," the Bulletin comments, "that so much valuable work should have been overlooked in the period of emergency which arose some 60-odd years later, during the early part of the World war."

Old Letters Sometimes Carry Valuable Stamps

One frequently hears stories of rare stamp finds in old accumulations of mail. Usually the stories are not very well authenticated. There must be some interesting items still hidden away, but most old desks and trunks of letters have been pretty well ransacked by juvenile collectors.

Still, if you are so fortunate as to have an attic in the family, it would be interesting to have a look at the old letters. It might possibly pay. Should you find a five-cent brown stamp of the year 1861 with the head of Jefferson on it, which someone forgot to use, you will never again scold Aunt Emma for saving old papers. The stamp is catalogued at $2,250.

A one-cent indigo of the same vintage (head of Franklin) is worth $3,500, while an unused 12-cent black (head of Washington) calls for $7,000. But they must be the first issue of this series, which was on very thin paper. Later ones are on thick paper and are low in value.

Maybe there is a New Haven, Conn., stamped envelope of 1845, a five-cent blue stamp on a buff envelope—one of those tiresome letters of advice Great-Great-Aunt Hetty used to write to her nephews. Her advice was valuable, that stamped envelope is worth $10,000! —Commentator.

Gretna Green Marriage? Here's Origin of Phrase

Gretna Green is a village in Dumfries, Scotland near the English border. In 1754 Lord Hardwicke's act abolishing clandestine marriages went into force. Previous to that time eloping couples were usually married in the old Fleet prison in London. Gretna Green, as the nearest village on the Scotch side, became notorious as the place where such couples in England went to take advantage of the greater ease with which ceremonies could be performed under the laws of Scotland. The law required merely that the parties declare in the presence of witnesses their desire to marry. Most of the ceremonies at Gretna Green were performed by the blacksmith, although the tollman, the ferryman, and in fact almost anybody, might officiate. More than 200 couples were married in one year at the tollhouse alone. Thus Gretna Green became, as one writer puts it, the resort of all "amorous couples whose union the prudence of parents or guardians prohibited." Gretna Green ceased to function as a marriage mill in 1856, when a law was passed making a marriage invalid unless one of the parties had resided in Scotland at least three weeks. But the term "Gretna Green marriage," meaning a runaway marriage, still survives.

TWO AGAINST LOVE

by Frances Hanna

The Characters

Jocelyn Russell, beautiful heiress.

Chapter 22

Betsy's Apology

A HALF hour before supper Bob and Gretchen and Tally changed into swim-suits and splashed and swam in the warm summer surf. When the sun was half over the horizon they came out of the breakers, laughing and calling to each other.

"Race you up to the house," Bob challenged.

Jocelyn's car was in the Macks' driveway. She was waiting for them near the back door, looking smart and expensive in a suit of pale green linen, a floppy linen hat framing her vexed face, her small feet tucked into high-heeled green sandals.

"Hello, Lyn," Bob said. "I'd kiss you if I wasn't dripping."

Gretchen and Tally started on into the house.

"Just a minute, please," Jocelyn ordered. "I wish to speak to all three of you."

She held out a red hair ribbon. "Is this Betsy's?"

"Why—why, yes," Gretchen affirmed. "Where did you find it?"

"In my room. My French doll is missing—you know, Bob, the one Geoff brought me from San Francisco—and the musical powder box and my emerald bracelet. Since I found her hair ribbon on the floor beside my dressing table, I gather that Betsy took the things."

Bob looked at his wife, who appeared completely astounded. "I'm very sorry, Lyn," he said. "I'll get the things, of course, and return them to you."

Jocelyn had meant to be reasonable about the whole affair, but Tally's eyes were so scornful that she heard herself blurting:

"It isn't that the items are valuable, Bob. But the child certainly should know better than to steal. You must punish her severely so it won't happen again!"

Gretchen pushed the damp black hair off of her cheeks. "I will not punish her, Miss Russell," she declared. "I don't blame her one bit. We've always been too poor to buy her fancy dolls and other toys. The ones we gave her were cheap and shoddy. She never saw beautiful, expensive things before. She's not a thief and she knows better, but she wanted them so badly she took them anyhow, knowing she couldn't keep them and knowing she would be punished. Don't you realize she's still a baby? Only five years old? I have taught her not to take things that aren't hers . . . but even grown people sometimes forget if they are tempted enough. I'll get the things for you and I'll talk to her about it, but I refuse to spank her or let anyone else!"

Gretchen hurried into the house, Tally following. Bob looked at his sister's perturbed face.

"I'm so ashamed of you, Lyn," he said, then turned his back and slammed into the kitchen.

'Unfair'

BETSY'S misdemeanor cast a pall over the usually gay dinner table in the Macks' kitchen. Betsy herself was not present, having been confined to her room by her mother, who had talked to the flushed, defiant child until she burst into tears.

"I couldn't get a word out of her," Gretchen said miserably. "I don't know what to do. I wouldn't have had this happen for anything. Whatever possessed her, anyhow?"

"Jocelyn needn't have made such a fuss," Bob asserted.

"Would you like me to handle it?" Tally asked, realizing that both Bob and Gretchen were too distraught to be reasonable.

The young couple nodded. "Tally's allus the goat," Gramp commented. "Don't you go startin' a fight with Josie now. She prob'ly feels jest as bad as us about it."

When the meal was finished Tally went up to Betsy's room, collected the purloined articles and the child, and went around to the Russells' front door.

Jocelyn came out on the porch, observed the little girl's tear-stained cheeks, and felt wretched about the whole affair. Betsy regarded her with solemn, chastened eyes as Tally gave her a little shove forward.

"I'm terribly sorry I tooked your doll and things," she recited dutifully as per instruction. Then on her own she added, "I didn't steal 'em, though. Mister Bob said one time he'd get me a doll like this one and I just wanted to show it to him so's he'd know what kind to get me—an' I thought maybe if he saw the box that sings and the bracelet, he maybe would get me those, too. I was going to put every single thing back, I was. Honest and truly, Miss Joshlyn!"

"You didn't tell me that, Betsy," Tally chided.

"I couldn't, Uncle Tally, 'cause everybody scolded me so much—"

There were tears in Jocelyn's eyes as she knelt down before the little girl. "I'm sorry, too," she said softly. "You see, when I was a little girl my grandma always bought me everything I wanted and I didn't realize how a little girl would feel when she saw pretty things she couldn't have. I want to give you the doll and the singing box and I'll buy you a bracelet that will fit your wrist much better than this big one—"

"You mean I can keep Molly?" Betsy asked in an awed voice.

"Yes."

A little hesitantly Betsy went close to Jocelyn and reached out her chubby arms. Jocelyn drew her near and hugged her. "Is everything all right now?" she whispered, deeply stirred by the feel of the child's trembling body.

"No," declared Tally, "it isn't. Betsy cannot have the things."

Jocelyn stared at him over the top of the child's head. "But why not?"

"Because she has to learn not to help herself to other people's possessions. Do you think this experience will do her any good if now, after raising a row and accusing her of stealing, you very generously give her the things?"

Jocelyn stood up, contempt darkening her eyes as they met his. "I think she's had her lesson. I also think you're being unfair and unreasonable!"

"And I think you're being inconsistent and stupid!" he retorted. "Come along, Betts."

"I want the dolly—" she wailed. "Joshlyn gived it to me, Uncle Tally—"

'Mire Of Self-Pity'

HE PICKED her up in his arms. "You can't have it, Betsy. It isn't yours."

"You are the most impossible, the most stubborn, the most contrary male I ever saw in my life!" Jocelyn raged.

"Oh, be quiet," he ordered. "You make me sick. I'm not going to have Betsy growing up into a spoiled brat, and that's final. If she finds out now that she can't have her own way whenever she wants it, she'll be a fit companion for people when she grows up."

"Meaning I'm not?"

"Exactly."

Thorndyke opened the door and peered out at the bristling antagonists. "What's going on out here, Lyn?"

"Good night, Miss Russell!" Tally said with stiff politeness, ignoring Thorn. He strode off around the back of the house, holding the weeping child against his shoulder.

Thorn tried again. "Lyn, what is the trouble?"

"Oh, it's none of your business!" she snapped and pushed past him into the drawing-room.

Thorn, his feelings injured, wandered off toward the beach; settled disconsolately on the wooden steps leading from the terrace down to the sand. He had no place in particular to go; nothing in particular to do. He was a very lonely man. He felt very sorry for himself. Nobody wanted him around. Nobody liked him. Nola was probably having a grand time in Honolulu and was glad to be rid of him. He wallowed in a mire of self-pity.

If, he considered, he had followed Nola to Honolulu at once there might have been a reconciliation. He really had wanted to, but that procedure would have necessitated digging into the intact bulk of inherited securities. It seemed to him now that he had been very foolish to hoard the money. Bob was independent of it and Lyn, marrying Geoff, soon would be. There was no valid reason for being miserly. That forty thousand, invested, might make him a great deal more. Any sort of business venture was out, of course, but he had heard tales of making money quickly. And since the entire sum was practically his, he might as well put it to some good use, for if he lost it . . . and nothing like that would happen, for he was much too shrewd . . . no one but he would be hurt; and, if he made lots of money, Lyn as well as himself would benefit. Besides, Nola had so much money that he, comparatively speaking, was a pauper. Nola might have more respect for his capability if he could demonstrate a concrete example. . . .

A shuffling sound on the other side of the fence disturbed his reflections. Good heavens! couldn't a man think without being aware of the intruders who shared his house?

A gaunt stooped figure rounded the last outpost of fencing and ambled through the sand toward him.

"H'lo," Gramp offered serenely. "It's a mighty purty night out, ain't it? I jest couldn't make my old bones be still with that there moon a-shinin' over the water. That old sea is mighty trech-rous though, even if it looks mighty harmless from here—"

Thorn followed the old man's glance out over the vast reach of ocean and surprised himself by saying, "I guess it is treacherous, at that. You sailed on it for a good many years, didn't you?"

"Yep." Gramp, bracing himself on the stair railing, sank with slow effort to the step just below Thorndyke. "A man does peculiar things when he loses a woman he loves. After your grandma run away with Homer I just didn't mind much what become of me."

Continued tomorrow.

Two Actions Settled

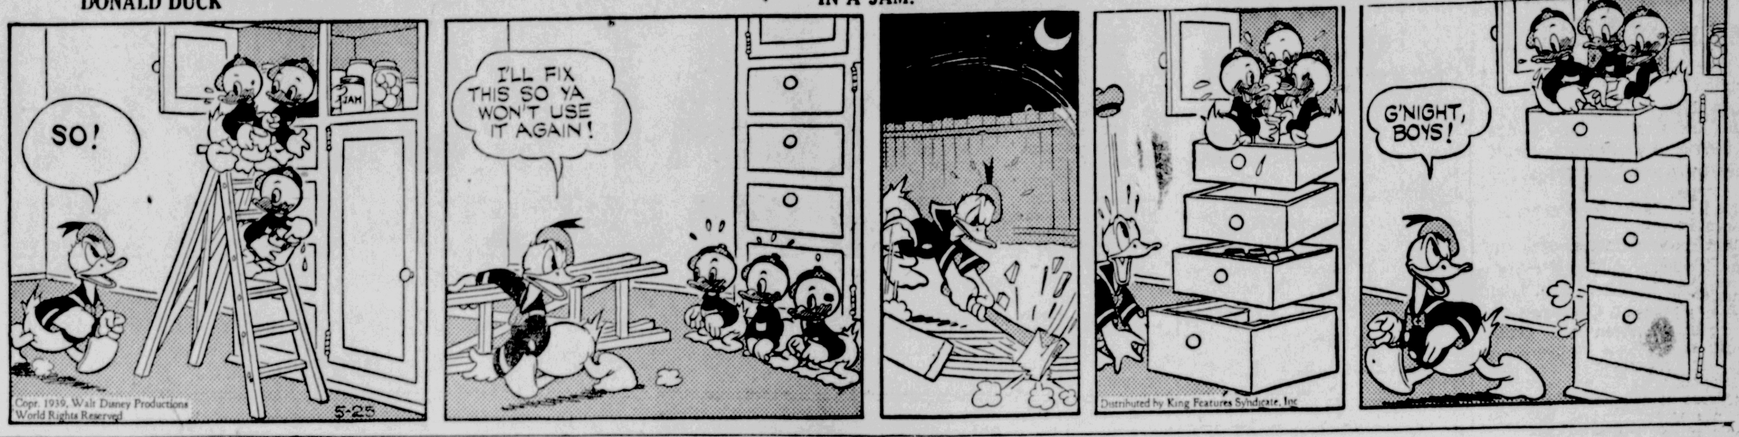

Two actions commenced Tuesday in supreme court were settled. Earl Osterhoudt and Daisy M. Osterhoudt sought to recover damages from Bardavon Theatres Corp., Poughkeepsie, for an injury which Mrs. Osterhoudt suffered at the theatre. Last March the cases were announced settled but the plaintiffs rejected the offer of settlement and brought the cases on again for trial at this term. After the cases had been partially tried they were settled. Plaintiffs sued for $4,000. Lounsberry and Lonstein for plaintiffs and Paul S. Merritt for defendant.

Garden City, Kas. (AP)—The police department has a form letter for answering persons who send in "hot tips" concerning the whereabouts of Jake Fleagle, one-time western Kansas and Colorado badman. The letter informs them that Fleagle was shot to death nine years ago trying to beat some officers to the draw.

Bessie—No, Mr. Smartboy, I'm not ready to marry.

Billy—Will you let me know when you are?

Bessie—Yes, I'll send you a wedding announcement.

Every season has its advantages and disadvantages. Among the disadvantages of coming summer is moths and house flies.

Bjones (sadly)—I wish I were dead.

Cuddlipp—What's the matter? Can't you marry her, or did you?

Possible current simile: As busy as an insurance adjuster.

A wealthy American engaged an English tutor for his son.

"Take him up into the mountains," he said, "and break him of the habit of using slang."

"I'll do that," replied the tutor.

Two months later the pair returned home. The anxious father rushed up to the tutor for a report.

"Did you have a successful trip?" he asked the tutor.

"You said a mouthful; I'll say we did," was the reply.

It is nice to have an occasional vacation, especially a vacation from war scares.

"You don't seem to regret the fact that a number of people speak unkindly of you."

"No," replied Senator Sorghum, "the only kind words that ever secure unanimous endorsement are those that compose an epitaph."

If people depend on you, try not to fail them. But life will be happier for you if you try to so guide your affairs that you do not depend overmuch on anyone else.

The mistress entered the kitchen hurriedly.

"Weren't you told to watch when the milk boiled over?" she asked.

"I did ma'am," replied the maid. "It was just half past nine."

The women spend millions every year on cosmetics but they get results.

"Is your husband fond of home cooking?"

"Yes, we are now taking our meals at a restaurant that makes a specialty of it."

A man was grumbling about the heat. Said another, who had just returned from a trip through the south:

"Hot! Boy, you don't know what hot is. One day this week in Mississippi I saw a dog chasing a cat and they were both walking."

First Typist—Are you getting on well in your new job?

Second Typist—No, I'm not. The boss hasn't complimented me on anything but my work.

If a man is dependable in big things he will also be in small ones.

Heyton — Is a chicken big enough to eat when it's two weeks old?

Vanda—Certainly not.

Heyton—Then how does it live.

Many of the rewards of the world go to the brilliant, yet a great many others go to the non-brilliant but loyal and faithful.

Stingo—It's hard to collect money in these times.

Bingo—How do you know? Are you a collector?

Stingo—No, but a lot of people have tried to collect from me.

Female Reformer (visiting jail)—You say your love for books brought you here? Just how did that happen?

Prisoner — Yes, they were pocketbooks, lady.

LABOR—Spring is always the season of new life, new hopes, new ambitions. But, alas, so many of our hopes and ambitions are short lived, wilting under the hot sun of adversity. Mental gardens require just as much hard work as do our onion and radish patches.

Fast Pigeon

Oklahoma City, Okla. (AP)—An average speed of 55 miles an hour was recorded recently by a pigeon in a race from Beeville, Tex., to Oklahoma City, distance of 500 air miles. The bird is owned by Bob Vining of Oklahoma City. The world's pigeon racing record for that distance is about 60 miles an hour.

The American Sway!

The Spirit of '76 has hit the night clubs of '39. Latest of the Yankee Doodle ditties they've sponsored is a dance called "The American Sway," which Georgie Hale originated to introduce a new Broadway hot spot show.

"It's intended to show the spirit of American youth," says Hale. Billie Bernice, who calls herself a "Tulsa, Okla., Yankee," and who is captain of the chorus, here demonstrates the number, using "prop" flags. In the finale, Miss Bernice and the chorus toss away the flags, don snare drums, and prance off to a martial rhythm.

Mary Recovers From Accident

London, May 25 (AP)—Queen Mother Mary, recovering from bruises and a minor injury to one eye, today dispatched a letter of thanks for flowers brought by Albert Cooper, driver of the truck involved in the collision in which she was injured.

The 47-year-old driver took the small bouquet to her residence, Marlborough House, yesterday.

The letter was written by Lady Constance Milnes-Gaskell, lady-in-waiting to the queen, who was in her car at the time of the accident. It expressed hope that Cooper was none the worse for his experience of Tuesday.

A statement today by the queen's physicians said:

"Her Majesty Queen Mary has had a good night and is more comfortable and Her Majesty's general condition continues to improve."

The queen mother, 72 years old tomorrow, apparently was not tired by watching a television broadcast of yesterday's Derby and listening last night to her son, King George VI, speak from Winnipeg, Canada.

Manners Unforgotten

Portsmouth, N. H., May 25 (AP)—It takes more than a tense situation to make a navy man forget his manners. When Lieut. Robert W. Robertson, of Quanah, Texas., ascended a short wharf last night after his rescue from the sticken submarine Squalus, he paused before a Coast Guardsman, clicked his heels and executed a smart salute.

Engineers Gives Lighting History Before Rotarians

The wonderful strides made in lighting from the earliest times to the present day were demonstrated to the members of Rotary at their noon luncheon meeting Wednesday at the Governor Clinton. The demonstration and lecture was given by R. G. Sauer, division engineer with the Westinghouse Co., who came under the sponsorship of the Canfield Supply Co.

Speaking on "Spanning the Horizon of Light," Mr. Sauer told of the first advance made by early man when he developed the torch, then came successively the candle, crude affairs at first, the oil lamps of various kinds, including kerosene, gas lighting and finally electric lighting.

It was in the early part of the 19th century that Sir Humphry Davy produced the arc light, using a battery of 2,000 cells, but it was not until around 1844 that it came into practical use. Then in 1878 Paul Jablochkoff, a Russian, produced the electric candle and from that time progress and change have made wonderful strides.

Mr. Sauer showed two electric lamps, one the largest commercial lamp made by his company, a 10,-000 watt affair used in moving picture studios, the other the smallest lamp, rated at about one watt and which could hardly be seen when he held it up to view. The latter was used by surgeons for exploratory work inside the human body.

Various lamps were shown, all apparently the same, but when lighted giving widely differing effects. One, it was stated, would burn for a long term of years, but gave little light, another was the brightest made, but had a very brief span of life. The practical one was an intermediate lamp, which gave a good degree of light and was fairly durable, burning for something like 1,000 hours.

The ultra violet lamp was shown and interesting experiments made, one of them showing how a piece of cloth, exposed to its ray, would retain its fluorescence for some time afterward. In another a set of playing cards exposed to one type of lamp showed up entirely different when placed before another type.

There were experiments with and demonstrations of neon tubes, sodium and mercury lamps and polarized light.

Mayor Wendell Phillips of Port Jervis, a guest at Rotary Wednesday, commenting on the sodium lamp demonstrated, remarked that the sodium street lamps on Park avenue, Port Jervis, were the first of such lamps ever used in connection with an alternating current. There are 25 of these lamps, which were erected in 1933, the installation being in the nature of an experiment. One advantage of the sodium light is that it give visibility at a greater distance and numbers on a license plate of other object can be more easily distinguished.

At the business meeting Wednesday Benjamin Adams, of 189 Pine street, was elected a member of the club. President Eugene Pembleton spoke interestingly of his stay at the Westchester Biltmore Club, where representatives of the various Rotary Clubs in this district met May 18 and 19 to select a district governor. Another item of business was the naming of a dozen or so members of the golfing fraternity to visit Poughkeepsie for a match with the Poughkeepsie Club. Gus Modjeska has charge of the team.

Plane Looks Like Car

Burbank, Calif. (AP)—Except for its wings, a plane developed by one of the big aircraft companies here looks very much like a large automobile. It is powered by two in-line engines instead of the radial type usually used on planes. The craft is designed for private use and will sell for about $27,500.

PORT EWEN NEWS

Dorcas Society Meets

Port Ewen, May 25—The Dorcas Society held its regular meeting last evening in the Reformed Church house. The chairman of the committee for the heirloom exhibit reported it a great success, thus removing the necessity for the usual August fair. The next meeting will be June 13, when Mrs. Harry Newton and Miss Elizabeth Ellsworth will be the hostesses. After the business meeting dominoes were played. After the refreshments were served Mrs. Frank White introduced Miss Finetta Norton, who comes to the county from Girl Scout National Headquarters to reorganize the work throughout Ulster county. Miss Norton spoke briefly of the aims of scouting and the hope to revive it here in Port Ewen. It is hoped that interest may be kindled to organize a troop committee and obtain leaders so that scouting may get under way in the fall.

Saugerties Sunday School Association Holds Meeting

The Rev. John J. De Boer, Ph. D., principal of Voorhees College, Vellore, India, addressed 150 delegates representing a dozen Sunday schools of the Town of Saugerties Sunday School Association, assembled at their spring convention at the Blue Mountain Reformed Church May 19.

Dr. De Boer related stories of his experience in his extensive journeys in the Far East and in Palestine, showing how western influences and western articles, even to soaps and tooth brushes, along with western Christianity, had penetrated to remote villages in the Orient.

The speaker has been intimate with Gandhi for many years and frequently visited him in his little mud hut, from which Gandhi directs the policies of the Indian congress.

President Sutton announced the appointment of Lester Snyder of Katsbaan to fill the office of vice president of the Sunday School Association left vacant by the removal of Leonard Van Gaasbeck to Newburgh.

The banner given for the highest average attendance was awarded to the High Woods Reformed Sunday school for its average of 91 per cent. The fall rally convention is set for Friday, September 15.

Ellenville Skater Sues for Injury

Wednesday a case involving cows came up for attention in Supreme court and this morning Justice Foster found the court involved in a roller skating case, two matters, remote from the usual automobile negligence actions which predominate in courts today.

Frank McCord sued Frank Agor, Jr., in an action on note growing out of a cow deal in town of Gardiner. The plaintiff and defendant engaged in a deal involving several head of cattle and the cattle proved to be of such quality that they were returned and an action now results over payment of a note involved in the transaction. Jules Ewig appeared for plaintiff and Arthur O. Mahary, Jr., was counsel of record for the defendant. The case went to the jury today.

Next following was an action brought by Samuel Finkelstein, of Ellenville against Pioneer Engine Company of Ellenville and the former proprietor of the Ellenville Roller Skating Rink. Plaintiff claims he fell against a heating pipe in Norbury Hall and broke his leg. His contention was the operator of the rink had failed to protect it properly. John A. Bonomi, who incidentally was one of the instructors at the rink, is attorney for plaintiff.

The defendant Pioneer Engine Company appearing by A. J. Cook claim the hall was leased by it and therefore no responsibility lies with the hose company. The former operators of the Ellenville ring claim that at the time Finkelstein was skating that he was doing so after the rink had closed and while he, as head of a group of Ellenville business men, was in charge. It is contended that Finkelstein made arrangements for use of the rink after it closed at 11 o'clock at night, that on the night of the accident he was at the head of a group of business men who were using their ink and that he in effect was a sub-lessee of the rink.

Mr. Finkelstein denies this and said on the stand he had asked the proprietor to open the rink between 11 o'clock and 1 o'clock to a group of business men so they might learn to skate. The first arrangements were made and the plaintiff said he collected the money from the class and paid for the tickets but after that when he got the class of about 20 together he no longed did this but that each man paid his admission to the proprietor or his employe.

Defendant claims that in addition to now operating the extra class, that the rink had been sub-let to his sister at the time of the accident on May 18, 1938, and that even though Mr. Finkelstein did not act as a sub-lessee of the premises that the rink was not in his possession after May 2, 1938. It is further contended by the defendant that skating is a dangerous sport in which the skater assumes his own risk as to injury.

Lawrence Levine appears for the operator of the rink.

Lignin From Corn Cobs Softens Hard City Water

AMES, IOWA.—In their search for some practical use for lignin, one of the country's principal waste products, federal chemists have discovered that recovered lignin is more effective in treating hard water containing iron than commercial compounds now in use.

At the agricultural by-products laboratory in Ames, chemists of the department of agriculture treated hard city water, hard well water, and water containing added iron with lignin prepared from corn cobs and found this material to be effective as an iron-removal agent.

Supplies of lignin are inexpensive because they are almost limitless. Roughly, one-fourth of all wood plants, including trees, is lignin. As a waste product of wood pulp mills, where its disposal pollutes streams, it amounts to about 1,500,000 dry-weight-tons each year. At least 6,000,000 tons a year is available from corn stalks and an equal quantity from wheat straw. Other extensive supplies are cottonseed hulls and sugarcane bagasse—the fiber remaining after the juice has been squeezed from it.

The discovery promises the first extensive use for lignin in its original form, because few cities have water sufficiently pure that it does not require treatment for removing iron, which imparts an unsightly appearance and undesirable taste.

Stocks Made Broad Gain Wednesday

New York, May 25 (AP).—Stocks worked up early rallying speed in today's market, then slowed to a crawl as profit taking interference appeared.

Stocks staged the broadest advance in a month yesterday with volume reaching the million-share mark for the first time since April 12. Various reasons for the sudden spurt are advanced, the most reasonable of which would appear to be the strength shown in the London market and more reassuring reports on the foreign situation generally. Certainly the mixed indices of business are not what might be termed overwhelmingly bullish, although there has been a shade of improvement in certain lines during the past week.

The market opened stronger, with industrials in the Dow-Jones list, which showed a loss of 0.68 point Tuesday, being up nearly half a point at the opening yesterday, showing continued gains throughout the day and closing at 135.04, the high point for the day, a net gain of 3.27 points. This is the greatest advance these issues have made since April 15, when they gained 3.41. Rails and utilities made comparatively good showings, the former advancing 0.76 point, to 27.66 and utilities being ahead for the day 0.72 point, to 23.54.

Commodities were up, the Dow-Jones index showing a gain for the day of 1.12 points, the largest single day's advance since the middle of July a year ago. Silk continued to soar, May No. 2 contracts being up 28 cents a pound, to $2.81, a new nine-year high. Cotton and wheat made new highs for the season. Cotton showed advances of as much as 90 cents a bale, closing prices being up eight to 13 points. On reports of crop damage due to high temperatures threatening premature ripening, wheat was up 2⅜ to three cents in Chicago. Corn futures closed as much as 1½ cents a bushel higher. Flour for the New York metropolitan trade made a further advance of ten cents and present prices show a rise of from 20 to 60 cents a barrel from levels of a week ago, with rye flour up 85 cents a barrel. Trading in May delivery for wool tops closed at 84.3 cents a pound, an advance of eight points. May butter futures advanced to a new high of 23 cents a pound at Chicago, with November deliveries up to 24.48. There was activity in hides prices showing a basis of 11 cents for spot light native cow hides, an advance of ¼ cent over previous sales.

The London market was strong, with a scarcity of offerings and prices advanced further in late trading following Prime Minister Chamberlain's statement on the Anglo-Russian negotiations. The Times industrial average showed a gain of one point and rails also were up. The Paris Bourse showed a firmer tone, but volume was low and gains moderate. Amsterdam was firm.

The first 12 railroads to report net operating income for April show a rise of only 10 per cent over the 1938 month whereas March showed a gain of 131 per cent over the preceding year. Result of the soft coal shutdown.

Electric output last week showed a gain of 10.3 per cent over the 1938 week, no change from the preceding week's showing.

Westinghouse Electric this month will distribute to employes a bonus of five per cent, as against three percent in April. Advance due to increased earnings and bookings, April earnings being indicated at $1,210,290, highest month so far for the year.

Hecker Products declared an extra dividend of 40 cents on common; paid regular quarterly of 15 cents on May 1. Petroleum Corp. of America voted dividend of 30 cents. American Power & Light voted 75 cents on $6 preferred and 62½ cents on $5 preferred. American Safety Razor announced quarterly of 30 cents; Lone Star Cement declared 75 cents on common. Atlas Corp. pays 25 cents on common.

Find Hidden Taxes In Butter Costly

Consumers Hit for Fifty Million in Year.

CHICAGO.—Hidden taxes paid by American families in the retail purchase of butter alone amounted to $50,000,000 last year, the National Consumers Tax commission estimates.

This burden, paid by all butter purchasers as an unseen part of the retail price, is made up of taxes originally levied against dairy farmer, trucker, creamery, railroad, wholesaler and retailer, an N. C. T. C. study states. It places average annual consumption at 12¼ pounds for every person in the country.

The commission, non-partisan women's organization with study groups in 4,200 communities opposing "consumer-penalizing taxes," lists 17 state and local taxes and 29 federal levies involved in the manufacture and distribution of butter.

"These taxes make up 11.3 per cent of the cost of an average-priced pound of butter," states the report, made public at N. C. T. C. headquarters in Chicago. "Thus a pound selling for 27 cents produces more than three cents for the hidden tax collector."

The commission declares that the taxes against the various steps of producing and selling butter are "too heavy to be absorbed and the businesses, of necessity, must pass on at least part of the burden."

The N. C. T. C. study was based on reports of the U. S. department of agriculture which placed butter production in the country last year at 1,780,000,000 pounds.

Harvard Museum Lifts Faces of Ancient Beasts

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.—Harvard is now going in for face-lifting, beauty treatments and massages in a big way, but local beauticians need not fear the competition as the subjects of these "beauty aids" are—prehistoric monsters.

For the boys who like their pets large and wholesome looking, the Harvard scientists have discovered that red paint, dental drills and vacuum cleaners are the best aids in giving the monsters a lifelike appearance.

So visitors to the Museum of Comparative Zoology at Harvard need not wonder as to the sanity of its employees should they see a horned dinosaur being painted a gay red or young men using vacuum cleaners on the monsters' spines.

White Man's Pie Not So Easy for Canadian Indian

GOLDFIELDS, SASK. — Mining cafes and restaurants here are a novelty to Indians, unaccustomed to dining out. They encounter difficulty in ordering and eating properly the white man's dishes.

When a pot of tea on a saucer was brought to one bewildered Indian, he poured the tea into the saucer and added sugar. This frontier custom, however, was not so strange as the experience another Indian had with a piece of pie. At first he attempted to eat it with a knife. He was handed a fork, but the waitress finally had to bring him a spoon before he could finish the pastry.

Shortage of Wives Arises For High-Caste Indians

LONDON.—Sorry is the fate of one out of every five high-caste Indians today. Owing to the shortage of eligible wives only four out of five may wed. The others, being unwed and therefore sonless, must go to the nether regions.

This and other superstitious beliefs still prevail in India, according to Sir Edward A. H. Blunt, author of "Social Service in India," which has just been published.

High-caste Indians still cling to taboos, he writes. A wife may not mention her husband's name and brothers-in-law and sisters-in-law may not speak to one another.

Students Find Faculty Average Is Only 'Fair'

KENT, OHIO.—Some professors received flunking grades and their average grade only was "fair," according to the results of a poll in which Kent State university students turned the tables and graded their instructors.

Five professors received straight A averages, but faculty members who did not do so well demanded specific grades rather than numerical averages.

2,327,000 Domestics Are Employed in U. S. Homes

WASHINGTON. — Domestic servants employed in private homes in the United States number 2,327,000, according to an estimate made by Rae L. Needleman of the social security board's bureau of research and statistics. Though women dominate the domestic service picture, outnumbering men better than 10 to 1, they only contribute 23 per cent of all workers gainfully employed in the United States, and only 28 per cent of applicants for social security account numbers.

General housekeepers, or "maids of all work" constitute more than half of all domestics employed in private homes. They are estimated to number 1,240,086. Other classifications include: Cooks, 273,594; housekeepers and stewards, 195,808; launderers and laundresses, 357,525; untrained nurses, 153,443; chauffeurs, 94,270, and waiters, 12,131.

Local Death Record

Otis D. Snyder of Saugerties, who was employed in Poughkeepsie, died suddenly at his home there early Wednesday morning, a heart attack being the cause of death. Deceased is survived by his wife, two daughters, Miss Rowena Snyder of Saugerties and Mrs. Thomas Nolan of New York city; two sisters, Miss Anna Snyder of Veteran and Miss Rowena Snyder of Poughkeepsie; and one brother, Albert Snyder, of Veteran.

Mrs. Isabel Maxwell Smith, formerly of 394 Albany avenue, died at the home of her son, Stewart B. Smith, in Saugerties, Wednesday morning. Besides her son, Stewart, she is survived by two others, Walter of Schenectady and Leslie of Palo Alto, Cal. While a resident of Kingston, Mrs. Smith attended the Fair Street Reformed Church. Her funeral will be held Saturday at 2 p. m., from the home of her son, Stewart. Burial will be in Mountain View Cemetery, Saugerties.

Funeral services for Mrs. Jennie Zimmerman, widow of Charles Zimmerman, of New Salem, will be held from the V. T. Pine & Son chapel at New Paltz Friday morning at 10 o'clock. Burial will be in Lloyd cemetery. Mrs. Zimmerman died at the Benedictine Hospital after a long illness. Prior to living at New Salem she had resided at Union Center and Ulster Park. Besides her son, Smead Zimmerman of New Salem, she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Alean Smith, of Kingston, four grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

The Rev. John P. McCaffrey, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, was the celebrant of a requiem Mass said this morning for the repose of the soul of Angelo Fiorino, who died here last Monday night. The children's choir sang the responses during the services attended by relatives and friends. The Rev. Edmund E. Burke recited the rosary at the Henry J. Bruck Funeral Home for the repose of the soul of Mr. Fiorino Wednesday evening. Father Burke also accompanied the cortage to St. Mary's Cemetery, where the burial took place in the family plot. Bearers were Anthony Turck, Augusto Cerasaro, Samuel Di Muccio and George Machtold.

Dry Brook, May 25.—The community was shocked to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. John Vermilyea, aged 32, early Monday morning from a heart attack. Mrs. Vermilyea had been about as usual on the morning of her death. Mr. Vermilyea had arisen before her and gone to the barn to do his chores as usual and noticing no smoke issuing from the chimney he returned to the house to learn the reason and found her lying on the kitchen floor in what he thought was a state of unconsciousness. He immediately summoned Dr. Beatty and other help but upon their arrival it was found she was beyond medical aid. Mrs. Vermilyea was formerly Miss Mary Dickman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dickman of Margaretville, and a graduate of Margaretville High School. She was the mother of two children, Lois, 8, and Edwin, 6. She leaves besides her husband and children and mother and father, three sisters, Mrs. Raymond Vermilyea, and the Misses Grace and Ruth Dickman. The funeral was held in the M. E. Church on Thursday at 2:30 p. m., with burial in Wood Cemetery.

U. S. Divorces on Increase As World War Aftermath

Divorces in the United States showed a heavy increase as an aftermath of the World war, maintained a high level during the prosperous years following 1922 and, for some unexplained reason, took a sharp turn upward to unprecedented heights beginning with 1934, statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company have discovered.

They base their conclusions on a study of the divorce trend in New England, the only section of the country for which data covering a long period are available. In these states, the ratio of divorces in 1937 to the annual average of marriages for the preceding decade was 168 per cent greater than the corresponding ratio for 1890.

Many of the post-war divorces probably resulted from disillusionment after hasty marriages with soldiers bound for the front, the statisticians point out, while others were the result of opportunity presented by prevailing high wages and war profits, which furnished the necessary funds that would otherwise have been lacking.

The increase in divorces occurring in the prosperous period after 1922 ran true to form, it is explained, because it is well known that the incidence of divorces usually follows the business cycle closely. The record rise that started in 1934, however, is not so easily explained, as "no data are at present available which offer an authoritative interpretation of this remarkable development."

The statisticians suggest, however, that many of these recent divorces may have been "poor men's divorces," instituted on the grounds of nonsupport and abandonment, in this connection it is significant that the chief statutory cause of the recent rise was "cruelty," a convenient designation for concealing a variety of actual causes.

Woman Succeeds Her Husband as Sheriff

ABERDEEN, S. D.—Mrs. Bertha G. Solberg enjoys the distinction of being the only woman sheriff in South Dakota. She succeeds her husband, Ole, who died recently after an auto accident. Brown county commissioners appointed her to the office after a petition bearing several thousand names, urging the appointment, had been filed with the auditor.

New Citizens Get Bids to Services

In compliance with the effort of the Secretary of Labor of the United States to hold Annual New Citizen's Day, a special effort is being made locally by County Clerk James A. Simpson, to have a representative group of newly naturalized citizens at the Memorial Service to be held in the Municipal Auditorium Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service of the country is cooperating in the general nation-wide program, and County Clerk Simpson as Naturalization Officer of the county, urges local cooperation in having a representative attendance of new citizens at the Sunday service.

Arrangements for the service Sunday have been made by the United Veterans Association of Ulster county, and acting upon the desire of the Secretary of Labor, the Veterans Association is inviting all persons, who have become citizens of the United States during the past three years.

An address on "Americanism" will be delivered by Major Albert J. Callan of Chatham. Selections will be played by the Kingston Band and short addresses will be made by members of the local clergy. Invitations are being sent out by County Clerk Simpson to groups of the newly naturalized citizens.

Explorers to Probe Mystery of City

of the submerged city, he explained:

"When the sea is calm you can see in the crystal-clear water 300 feet below, the dim outline of the coral-encrusted walls of the ancient town that was a thriving community long before the Revolutionary War, long before there was any United States."

With Captain Hall aboard the Albee are Capt. R. A. Phraner from whom the ship was chartered; Jack Browne, president of the Diving Equipment and Salvage Company of Milwaukee, Wis., manufacturer of the helium self-contained diving suits; Rupert Conrad, artist and sculptor of Detroit; George Lawson, illustrator; James Murdoch of Pittsburgh, University of Michigan student, and Jack Callouette, also a Michigan University student.

Hall, 38, is the son of Robert S. Hall, founder of an engine manufacturing concern bearing his name. Widely traveled and a licensed air plane pilot, Hall flew in Mexico as a revolutionary soldier of fortune. He explored Caribbean waters in 1932, when he conceived the idea for his present expedition. His first mate will be Frank Picard, 25, who has circled the globe five times.

Ember Day Adaptation

Ember days, which were instituted by Pope Gregory as days of fasting and prayer, are the Wednesday, Friday and Saturday after the first Sunday in Lent, after Whitsunday, after the fourteenth of September and after the thirteenth of December. They were an adaptation of a Roman season of prayer and fasting with petitions to the Roman deities for success in the spring seeding, the June bountiful harvest, September rich vintage and December winter seeding.

GOOD NEWS BRINGS COLLAPSE

This was the jubilant scene in the Washington, D. C., home of William Isaacs when his parents (R.) and his brother, Howard, (L.), learned that he was among the first seven saved from the Squalus. Soon afterward, the father collapsed from the strain of past 24 hours.

Gas Tells Age of Rock

A new method of measuring small amounts of gases extracted from rocks has been developed by Dr. Alfred C. Lane, professor emeritus of geology at Tufts college. It will measure a volume as small as a grain of wheat extracted from a ton of rock or very much smaller amounts taken from smaller samples. It is a vacuum tube containing a fine wire whose resistance is altered by the impact of the gas molecules which reduce its temperature. It is used in measuring the amount of helium produced by the breakdown of radium in rocks. The amount of this gas gives an index of the length of time the radium has been disintegrating in the rock and this gives the rock's age and that in turn gives an index of the earth's age. The more accurate determination made by this device gives the earth's age as 2,000,000,000 years or more, says Professor Lane.

Family Tradition Survives

In the days when the Venetians held the secret of fine glass making and kept it under penalty of death, the skill of the glass blowers was passed from father to son for generations. The death penalty was repealed a thousand years ago and the glass blowers gave way to modern machinery early in the present century. But the skill of the plate glass polishers continues as a family tradition in the big glass plants of Toledo, Ohio. For example, on the 1,700-foot polishing line in the Libbey-Owens-Ford plant here there are seven father-and-son combinations. Technical developments have given them a 350-ton machine, electrically controlled, with which to grind off a paper-thin layer of glass to give the plate its crystal polish. Nevertheless, the perfected product depends largely on their skill in grading and handling more than 30 different sands and polishing materials, some of it so fine that it could almost be used to brush your teeth!

Negro Gets 30 Days

Charged with being a "Peeping Tom" in peeping into the women's rest rooms in the West Shore railroad station here, Harold Bassett, a negro, of 114½ North Front street, was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail today when arraigned before Judge Matthew V. Cahill in police court. Bassett was arrested Wednesday afternoon by Officer Charles Thiel of the West Shore railroad police force, and was later released on bail for appearance in police court today.

Now...$5.00 down brings you a cool, quiet bedroom

LAST summer you dragged through sultry, humid weather . . . couldn't work, couldn't sleep . . . because air conditioning was too expensive.

But now for as little as $5 down you can have roomfuls of fresh, clean, filtered air circulated gently through any room of your home or office. Street and traffic noises are shut out as well as dust, dirt and pollen. You live in quiet comfort.

This comfort is yours because now you can buy the Air Pilot—a portable room ventilator by Standard Air Conditioning—for as little as $5 down. As easily installed as a radio . . . works equally well in home, apartment or office.

TRY IT FOR 7 DAYS

Try the Air Pilot for one week before you buy—prove all the advantages it has for you. Pay as little as $5 to spend a week in solid comfort. Then when you decide to buy, the $5 you paid for the trial becomes your down payment. You pay the rest—a few cents a day—in easy payments spread over a year's time.

Don't deny yourself this modern comfort any longer. Pick up your telephone right now, and say, "I want to try the Air Pilot for seven days."

Use Radio in Experiments At Harvard University.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.—Radio balloon soundings of the atmosphere were the chief activity of the Harvard weather station during the last year, according to Director Charles F. Brooks of the Blue Hill observatory, at Harvard university.

Harvard's pioneer experimentation with automatic radio meteorograph balloons, for upper air soundings, after three years has resulted in widespread use of such instruments for regular weather observations.

"Our aim to find an easier, more certain and less expensive way to sound the atmosphere has been accomplished, and much sooner than we expected, when in 1935 we designed and used the first American radio-meteorograph," Brooks said.

The United States weather bureau has converted 6 of its 12 airplane stations to radio-meteorographs, or radiosondes as they now are called, and it hopes to change the other six next summer and add 13 more if congress supplies the necessary money, he said.

The army and navy have converted four stations. China has bought many Harvard radio-meteorographs; and Japan, England, India and Germany are experimenting with the Harvard instrument.

"Backed by orders now for thousands of radio-meteorographs, the manufacturers are engaging in further improvements in design on so much larger a scale than we can that we now are turning our attention mainly to studying the results obtained from the daily soundings at so many stations," Brooks said.

Rescuers Hope Sailore Alive

the long hours to conserve the oxygen.

After telephone communication with the surface was broken the men settled down to a long wait. Then, for hours, the navy massed its salvage strength for rescue efports. At about noon yesterday the rescue bell dropped over the Falcon's side and touched the escape chamber of the Squalus.

Blankets and Hot Soup

The connection was made and blankets and hot soup handed into the sub to ease the biting cold. Seven men stepped inside with the man who came down from the surface and slowly the bell came up.

With their arrival on the deck of the Falcon came first definite news of the casualties trapped in the flooded sections of the submarine. Swiftly word was flashed ashore and the heart-rending task of advising relatives was begun.

One wife was seized with hysteria when told that her husband was dead. Other women refused to give up hope, clinging to the belief that in some way, somehow, their men might be alive in the blocked-off, water-filled compartments.

"Thank God, oh, thank God," cried the mothers and wives of the men who came through the ordeal safely.

From the survivors themselves came only laconic comments about the botter cold in the entombing vessel.

"I don't think I'll ever get warm again," was a common remark from the shivering men as they reached this port, 15 miles from the scene of the disaster.

First man to breathe free air and see the sun after the long confinement was Lieutenant J. C. Nichols. It was a dramatic scene. The sun broke through the clouds just as the bell broke through the ocean's surface. The air was tense with excitement, dread, hope — Airplanes circled overhead. A dozen ships, including the big cruiser Brooklyn, floated nearby. Slowly the bell swung onto the Falcon's deck. The hatch in the roof opened and Lt. Nichols stepped out into the sunshine.

Cheers broke out from the men on the deck and answering cheers and shouts echoed from the other vessels.

Diver Makes Contact

First contact with the Squalus had been made by Frank P. Miller, a Portsmouth navy yard diver, who stepped on the steel hull at 10:22 a. m. (E. D. T.).

"It was a tough dive," he reported later. "The water was extremely cold. I was down on the sub (making the connection for the diving bell) only 15 minutes, but it took about 73 minutes for me to come up and recover."

The bell started down at 11:40 a. m. and began its return trip at 1:18 p. m. Lt. Nichols stepped to the deck at 1:45 p. m. Then, persistently, the chamber continued its elevator-like trips which continued until shortly after midnight. There was not a hitch until the last ascent.

Officers eagerly watching the bell in its acid test found it an unqualified success. It was developed after the S-4 disaster off Provincetown, Mass., in which 40 men lost their lives in 1927. Built to withstand tremendous pressure, the bell is filled with a helium-oxygen mixture for breathing so as to prevent "bends," a disease caused by pressure changes.

A hose from the surface supplied the breathing mixture during the ascent and was responsible for averting a second tragedy when the bell stuck on its fourth trip up. During the long halt, the men were jammed like sardines into the apparatus, but the hose supplied them with air to breathe.

Spokesman for the rescued men was Judson Thomas Bland of Norfalk, Va., an electrician's mate.

"There was no panic — none whatsoever," he told interviewers. "Every word from every man was a cheerful one. I'm not afraid to say that not one man ever thought he would not be rescued."

He said the air in the sub "got a little bad" just before the rescue, but that was due, he said, to efforts to conserve the oxygen. The survivors were hospitalized promptly but naval spokesmen said they believed all would survive and be released from the hospital during the day. Some, however, were suffering shock and might be held a few days.

Two School Heads Honored by Group

Superintendent of Schools B. C. Van Ingen of Kingston and Superintendent E. H. Burdick, of the Middletown schools, both of whom are retiring at the end of the present school year, were guests of honor at a surprise banquet held at the Hotel Minisink, Port Jervis, Wednesday night.

There was a large company of school men from Ulster, Orange, Sullivan and Delaware counties present and joining in the testimonial occasion.

Features of the dinner were the large individual, candle-lighted cakes which each of the honored guests found in front of his plate, in addition to handsome mementos of the occasion with which they were presented by their assembled friends of the fraternity.

Many of the educators present joined in the speechmaking which followed the dinner, commending Messrs. Van Ingen and Burdick for the records they had made in the field of education and expressing their sentiments of personal regard and good will.

Schirick Attends Lawyers' Dinner

Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Schirick of this city, presiding at the May term of court in Greene county was a guest Monday evening at the dinner of the Greene County Bar Association at the New Salpaugh Hotel, Catskill.

Informal in its character, the meeting was held for the purpose of discussion of terms of court there. The next scheduled term is December and attorneys believe this is insufficient.

Justice Schirick told the bar that it might be possible to arrange a term in September but an October or November term was almost impossible since every justice was assigned to a term somewhere in the district during those months.

Navy Put New Publicity Order Into Use Yesterday

Washington, May 25 (AP)—The sinking of the submarine Squalus put into effect in dramatic fashion the navy's new policy of reporting news events fully and promptly.

At both the Portsmouth navy yard, the submersible's home port, and the navy department here, reports from the scene were given out with a minimum of delay.

By order of Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of operations, reporters and photographers were taken to the scene from New York on the U. S. S. Brooklyn.

The order to make public "newsworthy" events was issued last week by Admiral Claude C. Bloch, fleet commander-in-chief. Specifically included was such news as crashes and the loss of men overboard, as well as matters which navy officials considered more favorable to the service.

Pay Tribe for Broken Treaty

Shoshones Win Suit Over Land Taken From Them By Arapahoes.

FORT WASHAKIE, WYO. — A white man who saw their point of view and refused to let his brothers break a treaty without later financial remuneration is the hero of 1,000 members of the Shoshone Indian tribe.

The handful of tribesmen, remnant of the once-powerful Shoshone nation, recently won a 26-year legal suit against the federal government for suspension of an ancient treaty guaranteeing them a reservation far removed from their traditional enemies, the Arapahoes.

Charles and Marshall Washakie, representatives of the tribe, led their people in the fight to obtain payment for being forced to share the land with the Arapahoe tribe. But they attribute the majority of their success to George M. Tunison, Omaha (Neb.) attorney.

Sons of the famous Shoshone chief, Washakie, the two redmen joined Tunison in the lengthy legal battle. Litigation was begun in 1913, but in the court of claims.

Shoshones Peaceful Tribe.

To Tunison the government dispute with the Shoshones was ironical.

"The tribe," he explained, "is one of the most intelligent, law-abiding and most friendly of the Indian nations, Chief Washakie gave the army every assistance in dealing with hostile tribes. Sacajawea, with a papoose on her back, guided Lewis and Clark over trackless mountains to Oregon. The Shoshones were the first tribe to sign the Fort Bridger treaty with the government."

Tunison became interested in Washakie's tribe as a young government attorney. He discovered that the white men had broken the agreement in 1868 when they placed the Arapahoes on half of Shoshone land. The Arapahoes, more warlike than their neighbors, had staged numerous raiding parties on settlers in their native Black Hills.

Tunison resigned his position and became the Shoshone legal representative. Eventually he enlisted the aid of two assistants in his fight to obtain for the Indians what he considered their rightful heritage.

Argued Claims for Nine Years.

After he won consent to sue the government in the Court of Claims he spent the next nine years in arguing claims and counterclaims. In 1936 the Indians were awarded $80,000, but he continued litigation in an effort to obtain the $26,000,000 originally asked.

After several rehearings, upheld later by the United States Supreme court, value of land taken from the Shoshones and awarded to the Arapahoes was adjudged to be $1,581,889. Interest brought the figure to $6,364,677, from which $1,956,233 was deducted for governmental expenses on the reservation.

Thus the tribe was awarded the remainder of $4,035,000.

Tunison and his associates were given several hundred thousand dollars for their battle, but the Omaha attorney considered this award secondary.

Here's Simple Guide for Diagnosis of Tummyache

SIOUX CITY, IOWA.—If one has abdominal pain but is able to get upstairs and into pajamas, that's appendicitis, acute and painful.

If a person is unable to get upstairs but has to lie down on the davenport right now, that's a gall bladder attack, also acute and painful.

If, however, the victim falls down and lies there, it's a ruptured stomach ulcer, still acute and painful.

That was the simple guide to diagnosis given members of the Sioux Valley Medical association recently by Dr. Howard Gray of Rochester, Minn., a member of the Mayo clinic staff.

Dr. Gray several months ago operated on James Roosevelt, son of the President.

Child Abuse Increases; Society Blames Drink

BOSTON. — Drunkenness as a cause of child abuse and neglect last year reached the highest peak since repeal of the eighteenth amendment, according to the sixtieth annual report of the Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Intemperance was a major factor in 26.5 per cent of the cases handled by the society in 1928. Though the highest percentage since 1920, it was less than half that of the pre-prohibition peak year.

Most serious cases resulted from homes broken by death, desertion or divorce, according to General Secretary Thomas A. Lothrop.

Duck Affair Costly

SEATTLE. — Vernon Poirier, 23-year-old sailor, found it impossible to duck a duck fine for shooting a duck out of season. The duck was only a two-pound affair and the fine was at the rate of $50 a pound. Worse yet, he did not even get the duck.

Nazis Acclaim Feat

Napanoch Guard Is Fined $50 for Drunken Driving

Ralph Caldwell of Ellenville, former Napanoch Institution guard, found it did not pay to mix alcohol and gasoline when he was arraigned before Police Justice Charles F. Kaiser at Ellenville Tuesday afternoon on a charge of driving a motor car while intoxicated and also leaving the scene of an accident without stopping to give his name and address.

Caldwell was fined $50 and given 30 days suspended sentence in the Ulster county jail on the drunken driving charge and a 30-day suspended jail sentence on the charge of leaving the scene of an accident. He was warned by the court that any future violation of the law would result in putting the jail sentence in operation. In addition to the fine he also made restitution for the damages which were suffered in the accident to the car of William Joyce about 5 o'clock on May 10 when the Joyce car which was parked in front of the theatre in Ellenville was struck by the Caldwell car. From Canal street the Caldwell car was followed by Joyce to Center street where Chief Richard Porter made the arrest. Held in $300 bail for a hearing Tuesday, Caldwell was fined and the jail sentence handed out at the hearing. Louis G. Bruhn and Bernhardt Kramer appeared for The People at the hearing. Caldwell's license was also revoked on order of the court. Benjamin Lonstein appeared for Caldwell.

Fire Board Gives Brown Active Duty

Fireman Charles V. Brown of the Kingston paid fire department, who has been under suspension from active duty since May 3, was reinstated at a special meeting of the Board of Fire Commissioners on Wednesday evening and reported for active duty this morning.

The only penalty was the loss of pay for the 22 days he had been under suspension.

Fireman Brown was unable to report for duty as usual on May 3 for at that time he was lodged in the county jail where he was being held until he furnished a bond guaranteeing weekly payments to his wife.

Brown had been arrested on a charge of failing to pay his wife weekly sums for her support and when arraigned before Judge Matthew V. Cahill he had been directed to post the bond to insure the weekly payments.

When Brown failed to report for duty on May 3 he automatically suspended himself, and he had since been relieved of his duties until the fire board met last night.

State Commander Speaks at Dinner Given by Legion

The American Legion is an important national bulwark against advancement of foreign elements here in a world more chaotic today than at the time of the World War, Frank C. Love of Syracuse, state commander of the Legion, declared last evening at Huling's Barn where a dinner was given in his honor. About 200 local legionnaires and their wives attended the dinner.

Commander Love pointed out also that the Legion appears to have one of its biggest jobs in training American youth for good citizenship. This, he held, was one of the significant duties of the organization, and meant much to the future welfare and security of the nation.

Legionnaires, in effect, the speaker pointed out, are men who fought in a war to end war, but as present world conditions indicate they failed in that objective. A great loss in moral and government interests, the speaker said, was largely responsible for the continued growth of various types of "isms" in the nation today.

The Legion is fighting hard to stem this tide in America, he continued, and has turned to education of the youth in the good principles of government and citizenship. Added to this objective, he said, was the Legion's support of the policy of isolation. He suggested keeping "our nose to home" and first clean up "our own back yards."

The Legion also represented an organization of good comradeship with fine ideals and through its efforts the disabled veterans and widows and children are being cared for by the government, through the efforts of the Legion alone, he said.

Other Legion officials introduced by Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman, the toastmaster and chairman of the committee arranging the dinner, included: Louis Mann, Third District commander; Gregory Powers, state service director; Charles Parker, Third District vice commander; Mrs. Edna O'Brien, president of the Ulster County American Legion Auxiliary; William Maynard, commander of the Ulster County Legion, and Walter Clark, adjutant of the county Legion.

Fire Alarm Truck Is in Operation

At the special meeting of the fire board last evening it was announced that the new fire alarm service truck had been delivered to the fire department and was now in operation. Purchase of the truck was authorized by the Common Council.

The old service truck will be used for flood-lighting work, and the lights, which are portable, will be installed on the truck.

Sheriff Holds Two Men for Thefts

fore Justice Benjamin H. Sleight of Port Ewen, who committed them to the Ulster county jail to await the action of the grand jury.

The Jaszobsky cottage burned to the ground about April 20. Information received by the sheriff a day or so ago gave rise to suspicion that all was not as it should be in connection with the affair and he directed Deputy Sheriff Clayton Vredenburg to make an investigation, at the same time notifying Trooper John S. Metzger of the B. C. I., who joined in the investigation Wednesday afternoon.

As a result of their work the officers arrested the two Eckerts and arraigned them on burglary charges. They also recovered and brought to the court house a quantity of bedding, sweaters, a mirror and some plumbing fixtures alleged to have been stolen from the cottage. They expect also to recover other articles, including an electric motor, lawn mower and garden tools, said to be among loot from the cottage which had been disposed of in Kingston.

Sheriff Molyneaux said this morning that statements had been secured in which the prisoners admitted their connection with the burglary. When arraigned before Justice Sleight the two young men waived examination.

John A. Bishop, 41, Sunnyside, L. I.

Two hospitals at Hartford sent several ambulances to the scene, a distance of about six miles.

The accident occurred about a mile west of the Newington station just before 6 a. m., E. S. T.

Neither train was derailed and about an hour after the accident the Washingtonian, the roofs of its damaged coaches caved in and glass in the coach windows shattered, pulled away.

Butters was a flagman employed by the railroad and at the time of the accident was "deadheading" to Providence, intending to change from the Washingtonian at New Haven.

First reports reaching the railroad offices at New Haven said a boom on the work train equipment train swung out over the track on which the express was approaching, struck the locomotive, missed the baggage car and then badly damaged a day coach and two sleepers.

PACKING FOR PICNICS IS PLANNING FOR FUN!

PICNIC BOUND ON MEMORIAL DAY!

Yes, we're off for a picnic on Memorial Day. Picnic bound before the "skeeters," ants and bugs get set for battle. Off for a day out in the open. Sure, we'll come home worn and weary; but filled with enthusiasm, ready to battle life again. We'll return with a greater appreciation of this great country in which we live, and with a better understanding of those kiddies of ours who are growing up every day, growing away from us. That's why we're going to try to make this Memorial Day picnic one they'll long remember.

PICNIC POTATO SALAD

2 cups cooked diced potatoes, 1 small onion, chopped, ¼ cup chopped green peppers, ½ cup diced cucumber, 8 or 10 frankfurters, cooked, skinned and diced, 1/3 cup chili sauce, 1 tablespoon prepared mustard, salt and pepper to taste and 2/3 cup salad dressing.

Combine all ingredients except mustard, chili sauce and salad dressing. Combine these three in a separate dish and blend well before adding to the salad mixture. Chill salad before serving.

First we make the salad because it can chill and season thoroughly while we are packing the picnic hamper with pickles, olives, mustard, mayonnaise, peanut butter, beer, fruit nectars, soft drink powders or orangeade, and paper napkins and dishes. Then we'll make the sandwiches.

SANDWICHES

If there are small children in the family, make the sandwiches at home because the kiddies will become impatient if they must wait for them at the picnic grounds. Sandwich spreads may be made from left-overs the day before—chopped beef, pork, veal, lamb, ham, etc., or spreads may be purchased all ready to use. Select two or three kinds of bread for variety: white, whole wheat, rye and perhaps raisin. Salmon or tuna sandwiches are ideal for picnics if seasoned well and wrapped carefully in wax paper. Bologna and chopped relish makes another good combination, while frankfurters or hamburgers are simply perfect!

BEVERAGES

Coffee, packed in a thermos jug or made over an open fire is now a prime requisite for many family picnics. It's the old theory of a hot dish with every meal, you know. For kiddies there's hot chocolate. But don't forget the soft drinks!

HOME AGAIN!

So you're home again—and hungry! Here's a supper dish that will just fill the bill!

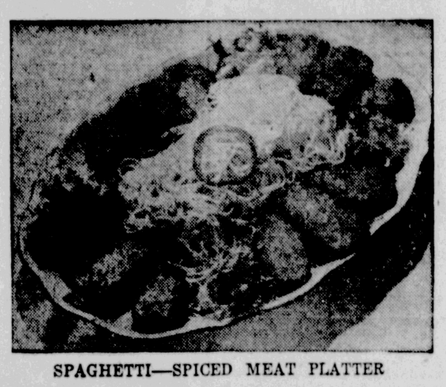

½ pound spaghetti, cooked, 1 can tomato soup, 1 teaspoon onion juice, ½ teaspoon salt, 2/3 cup grated American cheese, 2 teaspoons worcestershire sauce.

Cook spaghetti in briskly boiling salted water. Meanwhile make sauce in double boiler or in saucepan over low flame. Heat tomato soup, onion juice and salt. Stir in grated cheese. Add worcestershire sauce. Pour over cooked spaghetti in hot serving dish. Surround with browned spiced luncheon meat and serve.

QUICK COCOA

2 tablespoons sweetened condensed milk, 1½ teaspoons cocoa, few grains salt, boiling water.

Duveen Is Dead At London; Noted As Art Authority

London, May 25 (AP)—Joseph Duveen, first Baron of Millbank, one of the world's best known art authorities, died at his hotel this morning after an illness of several weeks. He was 69 years old.

Starting in his father's business in 1887, Duveen amassed a large fortune buying and selling great pictures. In 1899 he married Elsie Salamon of New York.

Duveen figured in many of Andrew Mellon's acquisitions, including purchase of Raphael's Madonna for which a record price of about one million dollars was paid in 1929. In the year before Duveen paid $360,000 for Gainsborough's "The Harvest Wagon."

He also acted as dealer in the sale of Gainsborough's "Blue Boy"—now in the Huntington galleries at Pasadena, Calif.—which he bought for about $750,000.

At various times Duveen was involved in controversies over the authenticity of art objects. In two such cases he was sued for damages—charged with having said the painting "La Belle Ferroniere" was not a da Vinci and that a supposed 13th century statue of the Virgin and Child was a fake.

'Meanest Man' Throws Acid in Minnow Pond

MODESTO, CALIF. — Everett Fisher, of Hughson, who gains a livelihood by raising minnows for bait, has nominated a candidate for the "meanest man" title.

Someone, according to a complaint Fisher made to the sheriff's office, threw acid into his fish pond, killing his entire stock of minnows.

U. S. Leads in High Rate of Marriage

Facts Are Brought Out in International Survey.

SAN FRANCISCO.—The United States is the most "marrying" nation in the world according to an international survey just completed here.

Without legislative promotion, premiums, subsidies and other means employed by some European countries to encourage marriage and raise birth rates, the marriage rate in the United States for a number of years has been a little in excess of 10 per 1,000 of population, the survey shows.

In the meantime, Germany's marriage rate has shrunk from 11.1 per 1,000 of population in 1934 to 9.1 in 1937. The Austrian rate is 6.5 per 1,000 and the Czecho-Slovakian rate, before the country's dismemberment, was 8.3.

In Italy, where a bachelor's tax is imposed to spur marriage, and baby bonuses to encourage it, its former marriage rate of 6.7 in 1935 has increased to 8.6. Other governmental measures to increase the birth rate, however, have not been so successful. In fact, the birth rate is steadily decreasing. From a peak rate of 29.7 in the 1921-25 period it dropped to 22.7 in 1937.

In the two great democracies of Europe, England and France, the marriage rate in the former is 8.6 per 1,000, an increase in recent years, while that of France shows a decline to 6.6 per cent. The latter is regarded to be due largely to unfavorably economic conditions.

The United States still maintains a relatively high birth rate, being 17.9 in 1938, compared to a rate of 22.5 during the 1921-25 period.

While all other countries show a decline in birth rate since the 1921-25 period, the United States is still exceeded by Japan with a birth rate of about 20 per 1,000, Germany 18.8, and Italy 22.4.

Austria and the now dismembered Czecho-Slovakia showed the lowest rates, slightly above 13 per 1,000 of population.

Children's Food

The most important factor in assuring good nutrition in children is the knowledge how to select the proper kinds of food and how to encourage good food habits. Children begin to form food habits soon after they are born. Parents can see to it that these early food habits are good ones that will stand by their children for the rest of their lives. Good appetite is a big help in forming good food habits. Children who have enough sleep and who do not come to meals overtired, who play actively—preferably in the open air—and who have good meals at regular hours under pleasant conditions are likely to have good appetites.

Eating between meals or "piecing" can become a bad habit that spoils the appetite for regular meals.

Creepy: A friend of Paul Wing's told him this tale as a true story: The friend, with several companions, was driving toward Westchester. A woman thumbed a ride. Ordinarily, he pays no attention to hitchhikers but as the woman looked weary and destitute, he gave her a lift. After riding for some time, the passenger announced that she had reached her destination. The only way she could repay the courtesy extended her, she said, was by telling the fortune of one of the women in the car. None cared to have her palm read, however. Then the woman announced: "I will make a prophecy. If you carry a corpse in this car before midnight, Hitler will be dead before the first of May." All laughed at the prediction. On the way home that night, a policeman stopped the car and asked that an injured man be taken to a hospital. Before the hospital was reached the man died.

Financial. Mana-Zucca, blonde composer of "I Love Life" and other well-known numbers, who recently broke into swing with "Two Little Shoes," maintains a year-round home at Miami, overlooking Biscayne bay. Recently annoyed by her gardener's failure to finish seeding the lawns, she sent him a vigorous note of disapproval. The gardener showed the note to friends and was surprised to receive an offer of $5 cash for it. A second and more vigorous note followed and that was sold at an even higher figure. Some time later the gardener showed up and was admonished severely by the composer.

"Why didn't you answer my notes?" she demanded.

"I was hoping you'd send me a new one every day," was the calm answer. "They pay a lot better than gardening."

Good Deed: On the bulletin board of the Majestic theater, where that Dwight Deere Wiman smash hit, "Stars in Your Eyes," is playing, is the picture of a little Spanish boy with a sad look in his eyes. His name is Hipolito Carreras and he is 12 years old. He is an orphan of the Spanish Civil war. The reason his picture appears on the stage of a theater in New York, when there are so many thousands like him, is that the cast of "Stars in Your Eyes" has officially adopted him through the Foster Parents plan. Hipolito is at present in a refugee camp in France, near the Spanish border. He will be transferred to a regular children's colony where he will be raised and educated for useful manhood. And a salute to each and every member of the cast of "Stars in Your Eyes."

Correspondence: The Andrews sisters report that these days mash notes come from the following types of males: High school boys who like to make their girl friends jealous by displaying a letter from a celebrity; callow youths who are too backward to express their feelings and who find an outlet in writing to girls they have never met; married men who are on the outs with their wives; smart alecks who think they can play rings around a Gable in penning torrid love blurbs; ambitious lads who'd like to marry a money-making gal—and manage her affairs, and old bucks who have become tired of whittling and have taken up letter writing.

Skip It: According to the recollection of Ernie Holst, who supplies dance rhythms at the Glass Hat, Robert Morley, John Gielgud, Noel Coward, Reginald Gardiner and other noted English performers who have dropped in from time to time have always avoided the dance floor when he swung into a rhumba. It seems that some seasons ago, in one of the Cochran revues in London, there was a skit burlesquing rhumba dancers, and the English, still recalling it, are wary. At least, that is the explanation Holst got when he made inquiries.

End Piece: Night clubs featuring Hawaiian music seem to be doing a good business. To me, that's entirely understandable. It's obvious that there are plenty of folks who, even as I, are curious to find out if there is on this earth just one Hawaiian number that doesn't sound exactly like all other Hawaiian numbers.

YOU CAN TAKE IT WITH YOU!

When we start packing a picnic lunch, we always think first of all the things that would taste simply "swell" but which we just can't take with us on a picnic. Well, here are some recipes for food dishes that you can take with you, and you'll be surprised at how they will dress up the ordinary picnic lunch.

Cream Puffs *

4 eggs, 1 cup boiling water, 1 cup flour, ½ cup butter or margarine, ½ teaspoon salt.

Combine butter or butter substitute, salt and water. Heat to boiling. Sift flour, measure and add to boiling mixture. Beat vigorously until mixture leaves sides of saucepan and does not cling to spoon. Remove from fire. Cool slightly. Add unbeaten eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after the addition of each egg until the mixture is smooth. Drop by tablespoonfuls into well-greased muffin tins or onto a baking sheet, 2 inches apart. Bake in a hot oven (400° F.) 30 minutes. Lower heat to 350° F. and continue baking 10 minutes or until firm and dry. Remove from oven. Cool. Cut a slit in the side of each with a sharp knife. Using a spoon or pastry tube insert cream filling, sweetened whipped cream or fruit. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar.

A SHORTCAKE ON A PICNIC?

That sounds like a crazy idea, no doubt. But it isn't, despite the fact that shortcakes are just the thing to serve at an afternoon bridge party or for evening refreshments, as you'll note from the illustration. For the picnic all you do is place a box of round whole wheat biscuits in the picnic hamper. Clean, chop and season the berries and place in a glass jar, and in another jar place whipping cream or marshmallow whip. At the picnic, place the biscuit on a paper plate, top with berries and another biscuit, more berries and whipped cream or marshmallow whip. What a treat!

Raisin Variety Cookies

1 cup raisins, 1½ cups granulated sugar, ¾ cup shortening, 3 eggs, ¼ cup milk, 3 cups quick-cooking rolled oats, 2 cups uncrushed cornflakes, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Rinse raisins, drain and slice. Cream sugar and shortening, add beaten eggs and beat. Add milk, oats, raisins, cornflakes, flavoring and mix. Add flour sifted with baking powder, soda, salt and spice and blend thoroughly. Drop by spoonfuls onto greased cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Yield: 5 dozen.

RAISIN VARIETY COOKIES

Coconut Pineapple Macaroons*

½ cup sweetened condensed milk, 2 cups shredded coconut, 1 cup crushed pineapple, ⅛ teaspoon salt.

Blend together sweetened condensed milk, shredded coconut, crushed pineapple and salt. Drop by spoonfuls on well-greased baking sheet 1 inch apart. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 10 minutes or until a delicate brown. Remove from pan immediately. Yield: 30.

Southern Pecan Pie*

3 eggs, slightly beaten, 1 cup light corn sirup, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 2/3 cup coarsely chopped pecan meats, 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1 cup granulated sugar.

STRAWBERRY BISCUIT SHORTCAKE

Mix together all ingredients, adding nutmeats last. Pour into a nine-inch unbaked pastry shell and bake in a hot oven (450° F.) ten minutes. Reduce heat to 350° F. and continue baking until a silver knife blade inserted in center of filling comes out clean.

Hot Water Pastry*

½ cup triple-creamed shortening, ¼ cup boiling water, 1½ cups pastry flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt.

Pour boiling water over shortening, beating until creamy. Cool slightly. Sift flour, salt and baking powder together over the shortening, mix to a soft dough, using a fork, cover with waxed paper or a plate and chill thoroughly. Roll and shape as for plain pastry.

Creole Tomatoes

1 bouillon cube, 1 cup boiling water, 6 tomatoes, 1 onion chopped fine, 1 green pepper chopped fine, 4 mushrooms chopped fine, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons bread crumbs and paprika.

HINTS

Pack shelled hardcooked eggs or peeled fruits in empty egg cartons when going on a picnic, after wrapping in wax paper. Deviled eggs carry especially well in this manner.

The flavor of canned condensed or ready-to-serve soups may often be changed and improved through the addition of a little chili powder and thick seasoning sauce.

Remove stem ends and scoop out meat of tomatoes. Mix chopped pepper, onion, mushrooms, meat of tomato and cube dissolved in boiling water. Fill tomato shells, place in baking dish, dot with butter, sprinkle with bread crumbs and paprika and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) for 20 minutes.

Salmon Steaks Creole

Combine 3 tablespoons each of prepared mustard, horseradish and chili sauce. Spread generously on thick salmon steaks, place in greased baking dish and bake 45 minutes in moderate oven (350° F.).

Spring Salad Bowl

Shred 1 cup each, cabbage, carrots and apples. Combine with 2 tablespoons light prepared mustard, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons granulated sugar and ½ teaspoon salt. Mix and serve with cheese crackers.

Marshmallow Cream

¾ cup sugar, 1/3 cup light corn syrup, ¼ cup water, 16 marshmallows (cut in quarters), 2 egg whites.

Cook sugar, corn syrup, and water together in a saucepan until it spins a long thread when dropped from a metal spoon. Remove from fire and immediately add the marshmallows. Beat until thoroughly blended. Pour the hot syrup over the stiffly beaten egg whites and continue beating until smooth. Use for all purposes where a marshmallow cream is desired. A prepared marshmallow topping may now be obtained in small-size containers—ready to use.

Cane From Malay

Cane used for the construction of porch furniture grows in the form of a vine in Malayan jungles. It is employed by the natives for the building of huts and bridges and when baked by the tropical sun, it becomes extremely durable. Gathered by the natives, this cane is shipped to Singapore from which port it is sent to our large furniture manufacturing concerns. Although it is often preferred in natural finish, cane furniture, decorated in attractive colors, is sometimes featured in the furniture markets.

Atmosphere

At or near sea level, the atmosphere is about 21 per cent oxygen. While this percentage remains constant up to an elevation of about seven miles, the actual amount of oxygen decreases at high elevations because here the air is not as compressed as at sea level. At very high elevations, above 45 or 50 miles, the lighter gases, e. g., hydrogen, predominate.

Canadian dairy production reached a total value of $220,163,527 in 1938, an increase of about two per cent over 1937.

Venice Gets Art Exhibits

Important contributions to the exhibition of the works of Paolo Veronese at Venice are being sent from foreign galleries and museums. W. R. Valentier, head of the Detroit Art institute, and one of the greatest authorities on Italian medieval sculpture, is in charge of the commission dispatching a number of works by Veronese from America. The Boston Fine Arts museum contributes four works entitled "Diana Surprised by Actaeon," "Atlanta and Meleager," "Olympia," and "The Loves of Venus and Jupiter." From the Cleveland Fine Arts museum comes the half-length portrait of Agostino Barberigo. San Francisco is sending a magnificent family portrait which was formerly in the collection of Prince Leuchtenberg at Munich, while the Cambridge, Mass., museum will loan a page of sketches for a composition of the "Baptism of Christ." These sketches are believed to represent one of Veronese's last works.

Eight Inches a Mile

The curvature of the earth is estimated to be eight inches per mile, that is, from a given point it curves eight inches for the first mile, 32 for the second, 72 inches for the third, and so on. The law is: Curvature is always equal to eight inches multiplied by the square of the number of miles from the point of contact with the earth's surface of a tangent line.

Mohawks Edge Colonials 5-4; Indies Score 5th Straight

Joe Brown Nicked For Eleven Bingles By the Upstaters

Mac Tiano and Bill Finger Out of Kingston Lineup —General Electrics Here Tonight

Slim Coleman, mystery hurler for the Mohawk Colored Giants, came to the rescue in the role of a fireman last night at Central Park in Schenectady, where the Kingston Colonials were trying for their third straight win of the New York State Baseball League. But it wasn't the locals' day. They lost 5 to 4 in a real thriller.

Big Joey Brown, winner in his first game, was the nominee of Fred Davi to make it his second in a row. Brown suffered some bad breaks in the clinches which eventually decided the outcome. Brown gave up 11 bingles in the full nine-inning stint. Coleman, who relieved Ossie Layton in the first, was touched for three hits in his span of frames.

In last night's game the Colonials were without the services of Mac Tiano and Bill Finger. In their places Manager Davi used Paul Astolas and Pitcher Toddy Uhl. Neither collected a safe knock.

Everything looked perfect for a triumph after the Colonials had swatted around in the first canto when four runs were pushed over. Husta opened with a walk but was forced at second on Benjamin's bounder to Hobson. Hoffman and DuBois worked Layton for successive passes to fill the sacks to capacity. Jack Schatzel slammed a roller to Jefferies, who kicked the ball around and then ended up by throwing home too late in an attempt to nab Benjamin. Frank Neff polled a looping single into left, scoring Hoffman and DuBois. This was enough for Layton. Buck Ewing sent in Slim Coleman. Uhl blasted a grounder to short where Hobson took the pill and fumbled. Schatzel scored on the error. Neff tried to beat the relay in from the outfield where the ball had skimmed, but was erased, Hobson to Jefferies. Coleman forced Astolas to foul out to Milton to end the uprising.

The Giants rammed back in their half. Charlie Martin blasted a solo to center and went to second as Jeffries walked. Ewing hoisted to Uhl. When Jeffries attempted to pilfer second, "Gabby" Benjamin's toss to second went soaring into center field. Pelham skied to Uhl and on the sacrifice smack, Martin romped home. Hariston lofted a long double into center scoring Jefferies. Brown tightened and forced Durant to hit back to the box.

Giants Tie Score

Coleman set the Colonials down in order in the second but his mates failed to respect Joe Brown in a like manner. Milton bounded to the box but Hobson got a walk. Coleman whiffed. Martin shot a hot liner down to second where Joe Hoffman came up with a sensational stop but in a hurry, threw wildly past Jack Schatzel permitting Hobson to anchor at third. The Giants were trailing 4-3 as Jefferies socked a hard single into right scoring Martin and then Hobson raced in to knot the score at 4-all.

Meanwhile Joe Brown and Coleman were having a duel on the mound. Coleman retired eight Colonial batters in a row before Uhl got a free trip in the fourth. Then in the seventh Kingston finally solved Coleman but not to any success. Frank Neff collected his second single but was quickly caught off first.

Martin Scores Clincher

Two straight bingles by Martin and Jefferies along with a sacrifice fly pushed the Giants out in front in their half of the seventh. Ewing slammed a lofter out to Uhl and after the catch Martin registered the deciding marker.

Kingston made one last attempt to tie up the tussle in the ninth when Tom DuBois biffed a long one into center field and pulled up at third with a triple. But again Coleman came to the rescue. Both Schatzel and Neff went down on strikes. Uhl ended the threatened rally by popping out to Pelham.

Game Tonight

The General Electrics of Schenectady will make their first showing tonight at the Athletic Field where the Colonials hope to advance past the .500 mark. Charlie Neff will hurl for the Davimen. Game time is 6:15.

Newburgh Free Academy Plays Kingston High Nine At Local Field on Friday

In the season's first crucial game of the DUSO League, Kingston High School's baseball team, undefeated so far, will stack up against Newburgh tomorrow afternoon at the Athletic Field. Game time is 4:30.

ndoubtedly the winner of this fray will have easy pickings for the coveted honors. So far this year Newburgh has been plenty tough. Kingston, authough not too powerful with the stick, has an ideal combination. From all angles, however, Kingston appears to be slight odds to come through.

Lefty Howard Brooks, who has already established himself as a capable hurler for the Millermen, will start abainst the Goldbacks. Brooks has won two up to now. Opposing Brooks will be Fornal, another outstanding moundsman.

All this week Coach Miller has been putting his charges through extra long workouts at the Smith avenue park in order to have them in complete readiness for the Newburgh invasion.

Last week a weak-hitting club representing Kingston High upset the applecart a little by spanking Middletown 14 to 4. Three pitchers failed to stop Kingston and six errors didn't help matters.

Coach Miller probably will open with the same team that plastered the Middies last Saturday afternoon down at Hughes Field: Al Decker, George Schirick, Tony Berinato and Bill "Slugger" Gavis in the infield; Jimmy Ashdown, Johnny Berardi and Hank Stoll in the outer pastures. Brooks and Ray Lindhurst will make up the battery.

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

(By The Associated Press)

This major league baseball season is as full of streaks as a faded shirt, so the fact that the 13 jinx stopped the New York Yankees yesterday caused no consternation.

People merely turned their noses in the direction of Cincinnati, where the Reds already have won nine without showing signs of tiring.

The St. Louis Cardinals also have hatched a winning streak which now stretches over six games. In addition, the National League has a couple of sizeable losing strings in existence—seven straight for the Phillies and six for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

If these seem like novelties, consider that the Boston Red Sox earlier this spring chained together seven victories while the Pittsburgh Pirates lost eight in one stretch, the Detroit Tigers dropped seven in a row and three clubs had six-game losing streaks. At one time the Washington Senators won five in a row and then turned around and dropped six.

Limits Yanks to 6

It was a rookie pitcher, Paul (Dizzy) Trout, who stopped the Yankees after they had won 12 consecutive games. He had had several chances to show his stuff this spring, but never previously had won a game. Against the champions, however, he spaced seven hits at no more than one to an inning and his mates pounded three New York hurlers for a 6-1 victory.

Although not so lengthy, the two current league winning strings are more fun because their owners are in a virtual tie for first and a false step for either will be important.

With Frank McCormick exploding his eighth homer of the season, the Reds shut out the New York Giants, 6-0, on the five-hit pitching of Big Paul Derringer, while the Cardinals kept their slim percentage advantage by a 7-0 shutout of the Boston Bees on the seven-hit flinging of Curt Davis.

Pirates on Balance

The Pirates reached a .500 average in games won and lost for the first time this year, and moved into fourth place in the National League, by beating the Dodgers, 6-3. In the other senior circuit game Claude Passeau held the Chicago Cubs to seven hits while the Phils pasted Lefty Larry French for 11, but the Bruins got theirs when they counted and won, 3-2.

The Cleveland Indians kept the Red Sox from taking advantage of the Yankees' downfall in the American League by bumping Boston, 6-2. Willis Hudlin pitched a four-hit game, but took no chances and knocked in one run with a double and later hit a homer.

Washington took a slugging spree from the St. Louis Browns, 16-6, coming from behind after the Browns tallied five times in the first three innings.

In the season's second night game the Chicago White Sox bunched three runs in the eighth to break a 1-1 deadlock and beat the Philadelphia Athletics, 4-1. Ed Smith, the southpaw Connie Mack let go to the Sox only a few weeks ago, prescribed a five-hit diet for his former teammates, who also lost their previous night test.

Baer Not Quite What He Was Once

Ferndale, N. Y., May 25 (AP)—A first-hand critical inspection of Max Baer at his training camp reveals, as one might have expected, that the former playboy champion isn't quite the man he was four or five years ago.

Max likes to think he is, and he still can out-talk a forest full of parrots, but the simple truth is the easy years have deprived the handsome Californian of a fraction of his speed and have reduced his once-marvelous stamina. In other words, Max looks and fights his 30 years.

It's still an open question whether Max has lost enough of his speed and strength to cost him his scrap with Lou Nova a week from tonight in Yankee Stadium. Perhaps he has enough left to let him sail out and smash the youngster to the canvas. But this much is certain: The longer it goes the shorter will be Baer's chances of victory.

Trains Faithfully

On the word of his manager, Ancil Hoffman, Max has worked harder for this fight than any in his career. He's been training his heart out for seven weeks here in the hills.

"He's been the first one up every morning and has been out on the road for hours," said Hoffman. "I don't know where anybody got the idea his legs are gone. That's as silly as this stuff about Jim Braddock showing Nova how to whip us. Braddock will do that kid more harm than good."

Still, Hoffman displayed an intense interest in Nova and wanted to know a dozen things about him. Particularly he wondered if Lou always kept his hands high. He was assured that he did.

"Maybe he does when he's sparring," Ancil conceded. "But will he remember all that after Max hits him once? Whatever else they say about us, Max still can hit like a mule."

Mel Ott, National League home run champion, ascribes his habit of lifting his right leg as he swings the bat to the fact that he started playing baseball at the age of 4. Even the tiny bludgeon he used in those days was so heavy for him that he needed extra power to get it into motion.

Merrill May is having a great spring as Phillies' third-baseman, but his celebration of May-day fell short of his 1938 standard. On May 1, 1938, Merrill went to bat 5 times for Newark, hit 3 home runs, a double and a single—5 hits, driving in 5 runs. May-day, 1939, a lot of Brooklyn pitching held him down to one hit, a double.

Juniors in Action

Three Barmann Park softball squads will see action at the midtown playground on Saturday when the pee-wee and junior outfits line up against Forsyth Park and the senior group meets the Texans. These activities are part of the regular program of Saturday recreation being promoted by the Recreation Department and at Barmann Park is under the expert guidance of Bill Israel, park play leader. At Hasbrouck Park the featured Saturday activity is baseball, with an intra-playground league of six teams playing a regular weekly schedule of games under the direction of David Kline. Complete programs are also conducted by the Department of Recreation each Saturday at Forsyth, Block and Hutton parks, as well as at Schools number 2 and 6.

30-Lap Sweepstakes

Altoona, Pa.—With the completion early yesterday of extensive improvements to the running surface of the Altoona Speedway mile and an eighth racing course, it appeared certain that the 100-mile-an-hour mark will be attained easily during the running of six sprint events and a 30-lap National Sweepstakes to be held here Saturday, May 27. Joie (Chief Wahoo) Chitwood, full-blooded Oklahoma Indian, will pilot his $15,000 Riverside Special in an effort to shatter the existing track record of 97.5 mph.

Bomb 2 Pitchers For Eighteen Hits In City League

Schoolboy Bush Holds Joneses to Six Bingles—Third Win for Dawkins' Star Hurler

Bombarding George Celuch and Julius Chick with an 18-hit barrage the rampaging Kingston Independents chalked up their fifth straight win by crushing the Jones Dairy in a 15-4 slugfest. Trailing 3-0 in last night's City League feature at the Athletic Field, the Dawkinsmen blasted over 15 runs in the final four innings to massacre a bewildered Jones outfit. With Charlie Bock crashing out a home run and knocking in five runs, the ex-Kyanize Powerhouse mercilessly attacked Chick for 12 bingles in the last three frames.

Jones pushed over three tallies in the second on walks to Van Derzee and Tom Berardi and singles by Scherer and Johnny Berardi for an apparently safe lead. Trailing 3-0 with two outs in the fourth, the Independents unlimbered and blasted Celuch for five markers.

Van Etten walked with one out. Dykes singled and Bing outraced Knight's fielder's choice for the first run. Bush forced Dykes at third and the threat was apparently subdued. Stumpf bingled and McLean strolled to fill the sacks and Bock put the crusher on Celuch. The Independents second sacker unloaded a base-cleaning double as three runs trickled across to shove the Dawkins tribe out ahead.

The carnage continued in the fifth on successive singles by Rider, Van Etten and Dykes before Stumpf reached first on Andy Celuch's bobble and McLean's safety with two gone for three more tallies. Lay's base knock and Hopper's three-base error on Rider's single accounted for two more in the sixth.

Relentlessly blasting Chick who replaced Georgie Celuch when Bush plunked him in the elbow during the fourth, the Independents topped off the night's mauling with five more runs in the seventh. Charles Bock's long round-tripper to deep center scoring Stumpf featured the heavy cannonading as Lay, Rider, Knight and Bush chipped in to push three more across the platter.

Joneses Collapse

Milly Bererdi crossed over with a futile counter in the sixth, reaching first on Bock's two-base wild heave and scoring on Van Derzee's one-bagger. Stumpf, Bock, Rider and Dykes with three hits apiece paced the savage base-hit bombardment as the Dairymen were put to utter rout in the closing stages. Bock's double and homer accounted for five runs.

Celuch was sailing along in great shape until disaster overtook him with two gone in the fourth as Joneses were apparently primed for a prize upset. Celuch fanned three, walked two and allowed six hits before being hit painfully on his pitching elbow by Bush's sizzler in the fourth. Chick took over and was crowned for 12 assorted safeties in three innings.

Bush chalked up his third win, allowing but six safeties and fanning a like number while issuing three walks as the Independents steam-rollered over a dazed Dairymen nine.

Bleacher Blarney

Bock's homer netted him the hat offered by A. W. Mollott, uptown clothier, for the second home run of the season.

The wolves howled lustily when "Big Moose" Rider muffed Van Derzee's foul pop in the sixth. Gene looked like an adagio dancer but wound up with a case of blind staggers.

Charlie Lay put the "tease" on Georgie Celuch aplenty. Charlie's riding rattled the Jones Dairy moundsman into blowing a five-run edge. They duel in the deep south for less scorching remarks than that, Colonel Lay, suh!

McLean played brilliantly at the shortstop post, handling six chances a la Frankie Crosetti.

Hopper swooped in fast to pluck a sure base knock away from Lay. Elmer zoomed in from way back to catch up with Charlie's savage low liner in the third.

Bunce Will Box Carmine Virgilio Here on Friday

That sixth bout on the card for Friday night's boxing show at the Municipal Auditorium will bring together Baby Bunce of Kingston and Carmine Virgilio of Poughkeepsie.

This one preliminary to the other five scraps, featuring some of the most popular sluggers in the amateurs, Charlie Forezzi, Dutch Williams, Buddy Bookman and Cliff Leger was not settled until this morning when Bunce, recent conqueror of Jackie Hogan, another local boy, was picked.

Bunce, who came back after a layoff to beat Hogan, is under the direction of Kid Chappie, former featherweight star, and hopes to chalk up win No. 2 when he clashes with Virgilio, one of the most rugged little belters in Dutchess county.

HOW A BURNING MATCH TOLD ME WHICH TIRE GIVES THE QUICKEST NON-SKID STOPS

"THERE'S NO MORE HELPLESS FEELING," says J. J. Bush, "than when your car starts to swerve and skid on a wet, slippery road. So when I heard about a new kind of non-skid tire manufactured by Goodrich, I decided to investigate."

"THEY TOLD ME that the Life-Saver Tread sweeps wet roads so dry you can light a match on its track. And I did it myself. That showed me which tire would give the quickest non-skid stops. I've played safe by riding on Silvertowns ever since."

WHEN A CHILD darts across your path in a blinding rain—when a train suddenly looms ahead at a crossing—in a hundred and one situations you may meet on a rainy day—think what it will mean to have tires on your car that really dry the road. Yes, when quick non-skid stops are a MUST, here is the tire that will give you the quickest ones you've ever had! And here's proof:

In two series of non-skid tests of regular and premium-priced tires of America's six largest tire manufacturers, including new tires which have just been introduced, Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory reports:

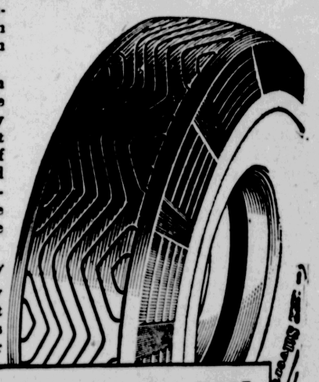

"The new Goodrich Silvertown with the Life-Saver Tread gave greater skid resistance than any other tire tested, including not only the old established tires of these manufacturers—some listed at 40% to 70% higher in price—but also the new tires which were recently tested under the same road conditions."

Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory

And just as this new Goodrich Safety Silvertown gives you the greatest skid protection ever offered, it gives you still another feature that for years has been a sensational life-saver—the famous Golden Ply blow-out protection!

No Extra Cost

You might expect to pay more for this double protection, but remember, both the skid protection of the Life-Saver Tread and the famous Golden Ply blow-out protection are yours in Silvertowns at no extra cost. The next time you buy tires—buy safety—buy Silvertowns!

Raichle Scores Hole in One— If Tiano Had Only Been There

Hard luck for the Colonials last night, that 4-5 bow to the Mohawk Giants. . . . This makes the second one over the Davimen scored by Buck Ewing's boys. . . . Too bad Mac Tiano and Bill Finger were absent from the Kingston lineup. . . . With Mr. T in there swinging his big heavy stick, the story might have been different. . . . Mickey Cochrane's new job as manufacturer's agent sometimes nets him as much as $15,000 commission for one deal. . . . Clarence "Dub" Raichle, brother of Al Raichle, Ravine street grocer, belongs to the hole-in-one club down at Poughkeepsie. . . . He drove the ball 198 feet from tee to tee for the ace which enables him to take the runner-up spot for low gross in the 18-hole test at the Municipal Links. . . . The hole in one is the first reported this season in Dutchess county. . . . Max Baer insists he hasn't had a cigarette in three months and has forgotten entirely how to bend an elbow. . . . Looks more and more like a runaway for the Independents in the City League. . . . And probably the boys will be talking about breaking up Jack Dawkins' Little Yanks, the same as they insisted that the late Col. Jake Ruppert distribute his champions among the big league clubs. . . . We can hear him yodeling his reply: "These players were all loose last winter, why didn't the managers pick 'em up!" . . . Jack, after his Kyanizers won the pennant last season, announced he'd be out of the game this summer. . . . But, he changed his mind. . . . There's nothing left for the other pilots to do but seep.

Two banquets in one night for Gilbert "Pete" Schline....That's nothing....The old rosebudder got away with a nice mess of spaghetti and chicken at No. 2, with Barmanns entertaining, easily.... Vines Impresses British Writers

Hoylake, Eng., May 25 (AP)—Ellsworth Vines had gone back to swinging a tennis racquet today, but British golf critics still were raving about the way he swings a golf club after watching him play two matches in the British amateur championship.

Bernard Darwin, the golf writer of the London Times, said today "Vines, as he started in this tournament, reminded me of the old American terror that used to spread across the course." Darwin is convinced that Vines right now is good enough to play international golf.

"I think his swing goes right back to the old model swings of Francis Ouimet and Chick Evans," he said. "He is an infinitely better swinger than the majority of the men America sent over here on its Walker Cup team last year."

Fred Pignon, golf critic of the London Daily Mail, said:

"Give Vines a year or two of tournament play and he will be on the United States Walker Cup team. I have been watching players come up since Tommy Armour was an amateur and I think Vines has the slowest model swing since Jones."

Has Tennis Dates

Vines, Don Budge, Big Bill Tilden and Lesten Stoefen are booked for European exhibition tennis matches until September. They go to South Africa in October, Egypt in November, India at the end of the year, and from there to Australia and New Zealand.

Vines plans to be back in California in March and from then on he is going to play in every golf tournament he can.

Bill Herman, Chicago Cub keystone king, is the only second-baseman in a century of baseball who ever made 11 putouts in one game on two different occasions. That 11 is the all-time record for putouts by a 2b. Charley Gehringer and Roy Hughes are the only other moderns ever to record 11 in one game. Three keystoners achieved it in the 1890's, Sam Wise, of the old Washington National League club, Bid McPhee, of the Cincy Reds, and Napoleon Lajoie, of the Phillies.

Eliminates Champion

Strong Field for Met Open Golf

White Plains, N. Y., May 25 (AP)—The Metropolitan Open golf championship, richer in tradition than any tournament except the National Open, will be renewed today at the Metropolis C. C. with one of the strongest fields in its history seeking the title won the last two years by blond Jimmy Hines.

The top-notch pros among the 80-odd starters have an added incentive this time. For the Professional Golfers' Association will award the winner 60 points in the competition for the Harry Vardon trophy, highest ranking the Met Open has been given, and the Vardon competition will be used as a basis for selecting the U. S. Ryder Cup team to meet the British in Florida in November.

The Field

In addition to Hines, who tuned up his game by shooting a practice-round 66, five under par, the other day, the field includes Sam Snead, last year's runner-up; Paul Runyan, P. G. A. champion and home pro; Jimmy Thomson, Horton Smith, Henry Picard, Gene Sarazen, Lawson Little, Harry Cooper, Ben Hogan, Ray Mangrum and U. S. Amateur Champion Willie Turnesa.

U. S. Open Champion Ralph Guldahl, looking ahead to the defense of his title June 8-10 at Philadelphia, decided not to play. Guldahl just completed a heavy exhibition schedule and feels next week's Goodall round-robin, in which he will compete against 14 others, will be preparation enough. The field for the Goodall tourney was boosted to 14 yesterday with the addition of Denny Shute.

Woodstock Trap Shoot on May 30

Woodstock, May 25—The Woodstock Gun Club of the Woodstock Fish and Game Association will hold a trap shoot at the Athletic Field on the Rock City Road on Memorial Day. The event starting at 1 o'clock, has been arranged by President Ben DeGraff so as not to interfere with the holiday activities of Woodstock Post American Legion.

Ray Wagoner, helping with arrangements for the gun club's trap-shoot, says that he expects to use both trap guns. In addition, there will be .22 calibre, still targets, for those who care to participate in that contest.

The club house will be open to guests of the club, refreshments may be had on the grounds and there is ample free parking space.

President Ben DeGraff wishes to call attention to the fact that all profits from these and other entertainment activities of the Woodstock Gish and Game Association, are expended for the stocking of the lands and waters of its territory with fish and game.

The association is responsible for the re-establishment of bobwhite quail in the Woodstock area. At present the association is facing the job of rearing for release 300 pheasants, to augment the population already established here. It is believed that this year's release will bring the pheasant population to a high enough level to produce some excellent shooting.

Jim Tobin, Pittsburg Pirate pitcher, is two seasons ahead of his home run schedule. In 1938 Jim didn't succeed in hitting any at all. By the end of May's first week this year he had circuit-clouted both in Chicago and Philadelphia and was leading Rizzo in the race for hitting homers in every park in the league. Johnny had measured only one up to that time.

Steve Mesner, juvenile infielder of the Chicago Cubs, is aiming for a repeat of his big week of 1937. At the tender age of 19, playing 3rd base for Los Angeles, Steve packed 21 hits inside of one week, 7 games played. Seven of the hits were homers, 3 of them in one game against Oakland.

Nichols Tells What Happened on Squalus

Lieutenant Says Morale Among Personnel High During Long Hours at Sea Bottom

Chicago, May 25 (AP).—The Chicago Tribune published today a copyrighted interview with Lieut. John C. Nichols, a Chicagoan who was rescued from the United States submarine Squalus off Portsmouth, N. H.

Lieut. Nichols' account of the disaster, obtained by telephone from the Naval Base Hospital at Portsmouth, N. H., follows:

"We left the naval base at 6:30 a. m. Tuesday. We had orders to practice fast dives. At 7:45 a. m. we received our O. L. to go down. One minute later the order to submerge was given by Lieut. O. F. Naquin, the commander.

"Everything seemed to be in order. The ship dropped down perfectly. She leveled off at 50 feet. A few minutes later we in the forward compartments had the first word that anything was wrong. The control room was informed the after-engine room was flooded.

"The Squalus began to handle heavily. An order was given to blow the tanks and ascend to the surface. The motors were stepped up to full speed.

Ship's Response Fails

"The crew worked fast, but the ship failed to respond. Communication with the rear compartments was cut off. We couldn't communicate with the engine room nor with the men in the rear torpedo room.

"Then the motors went out. With them went the lights. The Squalus began to sink. Whatever was wrong was aft. Apparently the ship was taking water by the air valves. The forward compartments were shut off, by watertight doors, from the flooded after parts.

"With no power the Squalus continued to sink. The descent seemed to be slow. We settled on the bottom. There was no great jar.

"She settled at an angle of about 10 degrees by the bow. My guess was that she was at about 210 feet from the surface.

"There was no panic among the men. All stayed at their stations. Orders were obeyed instantly. Lieut. Naquin told everybody to keep their heads. If they did, he said, everything would be all right.

"He was correct, so far as the personnel forward was concerned. The flooding had been localized and only a little water seeped in on us.

Marker Buoy Released

"Pretty soon the forward marker buoy was sent up. We knew this would give our location and bring help. Then we sat down to wait—and listen for the rescue ships. We wondered how long it would be until someone came along and found the buoy and the telephone wire atached to it.

"At 12:40 we heard the beat of the engines of the Sculpin, a sister ship. It was a great relief to all of us when she communicated with us on the phone. After that it was a question of holding out. We had great faith in the diving bell.

"The main thing was to conserve air—to use as little as possible and keep the supply pure. We purified it, when it got bad, with soda lime. When we had to, we released some of our oxygen.

"The men didn't talk much, nor move around a lot. Talking and moving both burn up oxygen. As it was, our supply stayed in excellent shape until just before the rescuers arrived.

"But we listened. After the telephone line went out we waited for the clank of divers' feet above us, and we tapped out messages in code on the iron above us.

"It was cold there on the bottom. In the forward torpedo room, where I was stationed, the temperature ranged between 34 and 36 degrees. Aside from the cold we were not very uncomfortable. Although the ship's power was gone, we still had lights—hanging lamps that worked on storage batteries.

Emergency Rations

"For food we had our emergency rations, but we didn't eat much. We just sat most of the time conserving strength, saving oxygen, and wondering. Most of the men stood up well physically. Two in each forward compartment—four in all—became a little sick, or perhaps just weak.

"None of us made any complaints. They didn't make any dramatic speeches. We all figured how long it would take the Falcon to arrive. We knew when she came that everything was going to be all right.

"When the bell finally was attached to the escape hatch, the men in the torpedo room were commanded to ascend first. The order included me specifically. With me went the men who seemed most nearly exhausted.

"Hope never left any of us. We knew that the rescue equipment was fine. I had seen the bell tested. Besides, we all had our Momsen lungs (individual breathing devices) and we could have attempted to get out in them if the other rescue efforts had failed.

"There is some question whether, at our depth, men could have withstood the water pressure and the cold, but the lung was still a hope."

Strawberry Festival

On June 14 the Lake Katrine Home Department will hold a strawberry festival in the Whispering Pine Grove of Mrs. John Boice on the Saugerties road, where everyone is invited to come and spend an enjoyable evening.

SUB SURVIVORS REACH PORTSMOUTH

Blanketed and bareheaded, and showing the strain of their ordeal, seven of the survivors of the ill-fated submarine Squalus arrive at Portsmouth, N. H., navy yard aboard the coast guard cutter Harriet Lane. Once ashore, the men stepped into waiting ambulances and were whisked away to Portsmouth Naval Hospital.

Townsend Clubs To Meet in City

Townsend Clubs in New York state will hold a convention in Kingston on July 15, with an afternoon and evening session. Efforts will be made to have Dr. Townsend, founder of the movement, present at the convention, and it is expected that over 2,000 delegates will attend.

The convention will be held in the Kingston Municipal Auditorium on Broadway, and it is planned to provide meals in the auditorium to those attending the sessions.

The local Townsend Club at its meeting Wednesday evening, discussed plans for entertaining the convention members and a housing committee was named to arrange for accommodations for those in attendance.

While many of those attending the convention will arrive in Kingston the night before the larger number are not expected until the day of the convention.

Telegrams were sent to Senator Robert F. Wagner and Congressman Rockefeller by the local club urging their support for the Townsend plan bill now before the legislature.

More Camels Than Frenchmen

One large and useful population group in Tunisia is made up of camels. There are more camels in Tunisia than either Frenchmen or Italians, points out the National Geographic society. Over 160,000 strong, these camels, alive, are valuable as beasts of burden; dead, their hair is made into tents, coats, and shoes; their skins into water containers that serve in the desert with almost thermos bottle efficiency. Though motor transport has to some degree replaced the traditional and odoriferous denizen of the desert, the camel is still a highly useful means of transport. Easily covering 100 miles a day, it rivals the horse in speed. Except in the hot summer months, it can go comfortably up to 10 days without drinking. Its endurance is proverbial.

The Language of Christ

The language used by Christ was the Aramaic, a dialect of northern Syria. The Israelites were much in contact with Aramaean populations, and some words from that tongue became incorporated into the Hebrew at an early date. At the time of Hezekiah, Aramaic had become the official language of both Judea and Assyria; that is, the language spoken at the courts. After the fall of Samaria, colonists from Syria came in, probably speaking Aramaic as their native tongue. The fall of the Jewish kingdom hastened the decay of Hebrew as a spoken language; upon their return to Judea the Jews found themselves a people few in number surrounded by a population using the Aramaic tongue. When the latest books of the Old Testament were written, Hebrew, though still the language of literature, had been supplanted by Aramaic as the language of common life.

Scientist Declares Bats Actually Dodge Gunfire

CLEVELAND, OHIO.—Why shooting bats at night is almost impossible, why deer are increasing in numbers in Ohio, and why mammals thrive and perish in cycles are questions studied and explained by scientists at the Cleveland Museum of Natural History, which houses the world's largest collection of mammals.

"Shooting bats at night is one of the most difficult things on earth to do," said B. P. Bole Jr., mammalogist at the museum. "The bat flies in a circle and chases the wadding fired from the shotgun. This precedes the bullet and since the bats are exceedingly fast, they actually dodge the bullet by diving for the wadding."

The deer, he said, is becoming more and more plentiful and some day may become "really common."

It has been determined that mouse epidemics which wipe out almost completely the mouse populations occur every three or four years.

"These are called mammal cycles," the scientist said. "You might consider them similar to sun spot cycles or business cycles. We are trying to trace a relationship between these and human illness."

Court Rules the Home Is Where Husband Lives

The ruling was made in the case of Ruby Atwood Boyd, who a month before her marriage to Stewart Boyd on February 1 filed suit against Boyd asking $50,000 damages as a result of injuries suffered in an automobile accident near Saugatuck, Mich., in October, 1938.

Mrs. Boyd's attorneys had asked transfer of the case to Federal court because Boyd's home was in Holland, Mich., and his wife's home, at the time the suit was filed, was in Chicago. Judge Barnes ruled that a wife lives where her husband lives and remanded the case to the Michigan Superior court.

Every Member of College Fraternity Gets Office

DALLAS, TEXAS.—If the Dallas alumni chapter of Theta Sigma Phi hadn't had $6 in the bank, it probably wouldn't have been in such a hurry to elect officers. But the alumni learned the only way they could draw the money out was to elect a treasurer to sign the check. When the election was over, all the members except two held some kind of office. So they named those two members of the advisory committee.

Women Who Spoke at Consumer's Dinner

Tuesday evening at the Kirkland Hotel the Uptown Business Men's Association sponsored the first "consumer's dinner" to be held in the city. Six local women were invited to attend the dinner by the merchants and give suggestions that would help build sales in their business houses. The ladies are, from left to right: Miss Eleanor Eberth, Mrs. Clarence H. Anderson, Mrs. Clyde Hutton, Mrs. Frederic Holcomb, Mrs. Ward Brigham and Mrs. M. Donald Lane.

Foster Grants Annulment On Grounds of Fraud

An annulment on the grounds of fraud has been granted by Justice Foster in the action brought by Helen Kozlowski of 13 Chambers street, Newburgh, against her husband, Bernard Kozlowski. The decree dated May 18 is interlocutory and was granted following trial of the action here.

Michael Nardone of Highland appeared for the plaintiff and sought the annulment on the grounds that the defendant failed to live up to pre-marriage promises. The plaintiff, who by the decree is authorized to resume her maiden name, and the defendant were married at Kingston on January 16, 1930.

Art Comes Out Into The Open For New York Sculpture Fans

By The AP Feature Service

New York sculptors believe that the way to popularize art with the man in the street is to bring it to the street for him to see—so they're exhibiting their work in a vacant lot in the heart of the city.

The idea must have merit. During the first week of the show 9,000 persons plunked down a dime at the Park Avenue lot to see the 105 pieces of sculpture—two of them pictured here. At the top is "Sleeping Cow," by Charles Ruey; below, "King of Swat," by Warren Wheelock.

The show is run by the Sculptors' Guild, founded in 1936 to popularize sculpture by making it an everyday experience in the life of Mr. Average American.

The Characters

Jocelyn Russell, beautiful heiress.

Tally Mack, young farmer whose family has inherited half the Russell estate of Seacliff.

Chapter 22

Betsy's Apology

A HALF hour before supper Bob and Gretchen and Tally changed into swim-suits and splashed and swam in the warm summer surf. When the sun was half over the horizon they came out of the breakers, laughing and calling to each other.

"Race you up to the house," Bob challenged.

Jocelyn's car was in the Macks' driveway. She was waiting for them near the back door, looking smart and expensive in a suit of pale green linen, a floppy linen hat framing her vexed face, her small feet tucked into high-heeled green sandals.

"Hello, Lyn," Bob said. "I'd kiss you if I wasn't dripping."

Gretchen and Tally started on into the house.

"Just a minute, please," Jocelyn ordered. "I wish to speak to all three of you."

She held out a red hair ribbon. "Is this Betsy's?"

"Why—why, yes," Gretchen affirmed. "Where did you find it?"

"In my room. My French doll is missing—you know, Bob, the one Geoff brought me from San Francisco—and the musical powder box and my emerald bracelet. Since I found her hair ribbon on the floor beside my dressing table, I gather that Betsy took the things."

Bob looked at his wife, who appeared completely astounded. "I'm very sorry, Lyn," he said. "I'll get the things, of course, and return them to you."

Jocelyn had meant to be reasonable about the whole affair, but Tally's eyes were so scornful that she heard herself blurting:

"It isn't that the items are valuable, Bob. But the child certainly should know better than to steal. You must punish her severely so it won't happen again!"

Gretchen pushed the damp black hair off of her cheeks. "I will not punish her, Miss Russell," she declared. "I don't blame her one bit. We've always been too poor to buy her fancy dolls and other toys. The ones we gave her were cheap and shoddy. She never saw beautiful, expensive things before. She's not a thief and she knows better, but she wanted them so badly she took them anyhow, knowing she couldn't keep them and knowing she would be punished. Don't you realize she's still a baby? Only five years old? I have taught her not to take things that aren't hers . . . but even grown people sometimes forget if they are tempted enough. I'll get the things for you and I'll talk to her about it, but I refuse to spank her or let anyone else!"

Gretchen hurried into the house, Tally following. Bob looked at his sister's perturbed face.

"I'm so ashamed of you, Lyn," he said, then turned his back and slammed into the kitchen.

'Unfair'

BETSY'S misdemeanor cast a pall over the usually gay dinner table in the Macks' kitchen. Betsy herself was not present, having been confined to her room by her mother, who had talked to the flushed, defiant child until she burst into tears.

"I couldn't get a word out of her," Gretchen said miserably. "I don't know what to do. I wouldn't have had this happen for anything. Whatever possessed her, anyhow?"

"Jocelyn needn't have made such a fuss," Bob asserted.

"Would you like me to handle it?" Tally asked, realizing that both Bob and Gretchen were too distraught to be reasonable.

The young couple nodded. "Tally's allus the goat," Gramp commented. "Don't you go startin' a fight with Josie now. She prob'ly feels jest as bad as us about it."

When the meal was finished Tally went up to Betsy's room, collected the purloined articles and the child, and went around to the Russells' front door.

Jocelyn came out on the porch, observed the little girl's tear-stained cheeks, and felt wretched about the whole affair. Betsy regarded her with solemn, chastened eyes as Tally gave her a little shove forward.

"I'm terribly sorry I tooked your doll and things," she recited dutifully as per instruction. Then on her own she added, "I didn't steal 'em, though. Mister Bob said one time he'd get me a doll like this one and I just wanted to show it to him so's he'd know what kind to get me—an' I thought maybe if he saw the box that sings and the bracelet, he maybe would get me those, too. I was going to put every single thing back, I was. Honest and truly, Miss Joshlyn!"

"You didn't tell me that, Betsy," Tally chided.

"I couldn't, Uncle Tally, 'cause everybody scolded me so much—"

There were tears in Jocelyn's eyes as she knelt down before the little girl. "I'm sorry, too," she said softly. "You see, when I was a little girl my grandma always bought me everything I wanted and I didn't realize how a little girl would feel when she saw pretty things she couldn't have. I want to give you the doll and the singing box and I'll buy you a bracelet that will fit your wrist much better than this big one—"

"You mean I can keep Molly?" Betsy asked in an awed voice.

"Yes."

A little hesitantly Betsy went close to Jocelyn and reached out her chubby arms. Jocelyn drew her near and hugged her. "Is everything all right now?" she whispered, deeply stirred by the feel of the child's trembling body.

"No," declared Tally, "it isn't Betsy cannot have the things."

Jocelyn stared at him over the top of the child's head. "But why not?"

"Because she has to learn not to help herself to other people's possessions. Do you think this experience will do her any good if now, after raising a row and accusing her of stealing, you very generously give her the things?"

Jocelyn stood up, contempt darkening her eyes as they met his. "I think she's had her lesson. I also think you're being unfair and unreasonable!"

"And I think you're being inconsistent and stupid!" he retorted. "Come along, Betts."

"I want the dolly—" she wailed. "Joshlyn gived it to me, Uncle Tally—"

'Mire Of Self-Pity'

HE PICKED her up in his arms. "You can't have it, Betsy. It isn't yours."

"You are the most impossible, the most stubborn, the most contrary male I ever saw in my life!" Jocelyn raged.

"Oh, be quiet," he ordered. "You make me sick. I'm not going to have Betsy growing up into a spoiled brat, and that's final. If she finds out now that she can't have her own way whenever she wants it, she'll be a fit companion for people when she grows up."

"Meaning I'm not?"

"Exactly."

Thorndyke opened the door and peered out at the bristling antagonists. "What's going on out here, Lyn?"

"Good night, Miss Russell!" Tally said with stiff politeness, ignoring Thorn. He strode off around the back of the house, holding the weeping child against his shoulder.

Thorn tried again. "Lyn, what is the trouble?"

"Oh, it's none of your business!" she snapped and pushed past him into the drawing-room.

Thorn, his feelings injured, wandered off toward the beach; settled disconsolately on the wooden steps leading from the terrace down to the sand. He had no place in particular to go; nothing in particular to do. He was a very lonely man. He felt very sorry for himself. Nobody wanted him around. Nobody liked him. Nola was probably having a grand time in Honolulu and was glad to be rid of him. He wallowed in a mire of self-pity.

If, he considered, he had followed Nola to Honolulu at once there might have been a reconciliation. He really had wanted to, but that procedure would have necessitated digging into the intact bulk of inherited securities. It seemed to him now that he had been very foolish to hoard the money. Bob was independent of it and Lyn, marrying Geoff, soon would be. There was no valid reason for being miserly. That forty thousand, invested, might make him a great deal more. Any sort of business venture was out, of course, but he had heard tales of making money quickly. And since the entire sum was practically his, he might as well put it to some good use, for if he lost it . . . and nothing like that would happen, for he was much too shrewd . . . no one but he would be hurt; and, if he made lots of money, Lyn as well as himself would benefit. Besides, Nola had so much money that he, comparatively speaking, was a pauper. Nola might have more respect for his capability if he could demonstrate a concrete example. . . .

A shuffling sound on the other side of the fence disturbed his reflections. Good heavens! couldn't a man think without being aware of the intruders who shared his house?

A gaunt stooped figure rounded the last outpost of fencing and ambled through the sand toward him.

"H'lo," Gramp offered serenely. "It's a mighty purty night out, ain't it? I jest couldn't make my old bones be still with that there moon a-shinin' over the water. That old sea is mighty trech-rous though, even if it looks mighty harmless from here—"

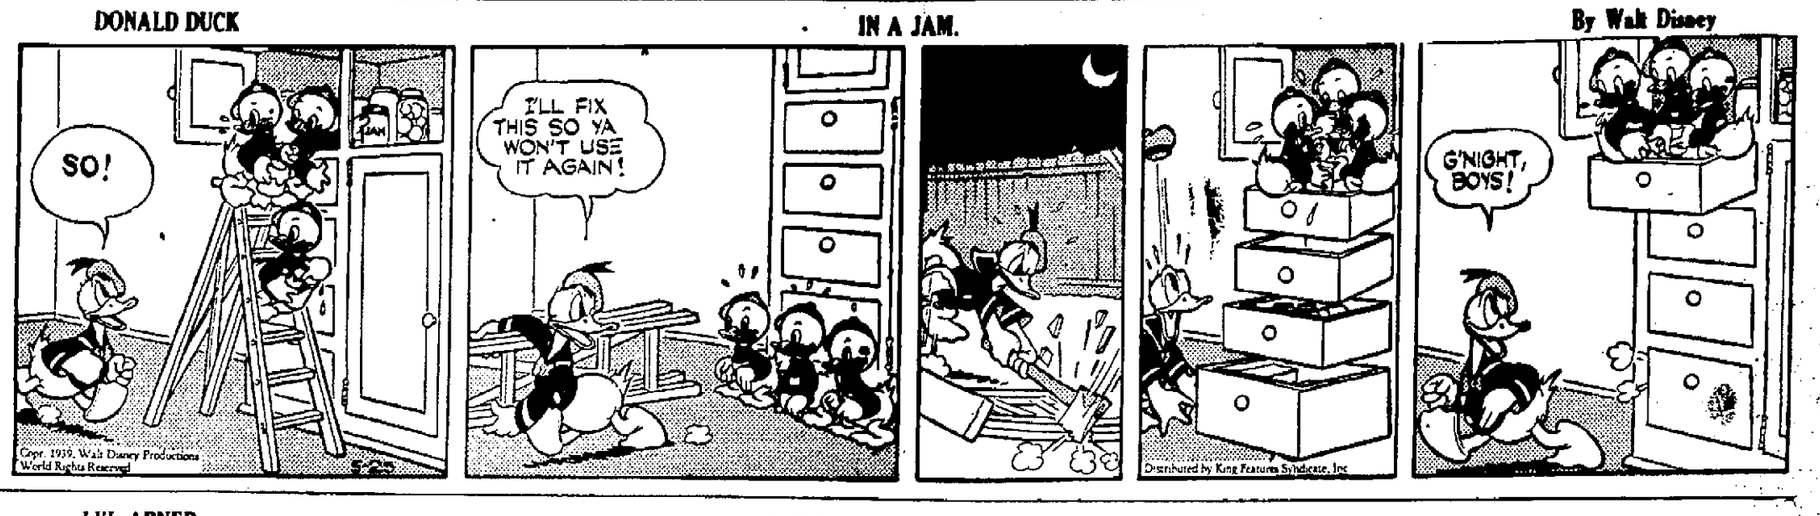

Thorn followed the old man's glance out over the vast reach of ocean and surprised himself by saying, "I guess it is treacherous, at that. You sailed on it for a good many years, didn't you?"

"Yep." Gramp, bracing himself on the stair railing, sank with slow effort to the step just below Thorndyke. "A man does peculiar things when he loses a woman he loves. After your grandma run away with Homer I just didn't mind much what become of me."

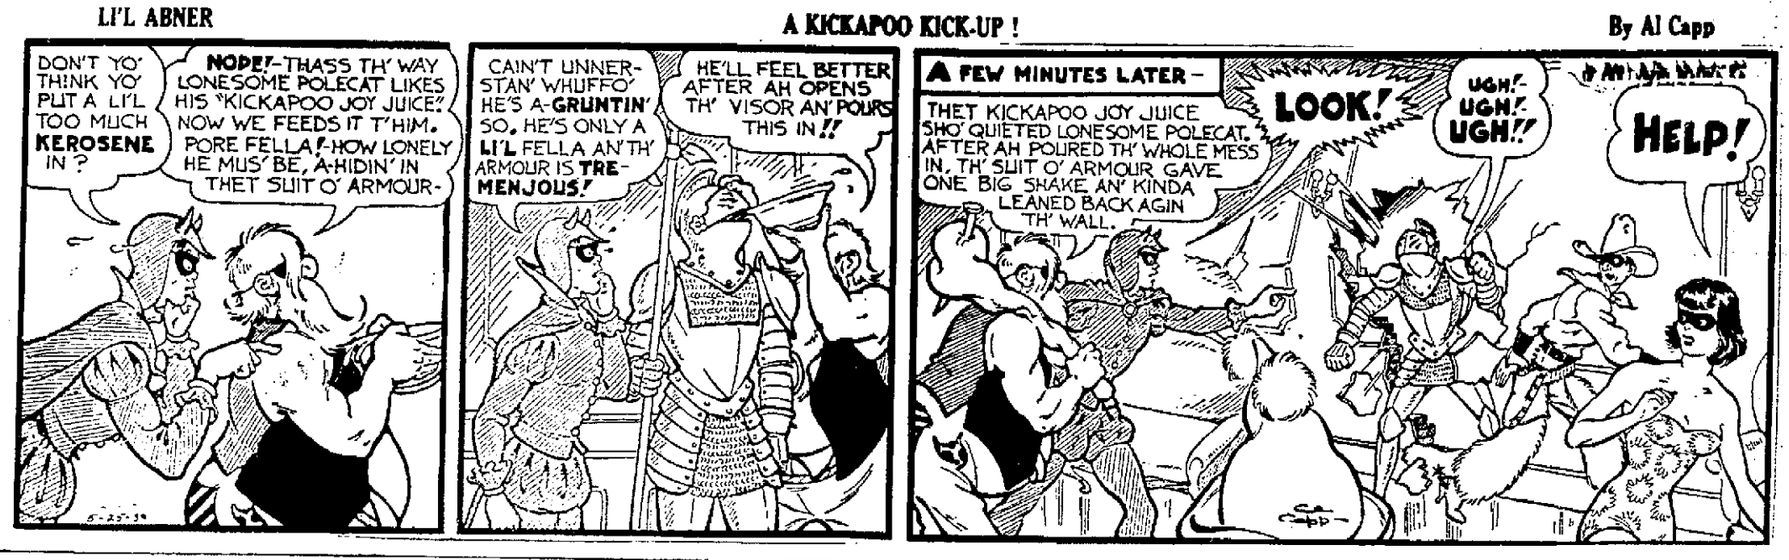

Continued tomorrow.

TRADE MARK REG.

Bessie—No, Mr. Smartboy, I'm not ready to marry.

Billy—Will you let me know when you are?

Bessie—Yes, I'll send you a wedding announcement.

Every season has its advantages and disadvantages. Among the disadvantages of coming summer is moths and house flies.

Bjones (sadly)—I wish I were dead.

Cuddlipp—What's the matter? Can't you marry her, or did you?

Possible current simile: As busy as an insurance adjuster.

A wealthy American engaged an English tutor for his son.

"Take him up into the mountains," he said, "and break him of the habit of using slang."

"I'll do that," replied the tutor.

Two months later the pair returned home. The anxious father rushed up to the tutor for a report.

"Did you have a successful trip?" he asked the tutor.

"You said a mouthful; I'll say we did," was the reply.

It is nice to have an occasional vacation, especially a vacation from war scares.

"You don't seem to regret the fact that a number of people speak unkindly of you."

"No," replied Senator Sorgahum, "the only kind words that ever secure unanimous endorsement are those that compose an epitaph."

If people depend on you, try not to fail them. But life will be happier for you if you try to so guide your affairs that you do not depend overmuch on anyone else.

The mistress entered the kitchen hurriedly.

"Weren't you told to watch when the milk boiled over?" she asked.

"I did ma'am," replied the maid. "It was just half past nine."

The women spend millions every year on cosmetics but they get results.

"Is your husband fond of home cooking?"

"Yes, we are now taking our meals at a restaurant that makes a specialty of it."

A man was grumbling about the heat. Said another, who had just returned from a trip through the south:

"Hot! Boy, you don't know what hot is. One day this week in Mississippi I saw a dog chasing a cat and they were both walking."

First Typist—Are you getting on well in your new job?

Second Typist—No. I'm not. The boss hasn't complimented me on anything but my work.

If a man is dependable in big things he will also be in small ones.

Heyton — Is a chicken big enough to eat when it's two weeks old?

Vanda—Certainly not.

Heyton—Then how does it live.

Many of the rewards of the world go to the brilliant, yet a great many others go to the non-brilliant but loyal and faithful.

Stingo—It's hard to collect money in these times.

Bingo—How do you know? Are you a collector?

Stingo—No, but a lot of people have tried to collect from me.

Female Reformer (visiting jail)—You say your love for books brought you here? Just how did that happen?

Prisoner — Yes, they were pocketbooks, lady.

LABOR—Spring is always the season of new life, new hopes, new ambitions. But, alas, so many of our hopes and ambitions are short lived, wilting under the hot sun of adversity. Mental gardens require just as much hard work as do our onion and radish patches.

Fast Pigeon

Torn Down for Logs

Nashville, Tenn. (AP)—A 112-year-old, two-story log building on the River Road was torn down —so that its firm, handhewn logs might be used in building a home of more modern design.

The American Sway!

The Spirit of '76 has hit the night clubs of '39. Latest of the Yankee Doodle ditties they've sponsored is a dance called "The American Sway," which Georgie Hale originated to introduce a new Broadway hot spot show.

"It's intended to show the spirit of American youth," says Hale. Billie Bernice, who calls herself a "Tulsa, Okla., Yankee," and who is captain of the chorus, here demonstrates the number, using "prop" flags. In the finale, Miss Bernice and the chorus toss away the flags, don snare drums, and prance off to a martial rhythm.

Two Actions Settled

Two actions commenced Tuesday in supreme court were settled. Earl Osterhoudt and Daisy M. Osterhoudt sought to recover damages from Bardavon Theatres Corp., Poughkeepsie, for an injury which Mrs. Osterhoudt suffered at the theatre. Last March the cases were announced settled but the plaintiffs rejected the offer of settlement and brought the cases on again for trial at this term. After the cases had been partially tried they were settled. Plaintiffs sued for $4,000. Lounsberry and Lonstein for plaintiffs and Paul S. Merritt for defendant.

Mexican Aviator Sets New Record

His record-breaking flight climaxed ceremonies opening the Mexican pavilion at the fair.

The dark-haired wiry little flier completed the 2,085-mile hop in 10 hours and 47 minutes, eclipsing the record of 14 hours, 19 minutes set May 8 1935, by the late Amelia Earhart.

A red light danger warning flashed from Floyd Bennett Airport's signal tower as the stubby monoplane buzzed through the dusk last night like an angry yellow bumblebee.

With only one gallon of gasoline left, Sarabia was afraid to circle the field for a normal landing against the wind. A strong breeze whipped across the plane's tail as he set the wheels down at 115 miles an hour—for a risky but perfect landing.

Sarabia, 39 and head of Mexico's largest domestic airline, was met by his wife and three children and Mexican state officials.

FIRST TO REACH SUNKEN SUB

Navy Diver Frank P. Miller still carries his diving suit as he tells a graphic story of how he reached the deck of the sunken submarine Squalus in 240 feet of water. Noise of his heavy boots was a signal to the entombed crew that rescue was at hand. Miller, shown at Portsmouth, N. H., spent 15 minutes connecting the diving bell, in which rescues were made, to sub.

Mary Recovers From Accident

London, May 25 (AP)—Queen Mother Mary, recovering from bruises and a minor injury to one eye, today dispatched a letter of thanks for flowers brought by Albert Cooper, driver of the truck involved in the collision in which she was injured.

The 47-year-old driver took the small bouquet to her residence, Marlborough House, yesterday.

The letter was written by Lady Constance Milnes-Gaskell, lady-in-waiting to the queen, who was in her car at the time of the accident. It expressed hope that Cooper was none the worse for his experience of Tuesday.

A statement today by the queen's physicians said:

"Her Majesty Queen Mary has had a good night and is more comfortable and Her Majesty's general condition continues to improve."

The queen mother, 72 years old tomorrow, apparently was not tired by watching a television broadcast of yesterday's Derby and listening last night to her son, King George VI, speak from Winnipeg, Canada.

Manners Unforgotten

Portsmouth, N. H., May 25 (AP)—It takes more than a tense situation to make a navy man forget his manners. When Lieut. Robert W. Robertson, of Quanah, Texas., ascended a short wharf last night after his rescue from the sticken submarine Squalus, he paused before a Coast Guardsman, clicked his heels and executed a smart salute.

Ellenville Skater Sues for Injury

Wednesday a case involving cows came up for attention in Supreme court and this morning Justice Foster found the court involved in a roller skating case, two matters, remote from the usual automobile negligence actions which predominate in courts today.

Frank McCord sued Frank Agor, Jr., in an action on note growing out of a cow deal in town of Gardiner. The plaintiff and defendant engaged in a deal involving several head of cattle and the cattle proved to be of such quality that they were returned and an action now results over payment of a note involved in the transaction. Jules Ewig appeared for plaintiff and Arthur O. Mahary, Jr., was counsel of record for the defendant. The case went to the jury today.

Next following was an action brought by Samuel Finkelstein, of Ellenville against Pioneer Engine Company of Ellenville and the former proprietor of the Ellenville Roller Skating Rink. Plaintiff claims he fell against a heating pipe in Norbury Hall and broke his leg. His contention was the operator of the rink had failed to protect it properly. John A. Bonomi, who incidentally was one of the instructors at the rink, is attorney for plaintiff.

The defendant Pioneer Engine Company appearing by A. J. Cook claim the hall was leased by it and therefore no responsibility lies with the hose company. The former operators of the Ellenville ring claim that at the time Finkelstein was skating that he was doing so after the rink had closed and while he, as head of a group of Ellenville business men, was in charge. It is contended that Finkelstein made arrangements for use of the rink after it closed at 11 o'clock at night, that on the night of the accident he was at the head of a group of business men who were using their ink and that he in effect was a sub-lessee of the rink.

Mr. Finkelstein denies this and said on the stand he had asked the proprietor to open the rink between 11 o'clock and 1 o'clock to a group of business men so they might learn to skate. The first arrangements were made and the plaintiff said he collected the money from the class and paid for the tickets but after that when he got the class of about 20 together he no longed did this but that each man paid his admission to the proprietor or his employe.

Defendant claims that in addition to now operating the extra class, that the rink had been sub-let to his sister at the time of the accident on May 18, 1938, and that even though Mr. Finkelstein did not act as a sub-lessee of the premises that the rink was not in his possession after May 2, 1938. It is further contended by the defendant that skating is a dangerous sport in which the skater assumes his own risk as to injury.

Lawrence Levine appears for the operator of the rink.

Lignin From Corn Cobs Softens Hard City Water

AMES, IOWA.—In their search for some practical use for lignin, one of the country's principal waste products, federal chemists have discovered that recovered lignin is more effective in treating hard water containing iron than commercial compounds now in use.

At the agricultural by-products laboratory in Ames, chemists of the department of agriculture treated hard city water, hard well water, and water containing added iron with lignin prepared from corn cobs and found this material to be effective as an iron-removal agent.

Supplies of lignin are inexpensive because they are almost limitless. Roughly, one-fourth of all wood plants, including trees, is lignin. As a waste product of wood pulp mills, where its disposal pollutes streams, it amounts to about 1,500,000 dry-weight-tons each year. At least 6,000,000 tons a year is available from corn stalks and an equal quantity from wheat straw. Other extensive supplies are cottonseed hulls and sugarcane bagasse—the fiber remaining after the juice has been squeezed from it.

The discovery promises the first extensive use for lignin in its original form, because few cities have water sufficiently pure that it does not require treatment for removing iron, which imparts an unsightly appearance and undesirable taste.

Stocks Made Broad Gain Wednesday

Stocks staged the broadest advance in a month yesterday with volume reaching the million-share mark for the first time since April 12. Various reasons for the sudden spurt are advanced, the most reasonable of which would appear to be the strength shown in the London market and more reassuring reports on the foreign situation generally. Certainly the mixed indices of business are not what might be termed overwhelmingly bullish, although there has been a shade of improvement in certain lines during the past week.

The market opened stronger, with industrials in the Dow-Jones list, which showed a loss of 0.68 point Tuesday, being up nearly half a point at the opening yesterday, showing continued gains throughout the day and closing at 135.04, the high point for the day, a net gain of 3.27 points. This is the greatest advance these issues have made since April 15, when they gained 3.41. Rails and utilities made comparatively good showings, the former advancing 0.76 point, to 27.66 and utilities being ahead for the day 0.72 point, to 23.54.

Commodities were up, the Dow-Jones index showing a gain for the day of 1.12 points, the largest single day's advance since the middle of July a year ago. Silk continued to soar, May No. 2 contracts being up 28 cents a pound, to $2.81, a new nine-year high. Cotton and wheat made new highs for the season. Cotton showed advances of as much as 90 cents a bale, closing prices being up eight to 13 points. On reports of crop damage due to high temperatures threatening premature ripening, wheat was up 2⅜ to three cents in Chicago. Corn futures closed as much as 1½ cents a bushel higher. Flour for the New York metropolitan trade made a further advance of ten cents and present prices show a rise of from 20 to 60 cents a barrel from levels of a week ago, with rye flour up 85 cents a barrel. Trading in May delivery for wool tops closed at 84.3 cents a pound, an advance of eight points. May butter futures advanced to a new high of 23 cents a pound at Chicago, with November deliveries up to 24.48. There was activity in hides prices showing a basis of 11 cents for spot light native cow hides, an advance of ¼ cent over previous sales.

The London market was strong, with a scarcity of offerings and prices advanced further in late trading following Prime Minister Chamberlain's statement on the Anglo-Russian negotiations. The Times industrial average showed a gain of one point and rails also were up. The Paris Bourse showed a firmer tone, but volume was low and gains moderate. Amsterdam was firm.

The first 12 railroads to report net operating income for April show a rise of only 10 per cent over the 1938 month whereas March showed a gain of 131 per cent over the preceding year. Result of the soft coal shutdown.

Electric output last week showed a gain of 10.3 per cent over the 1938 week, no change from the preceding week's showing.

Westinghouse Electric this month will distribute to employes a bonus of five per cent, as against three percent in April. Advance due to increased earnings and bookings, April earnings being indicated at $1,210,290, highest month so far for the year.

Hecker Products declared an extra dividend of 40 cents on common; paid regular quarterly of 15 cents on May 1. Petroleum Corp. of America voted dividend of 30 cents. American Power & Light voted 75 cents on $6 preferred and 62½ cents on $5 preferred. American Safety Razor announced quarterly of 30 cents; Lone Star Cement declared 75 cents on common. Atlas Corp. pays 25 cents on common.

New York, May 25 (AP).—Stocks worked up early rallying speed in today's market, then slowed to a crawl as profit taking interference appeared.

Gains, running to 2 or more points at the best, were substantially reduced or cancelled near the final hour. On the opening flurry the ticker tape fell behind for a brief moment. The rush quickly subsided and transfers for the full session were at the rate of approximately 1,000,000 shares.

Speculative sentiment was given a list by announcement of Treasury Secretary Morgenthau that congressional leaders had agreed with the President on a tax program that would "definitely" contribute to business recovery.

Prominent on the rising side the greater part of the time were shares of U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, Glenn Martin, American Telephone, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Johns-Manville, U. S. Gypsum, Southern Pacific and Standard Oil of N. J.

Find Hidden Taxes In Butter Costly

Consumers Hit for Fifty Million in Year.

CHICAGO.—Hidden taxes paid by American families in the retail purchase of butter alone amounted to $50,000,000 last year, the National Consumers Tax commission estimates.

This burden, paid by all butter purchasers as an unseen part of the retail price, is made up of taxes originally levied against dairy farmer, trucker, creamery, railroad, wholesaler and retailer, an N. C. T. C. study states. It places average annual consumption at 12¼ pounds for every person in the country.

The commission, non-partisan women's organization with study groups in 4,200 communities opposing "consumer-penalizing taxes," lists 17 state and local taxes and 29 federal levies involved in the manufacture and distribution of butter.

"These taxes make up 11.3 per cent of the cost of an average-priced pound of butter," states the report, made public at N. C. T. C. headquarters in Chicago. "Thus a pound selling for 27 cents produces more than three cents for the hidden tax collector."

The commission declares that the taxes against the various steps of producing and selling butter are "too heavy to be absorbed and the businesses, of necessity, must pass on at least part of the burden."

The N. C. T. C. study was based on reports of the U. S. department of agriculture which placed butter production in the country last year at 1,780,000,000 pounds.

Harvard Museum Lifts Faces of Ancient Beasts

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.—Harvard is now going in for face-lifting, beauty treatments and massages in a big way, but local beauticians need not fear the competition as the subjects of these "beauty aids" are—prehistoric monsters.

For the boys who like their pets large and wholesome looking, the Harvard scientists have discovered that red paint, dental drills and vacuum cleaners are the best aids in giving the monsters a lifelike appearance.

So visitors to the Museum of Comparative Zoology at Harvard need not wonder as to the sanity of its employees should they see a horned dinosaur being painted a gay red or young men using vacuum cleaners on the monsters' spines.

White Man's Pie Not So Easy for Canadian Indian

GOLDFIELDS, SASK. — Mining cafes and restaurants here are a novelty to Indians, unaccustomed to dining out. They encounter difficulty in ordering and eating properly the white man's dishes.

When a pot of tea on a saucer was brought to one bewildered Indian, he poured the tea into the saucer and added sugar. This frontier custom, however, was not so strange as the experience another Indian had with a piece of pie. At first he attempted to eat it with a knife. He was handed a fork, but the waitress finally had to bring him a spoon before he could finish the pastry.

Shortage of Wives Arises For High-Caste Indians

LONDON.—Sorry is the fate of one out of every five high-caste Indians today. Owing to the shortage of eligible wives only four out of five may wed. The others, being unwed and therefore sonless, must go to the nether regions.

This and other superstitious beliefs still prevail in India, according to Sir Edward A. H. Blunt, author of "Social Service in India," which has just been published.

High-caste Indians still cling to taboos, he writes. A wife may not mention her husband's name and brothers-in-law and sisters-in-law may not speak to one another.

Students Find Faculty Average Is Only 'Fair'

KENT, OHIO.—Some professors received flunking grades and their average grade only was "fair," according to the results of a poll in which Kent State university students turned the tables and graded their instructors.

Five professors received straight A averages, but faculty members who did not do so well demanded specific grades rather than numerical averages.

2,327,000 Domestics Are Employed in U. S. Homes

WASHINGTON. — Domestic servants employed in private homes in the United States number 2,327,000, according to an estimate made by Rae L. Needleman of the social security board's bureau of research and statistics. Though women dominate the domestic service picture, outnumbering men better than 10 to 1, they only contribute 23 per cent of all workers gainfully employed in the United States, and only 28 per cent of applicants for social security account numbers.

General housekeepers, or "maids of all work" constitute more than half of all domestics employed in private homes. They are estimated to number 1,240,086. Other classifications include: Cooks, 273,594; housekeepers and stewards, 195,808; launderers and laundresses, 357,525; untrained nurses, 153,443; chauffeurs, 94,270, and waiters, 12,131.

The children's choir sang the responses during the services attended by relatives and friends. The Rev. Edmund E. Burke recited the rosary at the Henry J. Bruck Funeral Home for the repose of the soul of Mr. Fiorino Wednesday evening. Father Burke also accompanied the cortage to St. Mary's Cemetery, where the burial took place in the family plot. Bearers were Anthony Turck, Augusto Cerasaro, Samuel Di Muccio and George Machtold.

Dry Brook, May 25.—The community was shocked to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. John Vermilyea, aged 32, early Monday morning from a heart attack. Mrs. Vermilyea had been about as usual on the morning of her death. Mr. Vermilyea had arisen before her and gone to the barn to do his chores as usual and noticing no smoke issuing from the chimney he returned to the house to learn the reason and found her lying on the kitchen floor in what he thought was a state of unconsciousness. He immediately summoned Dr. Beatty and other help but upon their arrival it was found she was beyond medical aid. Mrs. Vermilyea was formerly Miss Mary Dickman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dickman of Margaretville, and a graduate of Margaretville High School. She was the mother of two children, Lois, 8, and Edwin, 6. She leaves besides her husband and children and mother and father, three sisters, Mrs. Raymond Vermilyea, and the Misses Grace and Ruth Dickman. The funeral was held in the M. E. Church on Thursday at 2:30 p. m., with burial in Wood Cemetery.

U. S. Divorces on Increase As World War Aftermath

Divorces in the United States showed a heavy increase as an aftermath of the World war, maintained a high level during the prosperous years following 1922 and, for some unexplained reason, took a sharp turn upward to unprecedented heights beginning with 1934, statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company have discovered.

They base their conclusions on a study of the divorce trend in New England, the only section of the country for which data covering a long period are available. In these states, the ratio of divorces in 1937 to the annual average of marriages for the preceding decade was 168 per cent greater than the corresponding ratio for 1890.

Many of the post-war divorces probably resulted from disillusionment after hasty marriages with soldiers bound for the front, the statisticians point out, while others were the result of opportunity presented by prevailing high wages and war profits, which furnished the necessary funds that would otherwise have been lacking.

The increase in divorces occurring in the prosperous period after 1922 ran true to form, it is explained, because it is well known that the incidence of divorces usually follows the business cycle closely. The record rise that started in 1934, however, is not so easily explained, as "no data are at present available which offer an authoritative interpretation of this remarkable development."

The statisticians suggest, however, that many of these recent divorces may have been "poor men's divorces," instituted on the grounds of nonsupport and abandonment, in this connection it is significant that the chief statutory cause of the recent rise was "cruelty," a convenient designation for concealing a variety of actual causes.

Woman Succeeds Her Husband as Sheriff

ABERDEEN, S. D.—Mrs. Bertha G. Solberg enjoys the distinction of being the only woman sheriff in South Dakota. She succeeds her husband, Ole, who died recently after an auto accident. Brown county commissioners appointed her to the office after a petition bearing several thousand names, urging the appointment, had been filed with the auditor.

New Citizens Get Bids to Services

In compliance with the effort of the Secretary of Labor of the United States to hold Annual New Citizen's Day, a special effort is being made locally by County Clerk James A. Simpson, to have a representative group of newly naturalized citizens at the Memorial Service to be held in the Municipal Auditorium Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service of the country is cooperating in the general nation-wide program, and County Clerk Simpson as Naturalization Officer of the county, urges local cooperation in having a representative attendance of new citizens at the Sunday service.

Arrangements for the service Sunday have been made by the United Veterans Association of Ulster county, and acting upon the desire of the Secretary of Labor, the Veterans Association is inviting all persons, who have become citizens of the United States during the past three years.

An address on "Americanism" will be delivered by Major Albert J. Callan of Chatham. Selections will be played by the Kingston Band and short addresses will be made by members of the local clergy. Invitations are being sent out by County Clerk Simpson to groups of the newly naturalized citizens.

Explorers to Probe Mystery of City

of the submerged city, he explained:

"When the sea is calm you can see in the crystal-clear water 300 feet below, the dim outline of the coral-encrusted walls of the ancient-town that was a thriving community long before the Revolutionary War, long before there was any United States."

With Captain Hall aboard the Albee are Capt. R. A. Phraner from whom the ship was chartered; Jack Browne, president of the Diving Equipment and Salvage Company of Milwaukee, Wis., manufacturer of the helium self-contained diving suits, Rupert Conrad, artist and sculptor of Detroit; George Lawson, illustrator; James Murdoch of Pittsburgh, University of Michigan student, and Jack Callouette, also a Michigan University student

Hall, 38, is the son of Robert S. Hall, founder of an engine manufacturing concern bearing his name. Widely traveled and a licensed air plane pilot, Hall flew in Mexico as a revolutionary soldier of fortune. He explored Caribbean waters in 1932, when he conceived the idea for his present expedition. His first mate will be Frank Picard, 25, who has circled the globe five times.

Ember Day Adaptation

Ember days, which were instituted by Pope Gregory as days of fasting and prayer, are the Wednesday, Friday and Saturday after the first Sunday in Lent, after Whitsunday, after the fourteenth of September and after the thirteenth of December. They were an adaptation of a Roman season of prayer and fasting with petitions to the Roman deities for success in the spring seeding, the June bountiful harvest, September rich vintage and December winter seeding.

GOOD NEWS BRINGS COLLAPSE

This was the jubilant scene in the Washington, D. C, home of William Isaacs when his parents (R) and his brother, Howard, (L), learned that he was among the first seven saved from the Squalus Soon afterward, the father collapsed from the strain of past 24 hours

Gas Tells Age of Rock

A new method of measuring small amounts of gases extracted from rocks has been developed by Dr Alfred C. Lane, professor emeritus of geology at Tufts college It will measure a volume as small as a grain of wheat extracted from a ton of rock or very much smaller amounts taken from smaller samples It is a vacuum tube containing a fine wire whose resistance is altered by the impact of the gas molecules which reduce its temperature. It is used in measuring the amount of helium produced by the breakdown of radium in rocks The amount of this gas gives an index of the length of time the radium has been disintegrating in the rock and this gives the rock's age and that in turn gives an index of the earth's age. The more accurate determination made by this device gives the earth's age as 2,000,000,000 years or more, says Professor Lane.

Family Tradition Survives

In the days when the Venetians held the secret of fine glass making and kept it under penalty of death, the skill of the glass blowers was passed from father to son for generations. The death penalty was repealed a thousand years ago and the glass blowers gave way to modern machinery early in the present century But the skill of the plate glass polishers continues as a family tradition in the big glass plants of Toledo, Ohio For example, on the 1,700-foot polishing line in the Libbey-Owens-Ford plant here there are seven father-and son combinations. Technical developments have given them a 350 ton machine, electrically controlled, with which to grind off a paper thin layer of glass to give the plate its crystal polish. Nevertheless, the perfected product depends largely on their skill in grading and handling more than 30 different sands and polishing materials, some of it so fine that it could almost be used to brush your teeth!

Cahill in police court. Bassett was arrested Wednesday afternoon by Officer Charles Thiel of the West Shore railroad police force, and was later released on bail for appearance in police court today the long hours to conserve the oxygen.

After telephone communication with the surface was broken the men settled down to a long wait. Then, for hours, the navy massed its salvage strength for rescue efports. At about noon yesterday the rescue bell dropped over the Falcon's side and touched the escape chamber of the Squalus.

Blankets and Hot Soup

The connection was made and blankets and hot soup handed into the sub to ease the biting cold. Seven men stepped inside with the man who came down from the surface and slowly the bell came up.

With their arrival on the deck of the Falcon came first definite news of the casualties trapped in the flooded sections of the submarine. Swiftly word was flashed ashore and the heart-rending task of advising relatives was begun.

One wife was seized with hysteria when told that her husband was dead. Other women refused to give up hope, clinging to the belief that in some way, somehow, their men might be alive in the blocked-off, water-filled compartments.

"Thank God, oh thank God," cried the mothers and wives of the men who came through the ordeal safely.

From the survivors themselves came only laconic comments about the bitter cold in the entombing vessel.

"I don't think I'll ever get warm again" was a common remark from the shivering men as they reached the port, 15 miles from the scene of the disaster.

First man to breathe free air and see the sun after the long confinement was Lieutenant J. C. Nichols. It was a dramatic scene. The sun broke through the clouds just as the bell broke through the ocean's surface. The air was tense with excitement, dread, hope — Airplanes circled overhead. A dozen ships, including the big cruiser Brooklyn, floated nearby. Slowly the bell swung onto the Falcon's deck. The hatch in the roof opened and Lt. Nichols stepped out into the sunshine.

Cheers broke out from the men on the deck and answering cheers and shouts echoed from the other vessels.

Diver Makes Contact

First contact with the Squalus had been made by Frank P. Miller, a Portsmouth navy yard diver, who stepped on the steel hull at 10.22 a. m. (E. D. T.).

"It was a tough dive," he reported later. "The water was extremely cold. I was down on the sub (making the connection for the diving bell) only 15 minutes, but it took about 73 minutes for me to come up and recover."

The bell started down at 11:40 a. m. and began its return trip at 1:18 p. m. Lt. Nichols stepped to the deck at 1:45 p. m. Then, persistently, the chamber continued its elevator-like trips which continued until shortly after midnight. There was not a hitch until the last ascent.

Officers eagerly watching the bell in its acid test found it an unqualified success. It was developed after the S-4 disaster off Provincetown, Mass., in which 40 men lost their lives in 1927. Built to withstand tremendous pressure, the bell is filled with a helium-oxygen mixture for breathing so as to prevent "bends," a disease caused by pressure changes.

A hose from the surface supplied the breathing mixture during the ascent and was responsible for averting a second tragedy when the bell stuck on its fourth trip up. During the long halt, the men were jammed like sardines into the apparatus, but the hose supplied them with air to breathe.

Spokesman for the rescued men was Judson Thomas Bland of Norfalk, Va., an electrician's mate.

"There was no panic — none whatsoever," he told interviewers. "Every word from every man was a cheerful one. I'm not afraid to say that not one man ever thought he would not be rescued."

He said the air in the sub "got a little bad" just before the rescue, but that was due, he said, to efforts to conserve the oxygen. The survivors were hospitalized promptly but naval spokesmen said they believed all would survive and be released from the hospital during the day. Some, however, were suffering shock and might be held a few days.

There was a large company of school men from Ulster, Orange, Sullivan and Delaware counties present and joining in the testimonial occasion.

Features of the dinner were the large individual, candle-lighted cakes which each of the honored guests found in front of his plate, in addition to handsome mementos of the occasion with which they were presented by their assembled friends of the fraternity.

Schirick Attends Lawyers' Dinner

Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Schirick of this city, presiding at the May term of court in Greene county was a guest Monday evening at the dinner of the Greene County Bar Association at the New Salpaugh Hotel, Catskill.

Informal in its character, the meeting was held for the purpose of discussion of terms of court there. The next scheduled term is December and attorneys believe this is insufficient.

Justice Schirick told the bar that it might be possible to arrange a term in September but an October or November term was almost impossible since every justice was assigned to a term somewhere in the district during those months.

Navy Put New Publicity Order Into Use Yesterday

Washington, May 25 (AP)—The sinking of the submarine Squalus put into effect in dramatic fashion the navy's new policy of reporting news events fully and promptly.

At both the Portsmouth navy yard, the submersible's home port, and the navy department here, reports from the scene were given out with a minimum of delay.

By order of Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of operations, reporters and photographers were taken to the scene from New York on the U. S. S. Brooklyn.

The order to make public "newsworthy" events was issued last week by Admiral Claude C. Bloch, fleet commander-in-chief. Specifically included was such news as crashes and the loss of men overboard, as well as matters which navy officials considered more favorable to the service.

Pay Tribe for Broken Treaty

Shoshones Win Suit Over Land Taken From Them By Arapahoes.

FORT WASHAKIE, WYO. — A white man who saw their point of view and refused to let his brothers break a treaty without later financial remuneration is the hero of 1,000 members of the Shoshone Indian tribe.

The handful of tribesmen, remnant of the once-powerful Shoshone nation, recently won a 26-year legal suit against the federal government for suspension of an ancient treaty guaranteeing them a reservation far removed from their traditional enemies, the Arapahoes.

Charles and Marshall Washakie, representatives of the tribe, led their people in the fight to obtain payment for being forced to share the land with the Arapahoe tribe. But they attribute the majority of their success to George M. Tunison, Omaha (Neb.) attorney.

Sons of the famous Shoshone chief, Washakie, the two redmen joined Tunison in the lengthy legal battle. Litigation was begun in 1913, but in the court of claims.

Shoshones Peaceful Tribe.

To Tunison the government dispute with the Shoshones was ironical.

"The tribe," he explained, "is one of the most intelligent, law-abiding and most friendly of the Indian nations, Chief Washakie gave the army every assistance in dealing with hostile tribes. Sacajawea, with a papoose on her back, guided Lewis and Clark over trackless mountains to Oregon. The Shoshones were the first tribe to sign the Fort Bridger treaty with the government."

Tunison became interested in Washakie's tribe as a young government attorney. He discovered that the white men had broken the agreement in 1868 when they placed the Arapahoes on half of Shoshone land. The Arapahoes, more warlike than their neighbors, had staged numerous raiding parties on settlers in their native Black Hills.

Tunison resigned his position and became the Shoshone legal representative. Eventually he enlisted the aid of two assistants in his fight to obtain for the Indians what he considered their rightful heritage.

Argued Claims for Nine Years.

After he won consent to sue the government in the Court of Claims he spent the next nine years in arguing claims and counterclaims. In 1936 the Indians were awarded $80,000, but he continued litigation in an effort to obtain the $26,000,000 originally asked.

After several rehearings, upheld later by the United States Supreme court, value of land taken from the Shoshones and awarded to the Arapahoes was adjudged to be $1,581,889. Interest brought the figure to $6,364,677, from which $1,956,233 was deducted for governmental expenses on the reservation.

Thus the tribe was awarded the remainder of $4,035,000.

Tunison and his associates were given several hundred thousand dollars for their battle, but the Omaha attorney considered this award secondary.

Here's Simple Guide for Diagnosis of Tummyache

SIOUX CITY, IOWA.—If one has abdominal pain but is able to get upstairs and into pajamas, that's appendicitis, acute and painful.

If a person is unable to get upstairs but has to lie down on the davenport right now, that's a gall bladder attack, also acute and painful.

If, however, the victim falls down and lies there, it's a ruptured stomach ulcer, still acute and painful.

That was the simple guide to diagnosis given members of the Sioux Valley Medical association recently by Dr. Howard Gray of Rochester, Minn., a member of the Mayo clinic staff.

Dr. Gray several months ago operated on James Roosevelt, son of the President.

Child Abuse Increases; Society Blames Drink

BOSTON. — Drunkenness as a cause of child abuse and neglect last year reached the highest peak since repeal of the eighteenth amendment, according to the sixtieth annual report of the Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Intemperance was a major factor in 26.5 per cent of the cases handled by the society in 1938. Though the highest percentage since 1920, it was less than half that of the pre-prohibition peak year.

Most serious cases resulted from homes broken by death, desertion or divorce, according to General Secretary Thomas A. Lothrop.

Duck Affair Costly

SEATTLE. — Vernon Poirier, 23-year-old sailor, found it impossible to duck a duck fine for shooting a duck out of season. The duck was only a two-pound affair and the fine was at the rate of $50 a pound. Worse yet, he did not even get the duck.

Nazis Acclaim Feat

Napanoch Guard Is Fined $50 for Drunken Driving

Ralph Caldwell of Ellenville, former Napanoch Institution guard, found it did not pay to mix alcohol and gasoline when he was arraigned before Police Justice Charles F. Kaiser at Ellenville Tuesday afternoon on a charge of driving a motor car while intoxicated and also leaving the scene of an accident without stopping to give his name and address.

Caldwell was fined $50 and given 30 days suspended sentence in the Ulster county jail on the drunken driving charge and a 30-day suspended jail sentence on the charge of leaving the scene of an accident. He was warned by the court that any future violation of the law would result in putting the jail sentence in operation. In addition to the fine he also made restitution for the damages which were suffered in the accident to the car of William Joyce about 5 o'clock on May 10 when the Joyce car which was parked in front of the theatre in Ellenville was struck by the Caldwell car. From Canal street the Caldwell car was followed by Joyce to Center street where Chief Richard Porter made the arrest. Held in $300 bail for a hearing Tuesday, Caldwell was fined and the jail sentence handed out at the hearing. Louis G. Bruhn and Bernhardt Kramer appeared for The People at the hearing. Caldwell's license was also revoked on order of the court. Benjamin Lonstein appeared for Caldwell.

Fire Board Gives Brown Active Duty

Fireman Charles V. Brown of the Kingston paid fire department, who has been under suspension from active duty since May 3, was reinstated at a special meeting of the Board of Fire Commissioners on Wednesday evening and reported for active duty this morning.

The only penalty was the loss of pay for the 22 days he had been under suspension.

Fireman Brown was unable to report for duty as usual on May 3 for at that time he was lodged in the county jail where he was being held until he furnished a bond guaranteeing weekly payments to his wife.

Brown had been arrested on a charge of failing to pay his wife weekly sums for her support and when arraigned before Judge Matthew V. Cahill he had been directed to post the bond to insure the weekly payments.

When Brown failed to report for duty on May 3 he automatically suspended himself, and he had since been relieved of his duties until the fire board met last night.

State Commander Speaks at Dinner Given by Legion

The American Legion is an important national bulwark against advancement of foreign elements here in a world more chaotic today than at the time of the World War, Frank C. Love of Syracuse, state commander of the Legion, declared last evening at Huling's Barn where a dinner was given in his honor. About 200 local legionnaires and their wives attended the dinner.

Commander Love pointed out also that the Legion appears to have one of its biggest jobs in training American youth for good citizenship. This, he held, was one of the significant duties of the organization, and meant much to the future welfare and security of the nation.

Legionnaires, in effect, the speaker pointed out, are men who fought in a war to end war, but as present world conditions indicate they failed in that objective. A great loss in moral and government interests, the speaker said, was largely responsible for the continued growth of various types of "isms" in the nation today.

The Legion is fighting hard to stem this tide in America, he continued, and has turned to education of the youth in the good principles of government and citizenship. Added to this objective, he said, was the Legion's support of the policy of isolation. He suggested keeping "our nose to home" and first clean up "our own back yards."

The Legion also represented an organization of good comradeship with fine ideals and through its efforts the disabled veterans and widows and children are being cared for by the government, through the efforts of the Legion alone, he said.

Other Legion officials introduced by Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman, the toastmaster and chairman of the committee arranging the dinner, included: Louis Mann, Third District commander; Gregory Powers, state service director; Charles Parker, Third District vice commander; Mrs. Edna O'Brien, president of the Ulster County American Legion Auxiliary; William Maynard, commander of the Ulster County Legion, and Walter Clark, adjutant of the county Legion.

Fire Alarm Truck Is in Operation

At the special meeting of the fire board last evening it was announced that the new fire alarm service truck had been delivered to the fire department and was now in operation. Purchase of the truck was authorized by the Common Council.

The old service truck will be used for flood-lighting work, and the lights, which are portable, will be installed on the truck.

The new truck was purchased through the Kingston Truck Sales, and is similar to the service trucks used by the New York Telephone Company. The new truck cost $875.

Sheriff Holds Two Men for Thefts

fore Justice Benjamin H. Sleight of Port Ewen, who committed them to the Ulster county jail to await the action of the grand jury.

The Jaszobsky cottage burned to the ground about April 20. Information received by the sheriff a day or so ago gave rise to suspicion that all was not as it should be in connection with the affair and he directed Deputy Sheriff Clayton Vredenburg to make an investigation, at the same time notifying Trooper John S. Metzger of the B. C. I., who joined in the investigation Wednesday afternoon.

As a result of their work the officers arrested the two Eckerts and arraigned them on burglary charges. They also recovered and brought to the court house a quantity of bedding, sweaters, a mirror and some plumbing fixtures alleged to have been stolen from the cottage. They expect also to recover other articles, including an electric motor, lawn mower and garden tools, said to be among loot from the cottage which had been disposed of in Kingston.

Sheriff Molyneaux said this morning that statements had been secured in which the prisoners admitted their connection with the burglary. When arraigned before Justice Sleight the two young men waived examination.

Leonard Watson, 47 Willington street, Springfield, Mass.

John A. Bishop, 41, Sunnyside, L. I.

Two hospitals at Hartford sent several ambulances to the scene, a distance of about six miles.

The accident occurred about a mile west of the Newington station just before 6 a. m., E. S. T.

Neither train was derailed and about an hour after the accident the Washingtonian, the roofs of its damaged coaches caved in and glass in the coach windows shattered, pulled away.

Butters was a flagman employed by the railroad and at the time of the accident was "deadheading" to Providence, intending to change from the Washingtonian at New Haven.

First reports reaching the railroad offices at New Haven said a boom on the work train equipment train swung out over the track on which the express was approaching, struck the locomotive, missed the baggage car and then badly damaged a day coach and two sleepers.

PACKING FOR PICNICS IS PLANNING FOR FUN!

PICNIC BOUND ON MEMORIAL DAY!

Yes, we're off for a picnic on Memorial Day. Picnic bound before the "skeeters," ants and bugs get set for battle. Off for a day out in the open. Sure, we'll come home worn and weary; but filled with enthusiasm, ready to battle life again. We'll return with a greater appreciation of this great country in which we live, and with a better understanding of those kiddies of ours who are growing up every day, growing away from us. That's why we're going to try to make this Memorial Day picnic one they'll long remember.

PICNIC POTATO SALAD

2 cups cooked diced potatoes, 1 small onion, chopped, ¼ cup chopped green peppers, ½ cup diced cucumber, 8 or 10 frankfurters, cooked, skinned and diced, 1/3 cup chili sauce, 1 tablespoon prepared mustard, salt and pepper to taste and 2/3 cup salad dressing.

Combine all ingredients except mustard, chili sauce and salad dressing. Combine these three in a separate dish and blend well before adding to the salad mixture. Chill salad before serving.

First we make the salad because it can chill and season thoroughly while we are packing the picnic hamper with pickles, olives, mustard, mayonnaise, peanut butter, beer, fruit nectars, soft drink powders or orangeade, and paper napkins and dishes. Then we'll make the sandwiches.

SANDWICHES

If there are small children in the family, make the sandwiches at home because the kiddies will become impatient if they must wait for them at the picnic grounds. Sandwich spreads may be made from left-overs the day before—chopped beef, pork, veal, lamb, ham, etc., or spreads may be purchased all ready to use. Select two or three kinds of bread for variety: white, whole wheat, rye and perhaps raisin. Salmon or tuna sandwiches are ideal for picnics if seasoned well and wrapped carefully in wax paper. Bologna and chopped relish makes another good combination, while frankfurters or hamburgers are simply perfect!

BEVERAGES

Coffee, packed in a thermos jug or made over an open fire is now a prime requisite for many family picnics. It's the old theory of a hot dish with every meal, you know. For kiddies there's hot chocolate. But don't forget the soft drinks!

HOME AGAIN!

So you're home again—and hungry! Here's a supper dish that will just fill the bill!

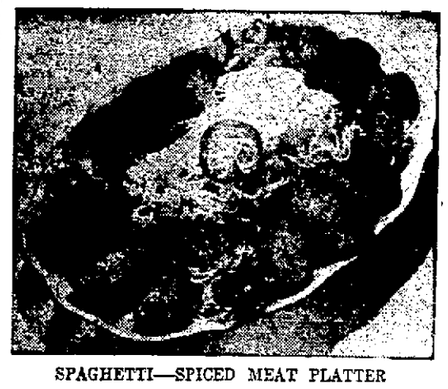

½ pound spaghetti, cooked, 1 can tomato soup, 1 teaspoon onion juice, ½ teaspoon salt, 2/3 cup grated American cheese, 2 teaspoons worcestershire sauce.

Cook spaghetti in briskly boiling salted water. Meanwhile make sauce in double boiler or in saucepan over low flame. Heat tomato soup, onion juice and salt. Stir in grated cheese. Add worcestershire sauce. Pour over cooked spaghetti in hot serving dish. Surround with browned spiced luncheon meat and serve.

QUICK COCOA

2 tablespoons sweetened condensed milk, 1½ teaspoons cocoa, few grains salt, boiling water.

Blend condensed milk, cocoa and salt in cup. Add enough boiling water to fill and stir well.

Harmonious accessories make a harmonious room and that, of course, is what every homemaker strives for. Since crocheted accessories are no exception to this rule Alice Brooks has designed these matched pieces that you'll enjoy making. Crochet the chair set and its matching pillow and, if you like, use the chair back design for scarf ends, too. Mercerized string so easy to work with, so practical in the finished piece costs very little. You'll want to make sets for your friends once you've made your own. And why not do that and lay them aside for some special occasion? For a smaller pillow use a finer cotton. Pattern 6400 contains charts and instructions for making set and pillow top; illustrations of them and of stitches; materials needed.

U. S. Leads in High Rate of Marriage

Facts Are Brought Out in International Survey.

SAN FRANCISCO.—The United States is the most "marrying" nation in the world according to an international survey just completed here.

Without legislative promotion, premiums, subsidies and other means employed by some European countries to encourage marriage and raise birth rates, the marriage rate in the United States for a number of years has been a little in excess of 10 per 1,000 of population, the survey shows.

In the meantime, Germany's marriage rate has shrunk from 11.1 per 1,000 of population in 1934 to 9.1 in 1937. The Austrian rate is 6.5 per 1,000 and the Czecho-Slovakian rate, before the country's dismemberment, was 8.3.

In Italy, where a bachelor's tax is imposed to spur marriage, and baby bonuses to encourage it, its former marriage rate of 6.7 in 1935 has increased to 8.6. Other governmental measures to increase the birth rate, however, have not been so successful. In fact, the birth rate is steadily decreasing. From a peak rate of 29.7 in the 1921-25 period it dropped to 22.7 in 1937.

In the two great democracies of Europe, England and France, the marriage rate in the former is 8.6 per 1,000, an increase in recent years, while that of France shows a decline to 6.6 per cent. The latter is regarded to be due largely to unfavorably economic conditions.

The United States still maintains a relatively high birth rate, being 17.9 in 1938, compared to a rate of 22.5 during the 1921-25 period.

While all other countries show a decline in birth rate since the 1921-25 period, the United States is still exceeded by Japan with a birth rate of about 20 per 1,000, Germany 18.8, and Italy 22.4.

Austria and the now dismembered Czecho-Slovakia showed the lowest rates, slightly above 13 per 1,000 of population.

Children's Food

The most important factor in assuring good nutrition in children is the knowledge how to select the proper kinds of food and how to encourage good food habits. Children begin to form food habits soon after they are born. Parents can see to it that these early food habits are good ones that will stand by their children for the rest of their lives. Good appetite is a big help in forming good food habits. Children who have enough sleep and who do nc come to meals overtired, who play actively—preferably in the open air—and who have good meals at regular hours under pleasant conditions are likely to have good appetites.

Eating between meals or "piecing" can become a bad habit that spoils the appetite for regular meals.

Suppers-Food Sales

The public health committee of the town of Rochester will serve a chicken salad supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Messenger on Friday, May 26, at 6 o'clock.

A chicken supper with strawberry short-cake will be served at the Hurley Reformed Church Wednesday evening, June 7, beginning at 6 o'clock, and continuing until all are served.

The Women's Guild of the Parish of All Saints Church, Rosendale, will serve a variety supper, Saturday, May 27.

Creepy: A friend of Paul Wing's told him this tale as a true story: The friend, with several companions, was driving toward Westchester. A woman thumbed a ride. Ordinarily, he pays no attention to hitch-hikers but as the woman looked weary and destitute, he gave her a lift. After riding for some time, the passenger announced that she had reached her destination. The only way she could repay the courtesy extended her, she said, was by telling the fortune of one of the women in the car. None cared to have her palm read, however. Then the woman announced: "I will make a prophecy. If you carry a corpse in this car before midnight, Hitler will be dead before the first of May." All laughed at the prediction. On the way home that night, a policeman stopped the car and asked that an injured man be taken to a hospital. Before the hospital was reached the man died.

Financial. Mana-Zucca, blonde composer of "I Love Life" and other well-known numbers, who recently broke into swing with "Two Little Shoes," maintains a year-round home at Miami, overlooking Biscayne bay. Recently annoyed by her gardener's failure to finish seeding the lawns, she sent him a vigorous note of disapproval. The gardener showed the note to friends and was surprised to receive an offer of $5 cash for it. A second and more vigorous note followed and that was sold at an even higher figure. Some time later the gardener showed up and was admonished severely by the composer.

"Why didn't you answer my notes?" she demanded.

"I was hoping you'd send me a new one every day," was the calm answer. "They pay a lot better than gardening."

Good Deed: On the bulletin board of the Majestic theater, where that Dwight Deere Wiman smash hit, "Stars in Your Eyes," is playing, is the picture of a little Spanish boy with a sad look in his eyes. His name is Hipolito Carreras and he is 12 years old. He is an orphan of the Spanish Civil war. The reason his picture appears on the stage of a theater in New York, when there are so many thousands like him, is that the cast of "Stars in Your Eyes" has officially adopted him through the Foster Parents plan. Hipolito is at present in a refugee camp in France, near the Spanish border. He will be transferred to a regular children's colony where he will be raised and educated for useful manhood. And a salute to each and every member of the cast of "Stars in Your Eyes."

Correspondence: The Andrews sisters report that these days mash notes come from the following types of males: High school boys who like to make their girl friends jealous by displaying a letter from a celebrity; callow youths who are too backward to express their feelings and who find an outlet in writing to girls they have never met; married men who are on the outs with their wives; smart alecks who think they can play rings around a Gable in penning torrid love blurbs; ambitious lads who'd like to marry a money-making gal—and manage her affairs, and old bucks who have become tired of whittling and have taken up letter writing.

Skip It: According to the recollection of Ernie Holst, who supplies dance rhythms at the Glass Hat, Robert Morley, John Gielgud, Noel Coward, Reginald Gardiner and other noted English performers who have dropped in from time to time have always avoided the dance floor when he swung into a rhumba. It seems that some seasons ago, in one of the Cochran revues in London, there was a skit burlesquing rhumba dancers, and the English, still recalling it, are wary. At least, that is the explanation Holst got when he made inquiries.

End Piece: Night clubs featuring Hawaiian music seem to be doing a good business. To me, that's entirely understandable. It's obvious that there are plenty of folks who, even as I, are curious to find out if there is on this earth just one Hawaiian number that doesn't sound exactly like all other Hawaiian numbers.

YOU CAN TAKE IT WITH YOU!

When we start packing a picnic lunch, we always think first of all the things that would taste simply "swell" but which we just can't take with us on a picnic. Well, here are some recipes for food dishes that you can take with you, and you'll be surprised at how they will dress up the ordinary picnic lunch.

Cream Puffs *

4 eggs, 1 cup boiling water, 1 cup flour, ½ cup butter or margarine, ½ teaspoon salt.

Combine butter or butter substitute, salt and water. Heat to boiling. Sift flour, measure and add to boiling mixture. Beat vigorously until mixture leaves sides of saucepan and does not cling to spoon. Remove from fire. Cool slightly. Add unbeaten eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after the addition of each egg until the mixture is smooth. Drop by tablespoonfuls into well-greased muffin tins or onto a baking sheet, 2 inches apart. Bake in a hot oven (400° F.) 30 minutes. Lower heat to 350° F. and continue baking 10 minutes or until firm and dry. Remove from oven. Cool. Cut a slit in the side of each with a sharp knife. Using a spoon or pastry tube insert cream filling, sweetened whipped cream or fruit. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar.

A Shortcake on a Picnic?

That sounds like a crazy idea, no doubt. But it isn't, despite the fact that shortcakes are just the thing to serve at an afternoon bridge party or for evening refreshments, as you'll note from the illustration. For the picnic all you do is place a box of round whole wheat biscuits in the picnic hamper. Clean, chop and season the berries and place in a glass jar, and in another jar place whipping cream or marshmallow whip. At the picnic, place the biscuit on a paper plate, top with berries and another biscuit, more berries and whipped cream or marshmallow whip. What a treat!

Raisin Variety Cookies

1 cup raisins, 1½ cups granulated sugar, ¾ cup shortening, 3 eggs, ¼ cup milk, 3 cups quick-cooking rolled oats, 2 cups uncrushed cornflakes, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Rinse raisins, drain and slice. Cream sugar and shortening, add beaten eggs and beat. Add milk, oats, raisins, cornflakes, flavoring and mix. Add flour sifted with baking powder, soda, salt and spice and blend thoroughly. Drop by spoonfuls onto greased cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Yield: 5 dozen.

RAISIN VARIETY COOKIES

Coconut Pineapple Macaroons*

½ cup sweetened condensed milk, 2 cups shredded coconut, 1 cup crushed pineapple, ⅛ teaspoon salt.

Blend together sweetened condensed milk, shredded coconut, crushed pineapple and salt. Drop by spoonfuls on well-greased baking sheet 1 inch apart. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 10 minutes or until a delicate brown. Remove from pan immediately. Yield: 30.

Southern Pecan Pie*

3 eggs, slightly beaten, 1 cup light corn sirup, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 2/3 cup coarsely chopped pecan meats, 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1 cup granulated sugar.

STRAWBERRY BISCUIT SHORTCAKE

Mix together all ingredients, adding nutmeats last. Pour into a nine-inch unbaked pastry shell and bake in a hot oven (450° F.) ten minutes. Reduce heat to 350° F. and continue baking until a silver knife blade inserted in center of filling comes out clean.

Hot Water Pastry*

½ cup triple-creamed shortening, ¼ cup boiling water, 1½ cups pastry flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt.

Pour boiling water over shortening, beating until creamy. Cool slightly. Sift flour, salt and baking powder together over the shortening, mix to a soft dough, using a fork, cover with waxed paper or a plate and chill thoroughly. Roll and shape as for plain pastry.

Creole Tomatoes

1 bouillon cube, 1 cup boiling water, 6 tomatoes, 1 onion chopped fine, 1 green pepper chopped fine, 4 mushrooms chopped fine, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons bread crumbs and paprika.

HINTS

Pack shelled hardcooked eggs or peeled fruits in empty egg cartons when going on a picnic, after wrapping in wax paper. Deviled eggs carry especially well in this manner.

The flavor of canned condensed or ready-to serve soups may often be changed and improved through the addition of a little chili powder and thick seasoning sauce.

Remove stem ends and scoop out meat of tomatoes. Mix chopped pepper, onion, mushrooms, meat of tomato and cube dissolved in boiling water. Fill tomato shells, place in baking dish, dot with butter, sprinkle with bread crumbs and paprika and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) for 20 minutes.

Salmon Steaks Creole

Combine 3 tablespoons each of prepared mustard, horseradish and chili sauce. Spread generously on thick salmon steaks, place in greased baking dish and bake 45 minutes in moderate oven (350° F.).

Spring Salad Bowl

Shred 1 cup each, cabbage, carrots and apples. Combine with 2 tablespoons light prepared mustard, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons granulated sugar and ½ teaspoon salt. Mix and serve with cheese crackers.

Marshmallow Cream

¾ cup sugar, 1/3 cup light corn syrup, ¼ cup water, 16 marshmallows (cut in quarters), 2 egg whites.

Cook sugar, corn syrup, and water together in a saucepan until it spins a long thread when dropped from a metal spoon. Remove from fire and immediately add the marshmallows. Beat until thoroughly blended. Pour the hot syrup over the stiffly beaten egg whites and continue beating until smooth. Use for all purposes where a marshmallow cream is desired. A prepared marshmallow topping may now be obtained in small-size containers—ready to use.

Venice Gets Art Exhibits

Important contributions to the exhibition of the works of Paolo Veronese at Venice are being sent from foreign galleries and museums. W. R. Valentier, head of the Detroit Art institute, and one of the greatest authorities on Italian medieval sculpture, is in charge of the commission dispatching a number of works by Veronese from America. The Boston Fine Arts museum contributes four works entitled "Diana Surprised by Actaeon," "Atlanta and Meleager," "Olympia," and "The Loves of Venus and Jupiter." From the Cleveland Fine Arts museum comes the half-length portrait of Agostino Barberigo. San Francisco is sending a magnificent family portrait which was formerly in the collection of Prince Leuchtenberg at Munich, while the Cambridge, Mass., museum will loan a page of sketches for a composition of the "Baptism of Christ." These sketches are believed to represent one of Veronese's last works.

Cane From Malay

Cane used for the construction of porch furniture grows in the form of a vine in Malayan jungles. It is employed by the natives for the building of huts and bridges and when baked by the tropical sun, it becomes extremely durable. Gathered by the natives, this cane is shipped to Singapore from which port it is sent to our large furniture manufacturing concerns. Although it is often preferred in natural finish, cane furniture, decorated in attractive colors, is sometimes featured in the furniture markets.

Atmosphere

At or near sea level, the atmosphere is about 21 per cent oxygen. While this percentage remains constant up to an elevation of about seven miles, the actual amount of oxygen decreases at high elevations because here the air is not as compressed as at sea level. At very high elevations, above 45 or 50 miles, the lighter gases, e. g., hydrogen, predominate.

Canadian dairy production reached a total value of $220,163,527 in 1938, an increase of about two per cent over 1937.

Mohawks Edge Colonials 5-4; Indies Score 5th Straight

Joe Brown Nicked For Eleven Bingles By the Upstaters

Mac Tiano and Bill Finger Out of Kingston Lineup —General Electrics Here Tonight

Slim Coleman, mystery hurler for the Mohawk Colored Giants, came to the rescue in the role of a fireman last night at Central Park in Schenectady, where the Kingston Colonials were trying for their third straight win of the New York State Baseball League. But it wasn't the locals' day. They lost 5 to 4 in a real thriller.

Big Joey Brown, winner in his first game, was the nominee of Fred Davi to make it his second in a row. Brown suffered some bad breaks in the clinches which eventually decided the outcome. Brown gave up 11 bingles in the full nine-inning stint. Coleman, who relieved Ossie Layton in the first, was touched for three hits in his span of frames.

In last night's game the Colonials were without the services of Mac Tiano and Bill Finger. In their places Manager Davi used Paul Astolas and Pitcher Teddy Uhl. Neither collected a safe knock.

Everything looked perfect for a triumph after the Colonials had swatted around in the first canto when four runs were pushed over. Husta opened with a walk but was forced at second on Benjamin's bounder to Hobson. Hoffman and DuBois worked Layton for successive passes to fill the sacks to capacity. Jack Schatzel slammed a roller to Jefferies, who kicked the ball around and then ended up by throwing home too late in an attempt to nab Benjamin. Frank Neff potted a looping single into left, scoring Hoffman and DuBois. This was enough for Layton. Buck Ewing sent in Slim Coleman. Uhl blasted a grounder to short where Hobson took the pill and fumbled. Schatzel scored on the error. Neff tried to beat the relay in from the outfield where the ball had skimmed, but was erased, Hobson to Jefferies. Coleman forced Astolas to foul out to Milton to end the uprising.

The Giants rammed back in their half. Charlie Martin blasted a solo to center and went to second as Jeffries walked. Ewing hoisted to Uhl. When Jeffries attempted to pilfer second, "Gabby" Benjamin's toss to second went soaring into center field. Pelham skied to Uhl and on the sacrifice smack, Martin romped home. Hariston lofted a long double into center scoring Jefferies. Brown tightened and forced Durant to hit back to the box.

Giants Tie Score

Coleman set the Colonials down in order in the second but his mates failed to respect Joe Brown in a like manner. Milton bounded to the box but Hobson got a walk. Coleman whiffed. Martin shot a hot liner down to second where Joe Hoffman came up with a sensational stop but in a hurry, threw wildly past Jack Schatzel permitting Hobson to anchor at third. The Giants were trailing 4-3 as Jefferies socked a hard single into right scoring Martin and then Hobson raced in to knot the score at 4-all.

Meanwhile Joe Brown and Coleman were having a duel on the mound. Coleman retired eight Colonial batters in a row before Uhl got a free trip in the fourth. Then in the seventh Kingston finally solved Coleman but not to any success. Frank Neff collected his second single but was quickly caught off first.

Martin Scores Clincher

Two straight bingles by Martin and Jefferies along with a sacrifice fly pushed the Giants out in front in their half of the seventh. Ewing slammed a lofter out to Uhl and after the catch Martin registered the deciding marker.

Kingston made one last attempt to tie up the tussle in the ninth when Tom DuBois bifed a long one into center field and pulled up at third with a triple. But again Coleman came to the rescue. Both Schatzel and Neff went down on strikes. Uhl ended the threatened rally by popping out to Pelham.

Game Tonight

The General Electrics of Schenectady will make their first showing tonight at the Athletic Field where the Colonials hope to advance past the .500 mark. Charlie Neff will hurl for the Davimen. Game time is 6:15.

Newburgh Free Academy Plays Kingston High Nine At Local Field on Friday

In the season's first crucial game of the DUSO League, Kingston High School's baseball team, undefeated so far, will stack up against Newburgh tomorrow afternoon at the Athletic Field. Game time is 4:30.

Undoubtedly the winner of this fray will have easy pickings for the coveted honors. So far this year Newburgh has been plenty tough. Kingston, authough not too powerful with the stick, has an ideal combination. From all angles, however, Kingston appears to be slight odds to come through.

Lefty Howard Brooks, who has already established himself as a capable hurler for the Millermen, will start abainst the Goldbacks. Brooks has won two up to now. Opposing Brooks will be Fornal, another outstanding moundsman.

All this week Coach Miller has been putting his charges through extra long workouts at the Smith avenue park in order to have them in complete readiness for the Newburgh invasion.

Last week a weak-hitting club representing Kingston High upset the applecart a little by spanking Middletown 14 to 4. Three pitchers failed to stop Kingston and six errors didn't help matters.

Coach Miller probably will open with the same team that plastered the Middies last Saturday afternoon down at Hughes Field: Al Decker, George Schirick, Tony Berinato and Bill "Slugger" Gavis in the infield; Jimmy Ashdown, Johnny Berardi and Hank Stoll in the outer pastures. Brooks and Ray Lindhurst will make up the battery.

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

(By The Associated Press)

This major league baseball season is as full of streaks as a faded shirt, so the fact that the 13 jinx stopped the New York Yankees yesterday caused no consternation.

People merely turned their noses in the direction of Cincinnati, where the Reds already have won nine without showing signs of tiring.

The St. Louis Cardinals also have hatched a winning streak which now stretches over six games. In addition, the National League has a couple of sizeable losing strings in existence—seven straight for the Phillies and six for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

If these seem like novelties, consider that the Boston Red Sox earlier this spring chained together seven victories while the Pittsburgh Pirates lost eight in one stretch, the Detroit Tigers dropped seven in a row and three clubs had six-game losing streaks. At one time the Washington Senators won five in a row and then turned around and dropped six.

Limits Yanks to 6

It was a rookie pitcher, Paul (Dizzy) Trout, who stopped the Yankees after they had won 12 consecutive games. He had had several chances to show his stuff this spring, but never previously had won a game. Against the champions, however, he spaced seven hits at no more than one to an inning and his mates pounded three New York hurlers for a 6-1 victory.

Although not so lengthy, the two current league winning strings are more fun because their owners are in a virtual tie for first and a false step for either will be important.

With Frank McCormick exploding his eighth homer of the season, the Reds shut out the New York Giants, 6-0, on the five-hit pitching of Big Paul Derringer, while the Cardinals kept their slim percentage advantage by a 7-0 shutout of the Boston Bees on the seven-hit flinging of Curt Davis.

Pirates on Balance

The Pirates reached a .500 average in games won and lost for the first time this year, and moved into fourth place in the National League, by beating the Dodgers, 6-3. In the other senior circuit game Claude Passeau held the Chicago Cubs to seven hits while the Phils pasted Lefty Larry French for 11, but the Bruins got theirs when they counted and won, 3-2.

The Cleveland Indians kept the Red Sox from taking advantage of the Yankees' downfall in the American League by bumping Boston, 6-2. Willis Hudlin pitched a four-hit game, but took no chances and knocked in one run with a double and later hit a homer.

Washington took a slugging spree from the St. Louis Browns, 16-6, coming from behind after the Browns tallied five times in the first three innings.

In the season's second night game the Chicago White Sox bunched three runs in the eighth to break a 1-1 deadlock and beat the Philadelphia Athletics, 4-1. Ed Smith, the southpaw Connie Mack let go to the Sox only a few weeks ago, prescribed a five-hit diet for his former teammates, who also lost their previous night test.

Baer Not Quite What He Was Once

Ferndale, N. Y., May 25 (AP)—A first-hand critical inspection of Max Baer at his training camp reveals, as one might have expected, that the former playboy champion isn't quite the man he was four or five years ago.

Max likes to think he is, and he still can out-talk a forest full of parrots, but the simple truth is the easy years have deprived the handsome Californian of a fraction of his speed and have reduced his once-marvelous stamina. In other words, Max looks and fights his 30 years.

It's still an open question whether Max has lost enough of his speed and strength to cost him his scrap with Lou Nova a week from tonight in Yankee Stadium. Perhaps he has enough left to let him sail out and smash the youngster to the canvas. But this much is certain: The longer it goes the shorter will be Baer's chances of victory.

Trains Faithfully

On the word of his manager, Ancil Hoffman, Max has worked harder for this fight than any in his career. He's been training his heart out for seven weeks here in the hills.

"He's been the first one up every morning and has been out on the road for hours," said Hoffman. "I don't know where anybody got the idea his legs are gone. That's as silly as this stuff about Jim Braddock showing Nova how to whip us. Braddock will do that kid more harm than good."

Still, Hoffman displayed an intense interest in Nova and wanted to know a dozen things about him. Particularly he wondered if Lou always kept his hands high. He was assured that he did.

"Maybe he does when he's sparring," Ancil conceded. "But will he remember all that after Max hits him once? Whatever else they say about us, Max still can hit like a mule."

Mel Ott, National League home run champion, ascribes his habit of lifting his right leg as he swings the bat to the fact that he started playing baseball at the age of 4. Even the tiny bludgeon he used in those days was so heavy for him that he needed extra power to get it into motion.

Merrill May is having a great spring as Phillies' third-baseman, but his celebration of May-day fell short of his 1938 standard. On May 1, 1938, Merrill went to bat 5 times for Newark, hit 3 home runs, a double and a single—5 hits, driving in 5 runs. May-day, 1939, a lot of Brooklyn pitching held him down to one hit, a double.

Juniors in Action

Three Barmann Park softball squads will see action at the midtown playground on Saturday when the pee-wee and junior outfits line up against Forsyth Park and the senior group meets the Texans. These activities are part of the regular program of Saturday recreation being promoted by the Recreation Department and at Barmann Park is under the expert guidance of Bill Israel, park play leader. At Hasbrouck Park the featured Saturday activity is baseball, with an intra-playground league of six teams playing a regular weekly schedule of games under the direction of David Kline. Complete programs are also conducted by the Department of Recreation each Saturday at Forsyth, Block and Hutton parks, as well as at Schools number 2 and 6.

30-Lap Sweepstakes

Altoona, Pa.—With the completion early yesterday of extensive improvements to the running surface of the Altoona Speedway mile and an eighth racing course, it appeared certain that the 100-mile-an-hour mark will be attained easily during the running of six sprint events and a 30-lap National Sweepstakes to be held here Saturday, May 27. Joie (Chief Wahoo) Chitwood, full-blooded Oklahoma Indian, will pilot his $15,000 Riverside Special in an effort to shatter the existing track record of 97.5 mph.

Bomb 2 Pitchers For Eighteen Hits In City League

Schoolboy Bush Holds Joneses to Six Bingles—Third Win for Dawkins' Star Hurler

Bombarding George Celuch and Julius Chick with an 18-hit barrage the rampaging Kingston Independents chalked up their fifth straight win by crushing the Jones Dairy in a 15-4 slugfest. Trailing 3-0 in last night's City League feature at the Athletic Field, the Dawkinsmen blasted over 15 runs in the final four innings to massacre a bewildered Jones outfit. With Charlie Bock crashing out a home run and knocking in five runs, the ex-Kyanize Powerhouse mercilessly attacked Chick for 12 bingles in the last three frames.

Jones pushed over three tallies in the second on walks to Van Derzee and Tom Berardi and singles by Scherer and Johnny Berardi for an apparently safe lead. Trailing 3-0 with two outs in the fourth, the Independents unlimbered and blasted Celuch for five markers.

Van Etten walked with one out. Dykes singled and Bing outraced Knight's fielder's choice for the first run. Bush forced Dykes at third and the threat was apparently subdued. Stumpf bingled and McLean strolled to fill the sacks and Bock put the crusher on Celuch. The Independents second sacker unloaded a base-cleaning double as three runs trickled across to shove the Dawkins tribe out ahead.

The carnage continued in the fifth on successive singles by Rider, Van Etten and Dykes before Stumpf reached first on Andy Celuch's bobble and McLean's safety with two gone for three more tallies. Lay's base knock and Hopper's three-base error on Rider's single accounted for two more in the sixth.

Relentlessly blasting Chick who replaced Georgie Celuch when Bush plunked him in the elbow during the fourth, the Independents topped off the night's mauling with five more runs in the seventh. Charles Bock's long round-tripper to deep center scoring Stumpf featured the heavy cannonading as Lay, Rider, Knight and Bush chipped in to push three more across the platter.

Joneses Collapse

Milly Berardi crossed over with a futile counter in the sixth, reaching first on Bock's two-base wild heave and scoring on Van Derzee's one-bagger. Stumpf, Bock, Rider and Dykes with three hits apiece paced the savage base-hit bombardment as the Dairymen were put to utter rout in the closing stages. Bock's double and homer accounted for five runs.

Celuch was sailing along in great shape until disaster overtook him with two gone in the fourth as Joneses were apparently primed for a prize upset. Celuch fanned three, walked two and allowed six hits before being hit painfully on his pitching elbow by Bush's sizzler in the fourth. Chick took over and was crowned for 12 assorted safeties in three innings.

Bush chalked up his third win, allowing but six safeties and fanning a like number while issuing three walks as the Independents steam-rollered over a dazed Dairymen nine.

Bleacher Blarney

Bock's homer netted him the hat offered by A. W. Mollott, uptown clothier, for the second home run of the season.

The wolves howled lustily when "Big Moose" Rider muffed Van Derzee's foul pop in the sixth. Gene looked like an adagio dancer but wound up with a case of blind staggers.

Charlie Lay put the "tease" on Georgie Celuch aplenty. Charlie's riding rattled the Jones Dairy moundsman into blowing a five-run edge. They duel in the deep south for less scorching remarks than that, Colonel Lay, suh!

McLean played brilliantly at the shortstop post, handling six chances a la Frankie Crosetti.

Hopper swooped in fast to pluck a sure base knock away from Lay. Elmer zoomed in from way back to catch up with Charlie's savage low liner in the third.

Bunce Will Box Carmine Virgilio Here on Friday

That sixth bout on the card for Friday night's boxing show at the Municipal Auditorium will bring together Baby Bunce of Kingston and Carmine Virgilio of Poughkeepsie.

This one preliminary to the other five scraps, featuring some of the most popular sluggers in the amateurs, Charlie Forezzi, Dutch Williams, Buddy Bookman and Cliff Leger was not settled until this morning when Bunce, recent conqueror of Jackie Hogan, another local boy, was picked.

Bunce, who came back after a layoff to beat Hogan, is under the direction of Kid Chappie, former featherweight star, and hopes to chalk up win No. 2 when he clashes with Virgilio, one of the most rugged little belters in Dutchess county.

Raichle Scores Hole in One— If Tiano Had Only Been There

Hard luck for the Colonials last night, that 4-5 bow to the Mohawk Giants. . . . This makes the second one over the Davimen scored by Buck Ewing's boys. . . . Too bad Mac Tiano and Bill Finger were absent from the Kingston lineup. . . . With Mr. T in there swinging his big heavy stick, the story might have been different. . . . Mickey Cochrane's new job as manufacturer's agent sometimes nets him as much as $15,000 commission for one deal. . . . Clarence "Dub" Raichle, brother of Al Raichle, Ravine street grocer, belongs to the hole-in-one club down at Poughkeepsie. . . . He drove the ball 198 feet from tee to tee for the ace which enables him to take the runner-up spot for low gross in the 18-hole test at the Municipal Links. . . . The hole in one is the first reported this season in Dutchess county. . . . Max Baer insists he hasn't had a cigarette in three months and has forgotten entirely how to bend an elbow. . . . Looks more and more like a runaway for the Independents in the City League. . . . And probably the boys will be talking about breaking up Jack Dawkins' Little Yanks, the same as they insisted that the late Col. Jake Ruppert distribute his champions among the big league clubs. . . . We can hear him yodeling his reply: "These players were all loose last winter, why didn't the managers pick 'em up!" . . . Jack, after his Kyanizers won the pennant last season, announced he'd be out of the game this summer. . . . But, he changed his mind. . . . There's nothing left for the other pilots to do but seep.

Vines Impresses British Writers

Hoylake, Eng., May 25 (AP)—Ellsworth Vines had gone back to swinging a tennis racquet today, but British golf critics still were raving about the way he swings a golf club after watching him play two matches in the British amateur championship.

Bernard Darwin, the golf writer of the London Times, said today "Vines, as he started in this tournament, reminded me of the old American terror that used to spread across the course." Darwin is convinced that Vines right now is good enough to play international golf.

"I think his swing goes right back to the old model swings of Francis Ouimet and Chick Evans," he said. "He is an infinitely better swinger than the majority of the men America sent over here on its Walker Cup team last year."

Fred Pignon, golf critic of the London Daily Mail, said:

"Give Vines a year or two of tournament play and he will be on the United States Walker Cup team. I have been watching players come up since Tommy Armour was an amateur and I think Vines has the slowest model swing since Jones."

Has Tennis Dates

Vines, Don Budge, Big Bill Tilden and Lesten Stoefen are booked for European exhibition tennis matches until September. They go to South Africa in October, Egypt in November, India at the end of the year, and from there to Australia and New Zealand.

Vines plans to be back in California in March and from then on he is going to play in every golf tournament he can.

Bill Herman, Chicago Cub keystone king, is the only second-baseman in a century of baseball who ever made 11 putouts in one game on two different occasions. That 11 is the all-time record for putouts by a 2b. Charley Gehringer and Roy Hughes are the only other moderns ever to record 11 in one game. Three keystoners achieved it in the 1890's, Sam Wise, of the old Washington National League club, Bid McPhee, of the Cincy Reds, and Napoleon Lajoie, of the Phillies.

Eliminates Champion

Strong Field for Met Open Golf

White Plains, N. Y., May 25 (AP)—The Metropolitan Open golf championship, richer in tradition than any tournament except the National Open, will be renewed today at the Metropolis C. C. with one of the strongest fields in its history seeking the title won the last two years by blond Jimmy Hines.

The top-notch pros among the 80-odd starters have an added incentive this time. For the Professional Golfers' Association will award the winner 60 points in the competition for the Harry Vardon trophy, highest ranking the Met Open has been given, and the Vardon competition will be used as a basis for selecting the U. S. Ryder Cup team to meet the British in Florida in November.

The Field

In addition to Hines, who tuned up his game by shooting a practice-round 66, five under par, the other day, the field includes Sam Snead, last year's runner-up; Paul Runyan, P. G. A. champion and home pro; Jimmy Thomson, Horton Smith, Henry Picard, Gene Sarazen, Lawson Little, Harry Cooper, Ben Hogan, Ray Mangrum and U. S. Amateur Champion Willie Turnesa.

U. S. Open Champion Ralph Guldahl, looking ahead to the defense of his title June 8-10 at Philadelphia, decided not to play. Guldahl just completed a heavy exhibition schedule and feels next week's Goodall round-robin, in which he will compete against 14 others, will be preparation enough. The field for the Goodall tourney was boosted to 14 yesterday with the addition of Denny Shute.

Woodstock Trap Shoot on May 30

Woodstock, May 25—The Woodstock Gun Club of the Woodstock Fish and Game Association will hold a trap shoot at the Athletic Field on the Rock City Road on Memorial Day. The event starting at 1 o'clock, has been arranged by President Ben DeGraff so as not to interfere with the holiday activities of Woodstock Post American Legion.

Ray Wagoner, helping with arrangements for the gun club's trap-shoot, says that he expects to use both trap guns. In addition, there will be .22 calibre, still targets, for those who care to participate in that contest.

The club house will be open to guests of the club, refreshments may be had on the grounds and there is ample free parking space.

President Ben DeGraff wishes to call attention to the fact that all profits from these and other entertainment activities of the Woodstock Gish and Game Association, are expended for the stocking of the lands and waters of its territory with fish and game.

The association is responsible for the re-establishment of bobwhite quail in the Woodstock area. At present the association is facing the job of rearing for release 300 pheasants, to augment the population already established here. It is believed that this year's release will bring the pheasant population to a high enough level to produce some excellent shooting.

Jim Tobin, Pittsburg Pirate pitcher, is two seasons ahead of his home run schedule. In 1938 Jim didn't succeed in hitting any at all. By the end of May's first week this year he had circuit-clouted both in Chicago and Philadelphia and was leading Rizzo in the race for hitting homers in every park in the league. Johnny had measured only one up to that time.

Steve Mesner, juvenile infielder of the Chicago Cubs, is aiming for a repeat of his big week of 1937. At the tender age of 19, playing 3rd base for Los Angeles, Steve packed 21 hits inside of one week, 7 games played. Seven of the hits were homers, 3 of them in one game against Oakland.

K. C. Vredenburg Injures Foot When Wielding Axe

Kenneth C. Vredenburg, son of Deputy Sheriff and Mrs. Clayton Vredenburg of West Hurley, is being treated at the Kingston Hospital for a severe wound in his foot, sustained Wednesday. Kenneth was working for the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. when the axe he was wielding made a slip and gashed the foot so that it was necessary to take seven stitches to close the wound. Fortunately indications are that there is no permanent injury.

Townsend Clubs To Meet in City

Townsend Clubs in New York state will hold a convention in Kingston on July 15, with an afternoon and evening session. Efforts will be made to have Dr. Townsend, founder of the movement, present at the convention, and it is expected that over 2,000 delegates will attend.

The convention will be held in the Kingston Municipal Auditorium on Broadway, and it is planned to provide meals in the auditorium to those attending the sessions.

The local Townsend Club at its meeting Wednesday evening, discussed plans for entertaining the convention members and a housing committee was named to arrange for accommodations for those in attendance.

While many of those attending the convention will arrive in Kingston the night before the larger number are not expected until the day of the convention.

Telegrams were sent to Senator Robert F. Wagner and Congressman Rockefeller by the local club urging their support for the Townsend plan bill now before the legislature.

More Camels Than Frenchmen

One large and useful population group in Tunisia is made up of camels. There are more camels in Tunisia than either Frenchmen or Italians, points out the National Geographic society. Over 160,000 strong, these camels, alive, are valuable as beasts of burden; dead, their hair is made into tents, coats, and shoes; their skins into water containers that serve in the desert with almost thermos bottle efficiency. Though motor transport has to some degree replaced the traditional and odoriferous denizen of the desert, the camel is still a highly useful means of transport. Easily covering 100 miles a day, it rivals the horse in speed. Except in the hot summer months, it can go comfortably up to 10 days without drinking. Its endurance is proverbial.

The Language of Christ

The language used by Christ was the Aramaic, a dialect of northern Syria. The Israelites were much in contact with Aramaean populations, and some words from that tongue became incorporated into the Hebrew at an early date. At the time of Hezekiah, Aramaic had become the official language of both Judea and Assyria; that is, the language spoken at the courts. After the fall of Samaria, colonists from Syria came in, probably speaking Aramaic as their native tongue. The fall of the Jewish kingdom hastened the decay of Hebrew as a spoken language; upon their return to Judea the Jews found themselves a people few in number surrounded by a population using the Aramaic tongue. When the latest books of the Old Testament were written, Hebrew, though still the language of literature, had been supplanted by Aramaic as the language of common life.

Scientist Declares Bats Actually Dodge Gunfire

CLEVELAND, OHIO.—Why shooting bats at night is almost impossible, why deer are increasing in numbers in Ohio, and why mammals thrive and perish in cycles are questions studied and explained by scientists at the Cleveland Museum of Natural History, which houses the world's largest collection of mammals.

"Shooting bats at night is one of the most difficult things on earth to do," said B. P. Bole Jr., mammalogist at the museum. "The bat flies in a circle and chases the wadding fired from the shotgun. This precedes the bullet and since the bats are exceedingly fast, they actually dodge the bullet by diving for the wadding."

The deer, he said, is becoming more and more plentiful and some day may become "really common."

It has been determined that mouse epidemics which wipe out almost completely the mouse populations occur every three or four years.

"These are called mammal cycles," the scientist said. "You might consider them similar to sun spot cycles or business cycles. We are trying to trace a relationship between these and human illness."

Court Rules the Home Is Where Husband Lives

The ruling was made in the case of Ruby Atwood Boyd, who a month before her marriage to Stewart Boyd on February 1 filed suit against Boyd asking $50,000 damages as a result of injuries suffered in an automobile accident near Saugatuck, Mich., in October, 1938.

Mrs. Boyd's attorneys had asked transfer of the case to Federal court because Boyd's home was in Holland, Mich., and his wife's home, at the time the suit was filed, was in Chicago. Judge Barnes ruled that a wife lives where her husband lives and remanded the case to the Michigan Superior court.

Every Member of College Fraternity Gets Office

DALLAS, TEXAS.—If the Dallas alumni chapter of Theta Sigma Phi hadn't had $6 in the bank, it probably wouldn't have been in such a hurry to elect officers. But the alumni learned the only way they could draw the money out was to elect a treasurer to sign the check. When the election was over, all the members except two held some kind of office. So they named those two members of the advisory committee.

Foster Grants Annulment On Grounds of Fraud

An annulment on the grounds of fraud has been granted by Justice Foster in the action brought by Helen Kozlowski of 13 Chambers street, Newburgh, against her husband, Bernard Kozlowski. The decree dated May 18 is interlocutory and was granted following trial of the action here.

Michael Nardone of Highland appeared for the plaintiff and sought the annulment on the grounds that the defendant failed to live up to pre-marriage promises. The plaintiff, who by the decree is authorized to resume her maiden name, and the defendant were married at Kingston on January 16, 1930.

Art Comes Out Into The Open For New York Sculpture Fans

By The AP Feature Service

New York sculptors believe that the way to popularize art with the man in the street is to bring it to the street for him to see—so they're exhibiting their work in a vacant lot in the heart of the city.

The idea must have merit. During the first week of the show 9,000 persons plunked down a dime at the Park Avenue lot to see the 105 pieces of sculpture—two of them pictured here. At the top is "Sleeping Cow," by Charles Ruey; below, "King of Swat," by Warren Wheelock.

The show is run by the Sculptors' Guild, founded in 1936 to popularize sculpture by making it an everyday experience in the life of Mr. Average American.

Mexican Aviator Sets New Record

His record-breaking flight climaxed ceremonies opening the Mexican pavilion at the fair.

The dark-haired wiry little flier completed the 2,085-mile hop in 10 hours and 47 minutes, eclipsing the record of 14 hours, 19 minutes set May 8 1935, by the late Amelia Earhart.

A red light danger warning flashed from Floyd Bennett Airport's signal tower as the stubby monoplane buzzed through the dusk last night like an angry yellow bumblebee.

With only one gallon of gasoline left, Sarabia was afraid to circle the field for a normal landing against the wind. A strong breeze whipped across the plane's tail as he set the wheels down at 115 miles an hour—for a risky but perfect landing

Sarabia, 39 and head of Mexico's largest domestic airline, was met by his wife and three children and Mexican state officials.

UP "THIS PAINT DOES IT GOOD!"

...it's SHERWIN-WILLIAMS SWP HOUSE PAINT

When it comes to the paint they use, you'll find painters a pretty hard-boiled bunch. You can't go wrong with a paint that pleases them... turns out jobs that make them proud! And that's how they feel about Sherwin-Williams SWP House Paint. They've painted more homes with SWP than with any other brand of paint. That's something we're proud of, too!

Let us tell you about the remarkable New SWP Undercoater—a time and money-saving paint that smooths out roughest surfaces. Sherwin-Williams SWP House Paint costs- $3.15 PER GAL. IN 5-GAL. PAILS

A Few Dollars per Month Paints Your Home Now!

Give your home the beauty, protection and lasting economy that has made SWP America's most widely used brand of house paint. You can do it now—without delay for lack of ready cash... without a down payment... with surprisingly few dollars per month to pay... and with as many as 18 months to complete payments.

Ask us about our Sherwin-Williams Budget Payment plan that makes this possible. We'll gladly give you a free estimate of the exact cost of painting your home under this plan. No obligation. Just drop in at our store or phone us.
